LETTERS FROM THE DEAD to the LIVING.

(Mr. THO. BROWN, By Capt. AYLOFF, of the Mr. Hen. BARKER, toc.

VIZ. FROM

To. Haines of Merry Memory, Philip of Auftria, to the Den to his Friends at Wills. Perkin Warbeck, to the pretends ed Prince of Wales, Abraham Colley, to the Covent-Garden Society. Charon, to the Illustrious and High-born Fack Keich.

fames the adito Lewis the 14th. fullan late Secretary to the Muses, to Will, Pettre of Lin-coins-in Play house Searron to Lewis Le Grand.

Hannibal to the Victorious Prince Eugene of Savey.

Theber, to Pindar of Catharine of Medicin. Dutchell of Orleans

Queen Mary to the Pope. Rarleguin, to Father Le Chaife, The Duke of Alva, to the Clergy of France

Juveral, to Belleau.

Diana of Politiers, to Madam Maintenon.

Hugh Spencer the younger, to all the Pavourites, and Mi nifters whom it may concern-Julia, to the Princes of Con-Christins Queen of smeden. to the Women.

Rabelais, to the Physicians. The Mirred Hog , a Dialogue between Furesiere and Scar-Beau Nurron, to his Brothers at Hippolito's. Sir Bartholomen Serjeant 8

And feveral others with their Answers.

Infanti Melimela dato, fatuafiy marifees, Sed mihi, qua novit pungere, Chia Sapie.

London, Printed in the Year, 1702.

But to lay noth offe upon this

PREFACE

mous Monsieur Fontenelle, in imitation of Lucian, published his Dialogues des Moris; which Work his Country-men cry up for one of the finest pieces of Wit, that any Age or Nation has produced; the with all due submission to Monsieur Fontenelle, be it said, I look upon him to be as much inferior to the Grecian Dialoguist, both in the poignancy of his Satyr, and force of his Expression, as the

A 2

Lan-

Language of Paris is to that of

But to say no more upon this point, these Dialogues of the Dead, feem to have given our Author his first hint of Writing Letters from the Dead to the Living. I cou'd never yet inform my felf who it was that writ these Letters, which first faw the light in Holland, and perhaps 'tis not material to know; but this is certain, that he must be a Refugee, that was turn'd out of France upon the score of his Religion, as any body may fee, that will be at the trouble of Reading his first Letter from Antiochus the Great, to Lewis the 14th.

Some

5

1, 18

16

r

18

A.

-

V;

be

of 1 nat

ing

the

an

me

Some People perhaps will be of fended at his familiar Treatment of his own Natural Sovereign, and Object that such Language is by no means becoming a Subject towards his Prince, let his provocations be never so violent: For my part, I will not enter into the Merits of the Controversie; but whatever obligations a Frenchman may lie under to Lewis the Great, I am ure we Englishmen, as well as the rest of Europe, may justly be alow'd to lay afide all Ceremonies f Decency and Respect to a haughinsolent Tyrant, who has diurbed the tranquillity of Christenom above Fourty years, and whose te unparallell'd Violation of the

A 4 Treaty

Treaty of Ryswie, all Orders of Men smong us have resented with that Indignation as becomes them.

But if our Author feems any where to have drawn his Satyr undefervedly, I must needs say, 'tis against Monfieur Boileau, who as he is the most Learned and Judicious Poet that France can boast of, so he does not Merit, in my opinion, fo severe an Invective for a little trifling Panegyrick upon Madam de Maintenon. It may be affedged in our Author's favour, that the Hugonots always confidered that Lady as the chief occasion of their Op. pressions and Sufferings, and consequently cannot forgive a Man that has bestow'd any Commendations tions upon her. Be it so as they protend, yet since the Nobility and Clergy of France, have pay'd such service adorations to this Female Upstart, what wonder is it that Boileau, a Poet of fortune, has mix'd with the throng of her Admirers?

18

ė

15 ie

0 te

In

4-ly

b.

n-

ın

2-

ns

Letters, it was perform deby my worthy and ingenious Friend Capt. Barker, who was pleased to submit the Correction of it to me, the he might very well have spared the Complement, since he is a much greater Master of French than my self, and to do him justice, has carried his Translation up to all the force and spirit of the Original. He it was that first gave me a fight

Friends in Town know, that long before I faw them, I had fallen up on the same design my self, and intended to have executed it, as soon as some other Affairs, wherein I am concern'd at present, wou'd give me leave. The sew Verses indeed that are intermingled with the Prose, are of my Composing; and the I must consess they are none of the best, yet I may without vanity affirm they are not inferior to the French.

As these original Letters were not enough to make a just Volume of themselves, I was easily perswaded, at the instance of some Friends, to usher them in with a few of my own,

Ď

d

e

d

6

y

.

te

ju

ŋ,

own, which I accordingly did, and at my vacant hours icribled some four or five Sheets, which I hope will not be unacceptable at this present jundure. Two worthy Gentlemen of my acquaintance, one of whole names the Reader will find before his performances, tho the other wou'd not let his be known, were pleas'd to contribute something out of their own towards this Collection, ftore . Whether we have fallen short of the French Author, that we entirely leave to the Reader's better Judgment : However, if this imperfec Estay finds a kind reception in the World, perhaps it may give me encouragement to publish a set of Letters hereafter from the Dead to the Living, all of English Compolition. One

One Letter, I am afraid, will give Offence; wherein, there is something unhandlomly Reflecting on King Charles the First, and which had never passed the Press had I had the the inspection of it; But before I conclude, it may not be amis to acquaint the Reader that I have a Collection of Letters. all by my own hand, now under the Prefe, part whereof are Trans flated from the best Masters, both Ancient and Modern, and the refi Originals of my own, address d to several Gentlemen of my acquaint-ance, and tho they have met with some unexpected interruptions, will be certainly published within a Fortnight at farthest, mod distant to the 87. Brown

THE

ill

TABLE

OF THE

CONTENTS.

Letter of News from Mr. Joleph Haines, of merry Momory, to bis Friends at Will's Coffee house in Covent-Garden, by Mr. Tho. Brown Page 1

Absor to Mr. Joseph Haines, High-German Abrologer, at the Sign of the Urinal and Cassiopea's Chair, in Brandipolis upon Phiegethon, by the Same hand p. 35

Perkin Warbeck, to the Illustrious Prince of Wales, by Capt. Ayloff

> P. 41 Mr.

A Table of the Contents.

Mr. Dryden to my L	ord D- b
Mr. Abraham Cow
Govent-Garden J	selety, by the Same Hand Charon, to the Illustrious	and High born Jack Ketch Efq;	by the fame p. 48
James 2d, to Lewis	4th. by Mr.
Lewis the 14ths An	The state of the s
James, by the same	Hand. p. 56 Julian late Secretary of Will. Pierre of Linco	the Muses, to Play-house, by another	Hand p. 61
Will. Pierre's Answer to the same Hand	o Julian, by p. 68
Scarron to Lewis le Gr Tho. Brown.	and by Me
Hannibal to the Vict	orious Prince
V	Lugene

A Tuble of the Contents. Eugene of Savoy, by the fame P. 99 Hand Pindar of Thebes, to Tom Dany, by the fame Hand P. 101 The following 30 Letters, by Mr. Hon. Barker. Antiochus to Lewis the 14th. KirfluA the Durbler Lewis the 14th's Anfwer, p. 111 to the Catharine de Medicis, p. 114 Dutchess of Orleans, The Answer of the Dutchess of Orleans to Catharine de Medicis p. 118 Cardinal Mazarine, to the Marquie de Barbelieux, P. 120 The Marquis Berbelieux Answer to Mazarine areisicp 134 Mary of England to the Pope p. 126 The Pope's Anfiver to Mary of Bngland

Harle-

n

A Table of the Contents

Harlequin to Fath	er leChaife,p. 132
	's Answer to Harle-
dan - mor	p. 137
	a to the Clergy of p. 139
The Answer of the	Clergy of France
Philip of Austria	to the Dauphin.
The Dauphins Afron	P. 145 er to Phillip of P. 148
Juvenal to Boilean	5 sda love P. 151
Boilean's Answer t	Juvenal p. 255 Diana of Poictiers
tenon	kusilapa 158
Madam Maintenor	Paring phones of the phones of Hugh Spencer t
may concern	p. 165
- START	The

A Table of the Contents. be Answer of the Chief a Minister of the King of Iveton to Hugh Spen-Rend Hog; a Dia ogre ulia to the Princes of Conti part The Princess of Contist Answer to Julia red bie Brother all U Dionyfius the younger, to the Flatteners of what Degree or Country foever er Bagholomewto the West The Answer of the News mongers to pui84 Dionyfius Christina Queen of Sweden to the p. 186 Women. The Answer of a young Vestal to the Francis Rabelais to the Phy ficians at Paris . Mr. Fagon first Phisician to Lewis the 14th to Rabelais p. 202 The Dutchefs of Fontange to the Cu-

The

7

f

9

e

3

1, 5

8

1

5

43

8

11

63

55 he mean Sibyll

A Table of the Contents.

The Cumean Sibyll's Answer to the Dutchess of Fontange p. 210

The Mitred-Hog; a Dialogue between Abbot Furetiere and Scarton, by Mr. Barker p. 213

Beau Norton, to his Brothers at Hi. pollito's in Covent-Garden, by Capt. Ayloff
p. 249

Sir Bartholomew—, to the Worshipe ful Serjeans S— by the same Hand

ERRATA

Challing Qued of Sweden to the

THE

LETTERS

Letter from Mr. Tol pir things refli War ready to break out in

FROM THE

Dead to the Living.

By Mr. The. Brown.

of Merry Memory, to his Friends at Will's Coffee-House in Covent-Garden.

Gentlemenge and handle na reclaring a giving

n

į.

by

Ponk

8

88 5

E

Had done my felf the Honour to write to you long ago, but wanted a convenience of fending my Letters, for you must not imagine 'tis as ease a natter for us on this side the River Styx, maintain a correspondence with you the Upper World, as 'tis to send a Pactet from London to Rosserdam, or from this to Madrid: But upon the News of a fresh fresh War ready to break out in your part of the World (which, by the bye, makes us keep Holy-day here in Hell) Plate having thought sit to dispatch an extraordinary Messenger to see how your Parliament, upon whose Resolutions the Fate of Europe seems whosly to depend, will behave themselves in this critical Conjuncture, I tip'd the Fellow a George to carry this Letter for me, and seave it with the Master at Will's, in his way to Westminster.

❸

I am not insensible, Gentlemen, that Homer, Virgil, Dance, Don Quevedo, and many more before me, have given an account of these Subterranean Dominions, for which reason it may look like Affectation or Vanity in me to meddle with a Subject so often handled, but if new Travels into Italy, Spain and Germany, are daily read with approbation, because new matters of enquiry and observation perpetually arise, I don't see why the present state of the Platonian Kingdoms may not be acceptable, there having been as great Changes and Alterations in these Internal Regions, as in any other part of the Universe whatever.

When I shook hands with your upper Hemisphere, I stumbled into a dark, uncouth, ur

re,

ots.

3-

te

ill

n-

ne

er.

าส-

mt

10 on ect

in-

ad

of

î he nd as

at-

Jef.

th,

country, diffmal. Lane, which, if it belate ful to compare great things will finall, fomewhat refembles that dusky dark cut under the Mountains, called the Grows of Pazzoli in the way to Naples. I was in fo great a Confernation, that I don't remember exactly how long it was, but this Fremember full well, that there were a world of riches on both fides of the wall, adorned and furnished with Harpier, Gorgons, Centaurs, Chimieras, and fuch like pretty Curioficies, which could not but give a Man a world of Titiliation as He travelled on the Road. The Threeheaded Geryon pur me in mind of the Master of the Temple's Three Intellectual Minds: and when I faw Briarens with his Hundred Arms and Heads, out of my Zeal to King William and his Government, I could not but wish that we had had so well qualified a Person for Secretary of State ever fince the Revolution; for having fo many Heads and Hands to employ, he might eafily have managed all Affairs Domestick and Foreign, and been both Dictator and Clerk to himself: Which, besides the advantage of keeping fecret all Orders and Instructions, (and that you know, Gentlemen, is of no small importance in Politicks) would have B 2

Being arrived at the end of this doleful and execrable Lane, I came into a large open, barren Plain, through which ran a River, whose Water was as black as my Hat : coming to the banks of this won. derful River, an old ill-look'd wrinkl'd Fellow, in a tatter'd Boat, which did not feem to be worth a Groat, making towards the Shoar, beckon'd and held out his right hand to me. Knowing nothing of his Business or Character, I could not imagine what he meant by doing fo, but upon fecond Thoughts, thinking he had a mind to have his Fortune told, You must understand, old Gentleman, says I to him, that there are three principal Lines in a man's hand, the first of which is called by the learned Ludovicus Vives Secretary to Tamberlain the Magnificent, the Linea Biotica, or, Line of Life; the second, The Linea Hepatica, or, Liver-line; the third and last, The Linea Intercalaris, so called by Sebastian Munster and Erra Pater, because it croffes the two aforesaid Lines in an Equicraral Parabola. Hold your impertinent stuff, fays the old Ferry man, Erra me no Erra Paters, but speak to the point, and give me my Fare, ole

ul

ge

an

as n.

d ot

ds

ht

is 18

e-

d

tt

5

-

e

1

4

8,

.

Fare, if you delign to come over. By this I perceiv'd my mistake, and knew him to be Charon: fo I dived into my Pockets, but alas, I found all the Birds were flown. if ever any had been there, which you may believe, Gentlemen, was no fmall Mortification to me. Get you gone for a Rufcally scoundrel as you are, says Charen, some Son of a Whore of a Fidler, or Player I warrant ye, go and take up your quarters with those Pennyless Rugues that are Sunning themselves on yonder hillock. To see now, how a Man may be mistaken by a fair outfide! when I came up to em I found them a parcel of jolly well-look'd Fellows, who, one would have thought, were wealthy enough to have fined for Sheriffs: I counted, let me fee, Six Princes of the Empire that were younger Brothers, Ten French Counts, Fourteen Knights of Malta, Twelve Welsh Gentlemen, Sixteen Scotch Lairds, with abundance of Chymists, Projectors, Ensurers, Noblemens Creditors, and the like, that were ill Wind-bound for want of the ready Two days we continu'd in this Rhino. doleful condition; and as Dr. Sherlock fays of himfelf, in relation to the 13th. Chapter of the Romans, here I fluck, and bad fluck till the last Genslagration, if it had not been for Bifhen Overal's Compocation Book: e'en to here we might have tarry'd world without end, if an honest Teller of the Exchequer, and a Clerk of the Pay Office, had not come to our relief, who understanding our Cafe, cry'd out, Come along, Gentlemen, me have Movey enough to defray twenty fach trifles as this, God be praifed, me had the good luck to dre before the Parlia ment look'd into our Accounts. With that they gave Charon a bread Piece each of em, fo our whole Caravan confifting of about feventy Persons in all, that had not a Farthing in the World to blefs themfelves, ferry'd over to the other fide of the River.

As we were crossing the Stream, Gharon told us, how an Irish Captain would have trick'd him. He came strutting down to the River side, says he, as sine as a Prince, in a long Scarlet Cloak, all bedaub'd with Silver Lace, but had not a Penny about him. Dear joy, cryes he to me, I came amay in a little baste from the other world, and less my Breeches behind me, but I'll make thee amends by Chreest and St. Patrick, for I'll nestes the ancient Me strik with some of Hippolito's best Sauff, which cost me a week ago a Grown an ounce. I told

been e'en

rld

the

fice,

ler-

may led,

lia

hat

of

of 10t es,

er.

ve

UN

je-

to

he 19

を代、「

sold the Hibernian, that old Birds were not to be taken with Chaff, nor Chi to be banter'd out of his due with a little dust of Sor-weed; and giving him a reprimand with my Stretcher over the Moddle bid him go like a Coxcomb as he was about his business. The wretch lanter'd about the banks for a Month, but at last, pretending to be a French man, got ever gratis this Summer among the Duke of Orleans's Retinuer But what was the most surprising piece of News Tever heard, Charon affured us upon his Veracity, that the late King of Spain was forc d to lie by a full Fortnight for want of Money to earry him over, for Cardinal Portocarere had been to bulle in forging his Will, that he forgot to leave the poor Monarch & Farthing in his Pocket, and that at last one of his own Granders, coming by that way, was fo complainant as to defrey his Prince's passage; and well he might, says our furly Ferry man, for in five Years time he had cheated him of Two Millions.

We were no fooner landed on the other fide of the River, but fome of us fil'd off to the right, and others to the left, as their business called them: For my part I made the best of my way to the famous City.

4 Brandi

Brandipolis, seated upon the River Phlegethon, as being a place of the greatest Commerce and Refort, in all King Pluto's Do minions. Who should I meet upon the Road but my old Friend and Acquaintance Mr. Nokes the Comedian, who received me with all imaginable Love and Affection? Mr. Haines, fays he, I am glad with all my beart to see you in Hell; upon my Salvation we have expected you herethis great while, and I question not but our Royal Master will give you a reception besitting a Person of your extraordinary Merit. Mr. Nokes, faid I, Your most obedient Servant, you are pleas'd to Compliment, but I know no other Merit I have, but that of being honour'd with your Friendship. But my dear Jo. crys he, How go affairs in Govent Garden, does Cuckoldom flourish, and Fornication maintain its ground fill against the Reformers, and the Playhouse in Drury Lane, is it as much frequented as it us'd to be? - I had no fooner given him a fatisfactory answer to thefe. questions, but we found our selves in the Suburbe, fo my Friend Mokes, with that Galety and openness, which became him to well at the Play house , Fo, says he, I'll give thee thy welcome to Hell, with that he

he carry'd me to a little blind Coffee house in the middle of a dirty Ally, but certainone of the worst furnish'd Tenements l ever beheld. There was nothing to be feen but a few broken Pipes, two or three founder'd Chairs, and bare naked Walls, with not fo much as a fuperannuated Almanack, or tatter'd Ballad to keep 'em in countenance; fo that I could not but fancy my felf in some of Love's little Tabernacles about Wild-fireet or Drary-Lane. Come Mr. Haines and what are you difposed to drink? what you please, Sir. Here, Madam, give the Gentleman a glass of Geneva. As foon as I had whipt it down, my Friend Nokes plucking me by the Sleeve, and whifpering me in the Ear, Prithee Jo, who dost think that Lady at the Bar is? I confider'd her very attentivey, by the same token she was three times is ugly as my Lady Fright-all, Counters of and three times as thick and bulky s Mrs. Pise the Poetress, and very fairly old him, I knew her not. Why then I hall furprife you, This is the famous Semiwhat is this the celebrated and renowned Queen of Babylon, the that built those stuendous Walls and penfile Gardens, of which which ancient Historians tell us fo many Miracles : that Victorious Heroine, who eclipsed the Triumphs of her Illustribus Husband, that added Athiopia to her Empire: and was the wonder as well as the omament of her Sex? is it possible the should fall so low as to be forced to fell Geneva, and fuch ungodly Liquors for a Subliftence? 'Tis e'en fo, fays Mr. Noher, and this may ferve as a Lesson of Instru-Gion to you, that when once Death has laid his icy Paws upon us, all other di flinctions of Fortune and Quality imme diately vanish. These words were no fooner out of his Mouth, but in came a formal old Gentleman, and plucking a large wooden Box from under his Cloak. Will you have any fine Snuff, Gentlemen, here is the finest Snuff in the Universe, Gentlemon , a never-failing Remedy, Gentlemen, against the Megrims and Head-ach. And, who do you take this worthy Person to be, fays Mr. Nokes. Butthat I am in this lower World, cry'd I, I durft fweer 'tis the very individual Quaker that fells his Herb-Snuff at the Rainbow Coffee-House Damnably mistaken says Mr. Nokes, before George no less a Man than the Great Gyras, the first Founder of the Person Monarchy. I was

ho

101

as

ble

to

for ker,

ru

has di

me

no

4 6

ak,

ett,

ien

ien,

nd,

to

'cis

his use

910

THIS,

by.

was

was going to blefs my felf at this difcoery, when a Jolly Red-nos'd Woman in Straw Harpop'd into the Room, and in fhrill Treble cry'd out, Any Buckles, Combs r Sciffers, Gentlemen, any Tooth picks, Bottle-shrews or Tweeners, Selver Buttons or Tobacco-ftoppers, Gentlemen. Well now, ny worthy Friend Mr. Hainer, who do you hink this may be? The Lord knows, rely'd I, for here are fuch unaccountable hoppings and changings among you that he Devil can't tell what to make of 'om. Why then in short, This is the Virtuous thalefiris Queen of the Amazons, the fame numerical Princes, that beat the hoof fo many hundred Leagues to get Alexander the Great to administer his Royal Mipple o her. But To, fince I find thee fo aflected at thefe alterations that have happed o Perfons who lived fo many hundred years ago, I am relolv'd to show thee some of a more modern date, and particularly f fuch as either thou wast acquainted with in the other World, or at least hast ften heard mention'd in Company. So alling for the other Glass of Geneva, he eft a Tefter at the Bar, and Semiramis; to hew her Courtly breeding drop'd us abundance of Curt'sies, and paid us as much respect respect at our going out, as your Two Penny French Barbers in Saho do to a Gentleman, that gives them a brace of odd half pence above the original Contract in

r

B

ir of bish G is in G in i their Sign: www ingit right

We walkt through half a dozen Streets without meeting any thing worthy of obfervation. At last my Friend Nokes, pointing to a little Edifice, which exactly refembled Dr. Burgess's Conventicle in Rusfel Gours, fays he, your old acquaintance Tony Lee, who turn'd Presbyterian Parson upon his coming into these quarters, holds forth most notably here every Sunday: Facob Hall and Fevon are his Clerks, and chant it admirably, Mother Stratford, the Dutchess of Mazarine, my Lord Warwick and Sir Fleetwood are his constant hearers; and to Tony's everlasting Honour be it spoken, he delivers his Fire and Brimstone with fo good a Grace, splits his Text so Judiciously, turns up the Whites of his Eyes to Theologically, cuffs his Cushion fo Orthodoxly, and twirls his Band-ftrings fo Primitively, that Pluto has lately made him one of his Chaplains in Ordinary. From this we croffed another Street, which one may properly enough call the Bow freet or Pall-Mall of Brandipolis. No fawcy Tradefman

10

n-

d

in ts

6-

n-

e-uf-

ce

nc

ds

y :

nd

hè

ck

Si

0-ne

fo

iis

fo

fo

m

m

ne

10 ef-

an

man or Mechanick dares prefume to live here, but 'tis wholly inhabited by fine gaudy fluttering Sparks, and fine airy Ladies, who in no respect are inferiour to yours in Covent-Garden. When the Sky is Serene, and not a breath of Wind Rirring, you may fee whole Covies of them displaying their finery in the Street, but ut other times you never fee em out of a Chair, for fear of discomposing their Commodes or Periwigs. We had not gone wenty Paces, before we met three flaming Beaux of the first Magnitude, the like of whom were never feen at the Vourboot at the Hague, the Tuilleries at Paris, or the Mall in St. James's Park. v They were all three in Black (for you must know we are in deep mourning here for the death of my Lady Proferpine's favourite Monkey) but he in the middle, though he had neiher Face nor Shape to qualifie him for a Gallant; for he had a Phiz as forbidding s Beau Wh-ker, and was as thick about he waste as the fat squab Porter at the Griffin Tavern in Fuller's Rents; yet he nade a most Magnificent Figure. His Peiwig was large enough to have loaded a Camel, and he had bestowed upon it at east a Bushel of Powder, I warrant you. His

His Sword-knot dangled upon the ground, and his Steenhick that was most agreeably discolour'd with Smill from top to bottom, reach'd down to his Waste: he carried his Har under his left Arm, walkt with both his Hands in the wast-band of his Breeches, and his Came, that hung negligently down in a string from his right Arm, trail a most harmoniously against the Pebbles; while the Master of it, tripping it nicely upon his Toes, was huntining to himself.

d

ti

n

a

ah

W

W

ir

b

1

Ruisingo

Oh! ye happy happy Groves Witness of our tender Loves.

Having given you this description of him, I need not trouble my self to enlarge upon the dress of his Two Companions, who, the they fell much short of this inimitable Original in point of Garniture and Dress, yet they were singular enough to have drawn the Eyes of Men, Women and Children after 'em in any part of Europe As I observed this sight with a great deal of admiration, Mr. Notes very gravely asked me, who I took the middlemost Person to be: upon my telling him I had never seen him before, nor knew a syllable of him or his private History; why, fire

ty

11, 18

eh

es.

vn

SR

ile

OF

m

on 10, ble

efs,

tve ind

Mr. Nokes, this is Diogener the famous Cynick Philosopher, and his Two Companions are George Fon and James Naylor the Quakers. Diogenes! replyed I to him, why he was one of the arrantest Slovens in all Greece, and a profest Enemy to Landreffes, for he never parted with his Shirt till his Shirt parted with him. No matter for that, fave Mr. Mbku, the cafe is after d now with him, for he has the vanity and affectation of twenty Sit Countly Wice's blended together; he constantly dispatches a Courier to Lisbon every Month, to bring him a Cargo of Limons to wash his hands with, he fends to Montpellier for Hungary water, Turin furnishes him with Rola Solis, Nifmes with Ean de Canelle, and Pavis with Ratifia to fettle his Maw in the Morning. Nothing will go down with him but Ortolans, Snipes and Woodcockes and Matfon, that fome years ago lived at the Rummer in Queenstreet, is the administrator of his Kitchin. This, said I to him. is the most fantastick change I have feen fince my passing the Sour For who the Plague would have believ'd that that an cient Quaker Diogenes, and thefe modern Cynicks Fox and Nashr should degenerate to much from their Primitive Institution, as to set up for Fops? When we came up to 'em, Diogenes gave us a most gracious Bow, but those two everlasting Complimenters his Friends, I was a fraid, wou'd have murder'd me with their Civilities, for which reason I disingaged my self from 'em something abruptly, by the same token, I overheard James Naylor call me Bougre, Insulaire and Tramontane for my ill manners.

2

t

1

8

11

When the Coast was clear of em, says I to Mr. Nokes, every thing is so turned topsie turvy here with you, that I can hardly resolve my self whether I walk upon my Head or my Feet: Right, Mr. Haines, says he, but time is precious, so lets mend our pace if you please, that we may see all the curiosities of this renowned City before 'tis dark.

The next Street we came into, we faw a tall thin gutted Mortal driving a Wheelbarrow of Pears before him, and crying in a hoarfe Tone, Pears twenty a Pennyllooking him earneftly in the Face, I prefently knew him to be Beau Heveningham, but I found he was fly, and fo took no further notice of him. Not ten doors from hence, fays Mr. Nokes, lives poor Norson that shot himself. I askt him in what quality

ne

ci-

LL17

r'd es,

m tot

ne ill

ys

ed

an

p.

er,

nd all

e-

W.

ng

y!

-9

m,

10

m

at

quality, he answered me, as suboperator to a disperser of darkness, Anglice, a Journey-man to a Tallow-chandler. I would willingly have made him a fhort vifit, but was intercepted in my defign by a brace of Fellows that were link'd to their good behaviour like a pair of Spanish Gallyflaves, tho' they agreed as little as Jowler and Ringwood coupled together, for one of 'em lugg'd one way, and his Brother the other. I foon knew them to be Dick Baldwin, the Whig Bookfeller, and Mafon the Non-swearing Parson, whom as I was afterwards inform'd, Judge Minos, had order'd to be yoak'd thus, to be a mutual Plague and Punishment to one another. Both of 'em made up to us as hard as they could drive: Well Sir, fays the Levite what comfortable News do you bring from St. Germains? our old Friend Lewis le Grand is well, I hope. Damn Lewis le Grand and all his adherents, crys Dick Baldwin, Pray Sir, what racy touches of Scandal have been publish'd of late, by my worhy Friends Sam. Johnson, Mr. Touchin, and nonest Mr. Atwood, and the Gallows that has groun'd fo long for Robin Hog the Meflenger, when is it like to lofe its longing? have no fresh batteries attack'd the Court lately from honest Mr. Darby's in Barrholomem Glose? And prithee what new Piracies from the Quakers at the Pump in Little Britain? What new Whales, Devils, Ghofts, Murders, from Wilkins in the Fryars? but above all, dear Sir, of what Kidney are the present Sheriffs, and particularly my Lord Mayor, how stands he affected? Why Dick, fays I to him, fearing to be stun'd with more Interrogatories, tho' most of the folks I have feen here are chang'd either for the better or the worfe, yet I find thou art the True, Primitive, Busie, Pragmatical, Prating, Muttering Dick Baldwin still, and wilt be fo to the end of the Chapter. In the name of the Three Furies what should make thee trouble thy felf about Sheriffs and Lord Mayors? But thou art of the same foolish belief, I find, with thy brother Cuxcombs at North's Coffee-house, who think all the Fate of Christendom depends upon the choice of a Lord Mayor, whereas to talk of things familiarly, and us we ought to do, what is this two leg'd Animal yeleped a Lord Mayor, but a certain temporary Machine of the Cities fetting up, who on certain appointed days is ubliged to ride on Horfe back to pleafe the Chear.

n

n

bf

d ls

a-

e,

1ë

d

10

er

10 ds

e.

11-

in 18

6.

7

Cheapfide Wives, who must devour to many Tun of Plum-porridge, and foutle his way through fo many furlongs of Cuftard, who is only terrible to delinquent Bakers, Oyster women, and Scavengers, and has no other privilege above his Brethren, as I knowe of, but that of taking a comfortable Nap in his Gold Chain at Paul's or Salters Hall; to either of which places his Conscience that is, his Interest carries him. Surly Dick was going to fay fomething in defence of the City Magistrate, but my Brother Nokes and I prevented him, by calling to the next Hackney Coach-man, whom to my great furprize, I found to be the famous Dr. Busby of Westminster School, who now instead of Flogging Boys was content to act in an humbler Sphere, and exercise his lashing Talent upon Horfes. We ordered him to fet us down at Bedlam, where my friend Nokes affured me we fliguld find Divertion enough, and the first Perfon we met with in this celebrated Manfion, was the famous Queen Dido of Garthage, Supported by the Ingentous Mrs. Below on the one fide, and the Learned Ghiffing Queen of Sweden on the other. Gentlemen, cry'd fire, I conjure you, by that respect which is due to Truth, and by that complaifance which is owing to Us of the fair Sex, to believe none of those idle Lyes that Virgil has told of me. That impudent Verfifier has given out, that I murder'd my felf for the fake of bis pions Trojan, the Hero of his Romance, whereas I declare to you, Gentlemen, as I hope to be favid, that I never fam the Face of that fugitive Scoundrel in my life, but dyed in my bed with as much decency and refignation as any woman in the Parish : but what touches my Honour mast of all, is that most borrid Galumny of my being all alone with Aneas in the Cave. Upon this I humbly remonstrated to her Majesty, that altho' Firgil had taken the liberty to leave her and his plous Trojan in a Grotto together, yet he no where infinuated that any thing Criminal had passed between 'em. Hom, fays Mrs. Bebn in a fury, was it not scandal enough in all Conscience to say, That a Man and a Woman were in a dark blind Cavern by themselves What the there was no fuch convenience as a Bed or a Couch in the Room, nay, not so much as a broken-back'd Chair, yet I desire you to tell me, fweet Mr. Hainer, what other business can a Man and a Woman have in the dark together, but----- Ay, crys the Queen of Sweden, what other business can a Man and a Woman have in the dark. but, as the fellow fays in the Moor of Venice, to make the Beaft with two Backs not to pick fraws, I hope, or to tell tales of a Tub. Under favour, Ladies, reply'd I, 'tis possible, I should think, for a grave fober Mah and a Woman of Diferetion, to-pais a few hours alone without carrying matters to far home as you infinuate. What in the dark! crys Queen Dido, that's mine A -- in a Band-box. Let Peoples Inclinations be never fo modest and virtuous, yet this cursed darkness puts the Devil and all of wickedness into their heads: The Man will be puthing on his side, that's certain, and as for the Waman, I'll fwear for her, that when no body can fee her blufh, she will be confenting. In fine, tho' the Soul be never fo well fortified to hold out a Seige, yet the Body, as foon as Love's Artillery begins to play upon it, will foon beat a Parley, and make a separate Treaty for it self.

はからのはいないると

t

r

h

1

r

Thus her Punic Majesty run on, and the Lord knows when her Royal Clack would have done striking, if a Female Messenger had not come to her in the new of time, and whisper'd her in the Ear, to go to the famous Lucretia's crying out, who, it seems,

3 1 100

was got with child upon a Hay-cock by Afop the Fabulift. As foon as Queen Dido and her two pratting Companions were gone out of the room, Mr. Nokes, fays I, you have without question feen . A fop very often, therefore pray let me beg the favour of you to tell me whether he is fuch a deformed ill favourd Wight as the Historians reprefent him; for you must know we have a modern Critic of fingular bumanity near St. James's, that has been pleased in fome late Differtations upon Phalaris's Epifles, to maintain that he was a wellfhap'd handfome Gentleman; and for a proof of this, infifts much upon Afop's intriguing with his fellow-flave, the beautiful Rhodope. No, no, replies Mr. Nokes, Afop is just such a crumpled hump-shoulder'd Dog for all the world, as you fee him before Ogilby's Translation of his Fables; and let the abovementioned Grammarian. I think they call him Dr. Bentivolio, fay what he will to the contrary, 'tis even fo as I tell you. And now we are upon the Chapter of Dr. Bentivolio, about a month ago I happen'd to make merry over a Bowl of Punch With Phalaris the Sicilian Tyrant. who fwore by all that was good and facred, that he would trounce the unmannerly Slave Slave for robbing him of those Epistes, which had gone unquestion'd under his name for so many Ages: but the time is coming, said he, when I shall make this impudent Redant cry peccavi for the unworthy Treatment he has given ma: I have my Brazen Bull, Heaven he prais'd, ready for him, and as soon as he comes in to these quarters, will shut him up in it, and roast him with his own dull Youmes, and those of his dearly beloved Friends the Dutch Commentators.

1,

ry

ír

ê-

1-

/e

*

n

6

1-

à

1

į-

h

3 ı,

e

By this time we were got to the upper end of the room, when fays Mr. Nokes to me, I will thew you a most surprising fight. You must know this place, like Noab's Ark, contains Beaft's of all forts and fizes. Some have their Brains turn'd by Politicks, who except some three or four that are suffer'd to go abroad with a Keeper, are lock'd up in a large Apartment up stairs. These. Puppies rave eternally about Liberty and Property, and the Jura Populi, and are fo damn'd mischievous, that it is dangerous to venture near them. England fends more of this fort to Bedlam than all the Countries of Europe besides. Others again have their Intellects Fly-blown by Love, by the same token that most of the poor wretches that are in this doleful Predicament come out of France, Spain, Italy and fuch hot Climates. Now and then indeed. we have a filly Apprentice or fo, takes a leap from London-bridge into the Thames, or decently hangs himfelf in a Garret in his Mistresses Garters, but these Accidents happen but feldom, and besides, since Fornication has made so great a progress among us, love is observed not to operate so powerfully in England as he formerly did, when there was no relief against him but Matrimony. Some again have their Pia Mater addled by Religion, but neither are the Sots of this Species fo numerous in Britain or elfewhere, as they were in the days of yore; for the Priests of most Religions have play'd their game fo aukwardly, that not one Man in a Thousand will trust them with shuffling of the Cards.

But of all the various forts of Mad-men that come hither, the Rhimers or Verlifiers far exceed the rest in number: Most of these fellows in the other world were Mayors, or Aldermen, or Deputies of Wards, that knew nothing but the rising and falling of Stock, squeezing young Heirs, and cheating their Customers: But now the Tables are turn'd, for they eat and

18 x

re

n

t-

25 ıt

15

e

y

e

d

*

d

1

1

rink, nay, fleep and dream in Rhime. nd have a Diftick to discharge at you pon every occasion. With that he open'd he Wicket of the uppermost Door, and id me peep in. Tis impossible to describe you the furprize I was in, to fee fo any of my City acquaintance there, whom should sooner have suspected of Burglary Sacrilege than of tacking a pair of himes together: But it feems this is a udgment upon these wretches, for the averon they shew to the Muses when they re Living. The walls were lined with erses from top to bottom, and happy as the wretch that could get a bit of harcoal to express the happiness of his ancy upon the poor Plaster. The first Man faw was Sir John Peak, formerly Lord layor of London, who bluntly came up the door and asked me what was hime to Crambo; immediately Sir Thoas Pilkington popt over his Shoulder, nd pray friend, fays he, for I perceive pu are newly come from the other world, ow go the affairs of Parnassus? What w Madrigals, Epithalamiums, Sonnets, pigrams and Satyrs have you brought ith you? What pretty conceits had Mr. ttele in his last London Triumphs? what Plays

Plays have taken of later Mrs. Bracegirdle does the live fill unmarried, and pray, Sir. how doe Mr. Batterton's Lungs hold out? but now I think on't, I have a delicions Copy of Verles to shew you, upon the divine Melefinda's frying of Pancakes, only flay a minute while I flep yonder to fetch iem: He had no fooner surn'd his back but I plucked to the wicket and gave him the flip, for certainly of all the Plagues in Hell, or t'other side of it, nothing comes up to that of a confounded Repeater. Leaving these Versifying Insects to themfelves, we walked up a pair of Stairs into the upper Room, one end of which was the quarter for distracted Lovers, as the other was for the Lunatick Republicans. I just cast my eyes into Cupid's Bear-Garden, and observed that the walls were all adorned with mysterious Hieroglyphicks of Love, as hearts transfixed, and abundance of oddfashion'd battering Rams, such as young Lovers use to trace upon the Cieling of a Coffee house with the smoke of a Candle Some half a score of 'em were makingto the door, but having feen enough of thefe Impertinents in the other world, I had no great inclination to fuffer a new Persecuti on from em in this. So my Friend and I turn'd

ſ

1

f

y, ell-

on es,

to

his

ive

ues

nes

er.

m ato

vas

the

i. I

len

rn-

ve,

dd-

ing

of a die.

gto

refe

110 uti-

dI

n'd

turn'd up to the Apartment where the Republicans were lock'd up, who made fuch a Hurricane and noise, as if a Legion of Devils had been broke loofe among them. Harrington, I remember, was the most unruly of the whole pack. Thanks to my friends in London, fays he, I hear my Oceana is lately reprinted, and furbish'd with a new Dedication to those judicious and worthy Gentlemen, my Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen. You need not value yourself so much upon that, says Algernoon Sidney, for my works were publish'd there long before yours. And to were mine, crys Milton, at the expence of fome worthy Patriots, that were not afraid to publish them under a Monarchical Government. But what think you of my Memoirs, crys Ludlow, for if you talk of Histories, there's a History for you, which, for Sincerity and Truth never faw its fellow fince the Creation. Upon this the uproar begun afresh, fo thinking it high time to withdraw, I jogg'd my friend Nokes by the Elbow, and as we went down Stairs told him, that Pluto was certainly in the right on't to lock up these hot-headed Mutineers by themfelves, and allow them neither Pen, Ink, Fire, nor Candle; for should be give them leave he would only find himfelf King of Erebu, at the courtefie of his loving Subjects.

Just as we were going out of this famous Edifice, I have an odd piece of News to tell you, fays Mr. Nokes, which is, That altho we have Men of all Countries more or less here, yet there never was one Irish man in it. How comes that about, I befeech you, faid I to him? why replyes he, Madness always supposes a loss of Reason; but the Duce is in't if a man can lose that which he never possess'd in his Life. Oh your humble Servant, answer'd I, 'tis well none of our swaggering dear Joys in Govent-Garden hear you talk so, for if they did, ten to one but they would cut your Throat for this reflection upon the Intellects of their Countrey, and fend you to the Devil for the honour of St. Patrick.

When we came out into the open Air again, and had taken half a dozen turns in the neighbouring Fields, Mr. Nokes, fays I, 'tis my misfortune to come to this place without a farthing of Money in my Pocket, and Alecto confound me, if I know what course to take for my Maintenance, therefore I would desire you to put me in a way. Have no care for that, says Mr. Nokes, his

Infer-

t

P

C

to fa

to

Par

7

to th

th

ſu

th pa gio

tre

m

W

tec

us Ph

Ctc

to

U,

18

to L

or

an

d-

ut

ch

ur

ne

sr-

en

or 219 or

ir

ns

ys

Ce

et,

nat

910 ıy.

his er-

Infernal Majesty is very kind and obliging to us Players; and because we act so many different parts in the other world, as Kings. Princes, Bishops, Privy-Councellors, Beaux, Cits, Saylors, and the like, gives us leave to follow what Profession we have most a fancy to. For my part, I keep a Nicknackatory or Toy-shop, as I formerly did over against the Exchange, and turn a sweet Penny by it; for our Gallants here throw away their money after a furious rate. Now To, I think thou canst not do better than to fet up for a High German Fortune-teller, thou knowest all the Cant and Roguery of that practice to perfection, and belides halt the best Phyz in the world to carry on fuch an Affair. As for Money to furnish thee a House and set up a convenient Equipage, to buy thee a pair of Globes, a Magick Looking-glass, and all other accoutrements of that nature, thou shalt command as much as thou half occasion for. I was going to thank my Friend for fo coureous an offer, when who should pop upon us on the fudden but his Polish Majesty's Physician in Ordinary, the late famous Doctor Comor of Bowstreet; but in so wretched pickle, so tatter'd a condition that I rould hardly know him. How comes this about about noble Doctor, said I to him, what is Fortune unkind, and do the Planets frown upon Merit? I remember you were going to set up your Coach, and marry the Widow Bentley in Russel-street, just before you last distemper hurry'd you out of the world. Is it possible the learned Author of Evange hum Medicum should want Bread, or Doctor did you leave all your Hibernian considence behind you. I thought a true Irishman could have made his Fortune in any part of the Universe.

t

h

le

in

F

W

ri

y

fe

to

a

A

I

16

f

e

t

1

t

.

Ille nibil, nec me quarentem vana moratus, Sed graviter gemitus imo de pettore ducena

Mr. Haines, says he, Pluso, to say no worse of him, is very ungrateful to the Gentlemen of our Faculty, and were he not a crown'd head, I would not stick to call him a Polerone. I am sure no body of Men cultivate his Interest with more industry and Success, than we Physicians What would his Dominions be but a bare Wilderness and Solitude, if we did not daily take care to stock them with fresh Colonies? This, I can say for my self, that I did not let him lose one Patient that sell into my hands, nay rather than he should want

WN

ing Vi

可可

ge

108

an art

MA.

no he

he

to

of

n

ns.

lot

fh

ell

ld

nt

want Customers, I practifed upon my felf. But after the received Maxim of most Princes. I find he loves the Treafon and hates the Traytor; fo that no people are put to harder thifts in Hell, than the Sons of Go-Would you believe it, Mr. Haines, the immortal Dr. Willis is content to be a Flayer of dead Horses; The famous Harvey, is turn'd Higler, and you may fee him ride every morning to Market upon a panyer of Eggs; Mayern is glad to Pimo to Noblemen's Valets de Chambre; Old Gliffon fells Vinegar upon a lean foraggy Tit; Moreton is return'd to his old occupation, and preaches in a little Conventicle you can hardly fwing a Cat round in Lower fells Penny Prayer-Books all the week; and curis an Amen in a Meeting-house on Sundays Needbam in conjunction with Captain Dawfon is Bully to a Bordello, and the celebrated Sydenbam empties Olofe-Rools. As for my felf, I am fometimes a small retainer to a Billiard Table, and fometimes when the Master on't is fick, carn a penny by a Whimfey Board. I lie with a Linkman upon a flock bed in a Garret, and have not feen a clean thirt upon my back, fince I came into this curfed Countrey. By my troth, faid I, I am forry to hear matters

f

b

ſ

afi

I

E

V

go so seurvily with you, but pluck up a good heart, for when the times are work they must certainly mend. But pray Doctor before you go any further, fatisfie me what Church you died a Member of, for we had the Devil and all to do about you when you were gone. The Parfon of St. Giles's stood out stiffly that you dyed a found Protestant, but all your Countrymen fwore thou didft troop off like a good Catholick. Why really 70, cry'd the Doctor, to deal plainly with you, I don't know well what Religion I dy'd in, but if I dy'd in any, as Physicians you know, feldom do, it was as I take it that of the Church of Eugland. I remember indeed, when I grew light headed, and the Bed, Room, and every thing began to turn round with me, that a foster-brother of mine, an Irish Priest, offered me the civility of Extreme Unction; and I, that knew I had a long journey to go, thought it would not be amis to have my Boots well liquor'd before hand, tho after all, for any good it did me, he might as well have rub'd my Posteriors with a Brick-bat. This is all I remember of the matter, but what fignifies it to the bufiness we were talking of? In thort 70, if thou coulds put me in a way to live, I should be exceedexceedingly beholding to thee. Doctor, cry'd I, if you will come to me a Week hence, fomething may be done, for I intend to build me a Stage in one of the largest Piazza's of this City, take me a fine House, and set up my old Trade of Fortune-telling; and as I shall have occasion now and then for some understrapper to draw Teeth for me, or to be my Toad-eater upon the Stage, if you will accept of so mean an Employment, besides my old Cloaths, which will be something, I'll give you Meat, Drink, Washing and Lodging, and Four Marks per annum.

n

of

d

r.

1

I am fensible, Gentlemen, that I have tired your Patience with a long tedious Letter, but not knowing when I should find so convenient an opportunity to fend another, I refolved to give you a full account in this, of all the memorable things that fell within the compass of my observation, during my short residence in this Country. At prefent, thanks to my kind Stars, I live very comfortably, I keep my brace of Geldings and half a dozen Servants; my House is a well furnish'd as most in this populous City, and to tell you what prodigious numbers of Persons of all Ages, Sexes and Conditions flock daily to me to have their Fortunes told told, 'twould hardly find belief with you. If the Celeftial Phanomenas deceive me not, and there is any truth in the Conjunction of Mercury and Lana, I shall in a short time rout all the pretenders to Aftrology, who combine to ruine my Reputation and Practice, but without effect; for this opposition has rather increased my Friends at Court than leffen'd them. I am promifed to be Maitre des langues to the young Prince of Acheron, ( fo we call the Heir Apparent to these subterranean Dominions;) and Proferpine's Gamariera Major affured me t'other Morning, I should have the honout of teaching the beautiful Princels Fuscama villa, his Sifter, to dance. Once more, Gentlemen, I beg your excuse for this Prolix Epistle, and hopeing you will order one of your fraternitty to fend me the News of your upper World, I remain

Your most obliged and most obedient Servant, Jo- Haines.

Dec. 21. 1701.

AN

ANSWER.

TO

Mr. Joseph Haines High German Aftrologer, at the Sign of the Utinal and Cassiopea's Chair in Brandipolis upon Phlegethon.

Worthy Str.

E received your Letter, dated Dec.

21. 1701. and read it yesterday in a full Assembly at Wills. The whole Company lik'd it exceedingly, and return you their thanks for the ample and satisfactory account you have given them of Plato's Dominions, from which we have had little or no News, however it has happen'd, since the famous Don Quevedo had the curiosity to travel thither.

Whereas you defire us by way of Exchange to furnish you with some of the most memorable Transactions that have lately fallen out in this part of the Globe, we willingly comply with your proposal; and are proud of any opportunity to shew

D 2 Mr.

Mr. Haines, how much we respect and value him.

Imprimis, Will's Coffee house, Mr. Haines, is much in the same condition as when you left it, and as a worthy Gentleman has lately distributed them into their proper We have four forts of Persons that refort hither : First, Such as are Beaux and no Wits, and these are easie to be known by their full Periwigs and empty Skulls. Secondly, Such as are Wits and no Beaux, and these, not to talk of their outfides, are distinguished by censuring the ill tafte of the Age, and railing at one an-Thirdly, Such as are neither Wits nor Beaux, I mean, your grave plodding Politicians that come to us every night piping hot from the Parliament House, and finish Treaties that were never thought of, and end Wars before they are begun. And Fourthly, Such as are both Wits and Beaux, to whose Persons as well as Merits you can be no stranger.

In the next place, The Play-house stands exactly where it did. Mr. Rich finds some trouble in managing his mutinous Subjects, but 'tis no more than what Princes must expect to find in a mixt Monarchy, as we take the Play-house to be. The Actors jog on after the old merry rate, and the Women drink and intrigue. Mr. Glineb of Barnet, with his pack of Dogs and Organ, comes now and then to their relief; and your friend Mr. Fevon wou'd hang himself to fee how much the famous Mr. Harvey exceeds him in the Ladder-dance.

2

We have had an Inundation of Plays lately, and one of them by a great Miracle made a shift to hold out a full Fortnight. The generality either are troubled with Convulsion fits, and dye the first day of the representation, or by meer dint of act. ing hold out to the third, which is like a Confumptive Man's living by Cordials, or else dye a violent Death, and are interr'd with the Solemnity of Cat-calls. A merry Virtuolo, who makes one of the Congregation de propagando ingenio, designs to pubish a weekly Bill for the use of the Two Theatres, in imitation of that publish'd by the Parish Clerks, and faithfully to set down what Distemper every New Play dves of.

If the Author of a Play strains hard for Wit, and it dribl's drop by drop from him, he fays 'tis troubled with a Strangury. If 'tis Vicious in the design and performance, and dull throughout, he intends to

D 3 give give out in his Bill that it dy'd by a knock in the Cradle, if it miscarries for want of fine Scenes and due Acting, why then, he says, 'tis starv'd at Nurse, if it expires the first or second day, he reckons it among the Abortives: And lastly, if 'tis damn'd for the seebleness of its Satyr, he fays it dies in breeding of Teeth.

As our Wit, generally speaking, is debauch'd, so our Wine, the Parent of it is sophisticated all over the Town; and as we never had more Plays in the Two Houses, and more Wine in the City than at present: so we were never encumber'd with worse of the two sorts than now. As for the latter, we sell that for Claret which has not a drop of the juice of the Grape in it, but is down-right Cider. The Corruption does not stop short here, but our Cider instead of Apples is made of Turnips. Who knows where the chest will conclude? perhaps the next Generation will debauch our very Turnips.

'Tis well, Mr. Haines, you died when you did; for that unhappy place, where you have so often exerted your Talent, I mean. Smithfield, has fallen under the City Magistrate's displeasure; so that now St. George and the Dragon, the Trojan Horse,

and

E

1

1

and Bateman's Ghost, the Prodigal Son, and Jephtha's Daughter, in fhort, all the Drolls of Glorious Memory, are routed, defeated and fent to Grafs, without any hopes of a reprieve.

Next to Plays, we have been over-run in these times of publick Ferment and Difiraction, with certain wicked things cal led Pamphlets; and fome Scriblers that shall be nameless, have writ Pro and Gon upon the fame Subject at least fix times fince last Spring.

Both Nations are at a bay, and like two Bull Dogs fnarl at one another, yet have not thought fit, as yet, to come to achual Blows. What the Eventswill be, we cannot prophelie at this distance, but every little Corporation in the Kingdom has laid Lewis le Grand upon his back, and as good as call'd him perjur'd Knave and Villein. However, 'tis the hardest case in the world if we miscarry; our Grubstrees Pamphlereers advise the Shires and Boroughs wher fort of Members to chuse: The Shires and Bo roughs advise their Representatives, what course to steer in Parliament, and the Senators no doubt on't will advise his Majefty what Ministers to rely on, and how to behave himself in this present Conjun-Aure, cture. Thus Advice, you fee, like Malt-Tickets, circulates plentifully about the Kingdom. So that if we fail in our defigns after all, the wicked can never fay 'twas for want of Advice. We forgot to tell you, Mr. Haines, that fince you left this Upper World your Life has been written by a Brother Player, who pretends he received all his Memoirs from your own Mouth a little before you made a leap into the Dark; and really you are beholding to the fellow, for he makes you a Master of Arts at the University, tho' you never took a Degree there. That, and a Thousand stories of other People he has father'd upon you, and the truth on't is, the adventures of thy Life, if truly fet down, are so Romantick, that few besides thy acquaintance would be able to distinguish between the History and the Fable. But let not this disturb the serenity of your Soul, Mr. Haines, for after this rate the Lives of all Illustrious Persons, whether Ancient or Modern have been written. This, Mr. Haines, is all we have to communicate to you at prefent, fo we conclude with subscribing our selves,

From Will's in Covent-Garden, Fan. 10, 1701. Your most Humble Servants. Sebastian Freeman, Registrarius Nomine Societatis. PERKIN

PERKIN WARBECK

To the Illustrious

Prince of WALES.

By another Hand.

Dear Coufin Sham,

We had a fierce debate here on the 13th. passuo, between my Lord Fitz-Walter, Sir Simon Mountford, Sir William Stanly, and my self; whether by a parity of Reason, England might not once more have the same Cardtrump'd up upon 'em: in a word we were consulting your affairs, and they were most of 'em of opinion, that there cou'd not be any good success expected from your Personal Endowments, and Princely Qualifications. For you must give me leave to tell you, Coz, that I was a smart Child, and a smock-fac'd Youth: I had not the good luck to kill a wild Boar at your years, but I could sit the great Horse before I could go alone. I had all the advantages of Briends that you have, and the interest of my good Aunt the Dutchels of Burgunds, let me tell you, was as capable of feconding me, as the House of Modena is you: Nay, I had the Scotch on my fide, affiftance from Ireland, and not without a pasty, you fee, even in England too. But the English Mob is the most giddy, wretched, senceless Mob of all the Moba in the warld. How they crowded in to me at Whitefand-bay, and in their first fury fought well enough before Exeter: But when they heard of an Army coming against 'em, the scoundrel run away and left me: all my blooming hopes, and fancied Kingdoms dwindle away in a fmall Sanctuary, that I exchanged for a Prison, and brought my Habeas Govpur, and to turn'd my felf over to Tyburn, and am now in the Rules of Acheron. Our Kiniman Lambert Symnel and I drank your health t'other morning in a curious Cup of Siya, and the arch fawcy Rogue, faid, how he shou'd laugh to see his Brother of Wales fucceed him in his great Employment at Courts continually turning a Spit would harden and inure you, and so prepare you for thele fmosky and warmer Climates; not but that there is matter of Speculation blem of the Vicilitude of Humane Affairs.

But, before I take my leave good Coulin, I must offer a little of my advice to you, if it be possible any ways to meliorate your destiny, and that is, That you wou'd make a Campaign or two in staly: Marshal Villexon will show you what it is to be well beaten, and till then, you'll never be a great General. But Charon is just Landing a multicude of French from those parts, I must go see what News and inform my self farther of your welfare and prosperity. Adjen.

My Lord,

On the 25th passuo, there happen'd a very considerable dispute in the Delphick Vale, the Literati had hard words, and it was fear'd by Plate himself that the angry shades wou'd have come to somewhat worse. It may be you in those grosser Regions, do not believe that we here below lose nothing of our selves by Death, but the Terrene part: nay the very Soul it self retains some of those unhappy impressions is receiv'd from Flesh and and Blood. Here Cefer bites his Thumbs when Alexander walks by, frowns upon Bruss, and blushes when we talk of King William : the great Gustavus Adolphus only withes himfelf upon Earth again to ferve a Captain under him : Threnne Wants to be in Italy, and Wallefteen affures him that Prince Eugene of Savay would have had the fame alorious Success against him, as Gatinat and Fillerey. Hannibal own'd that his march o ver, or rather through the Alpes, was not to honourable an Action as the Prince's; and the Arts and Experience may make a General: yet, Nature only can form an Engene. Surly Charon has been fo plagu'd with the French from those parts, that he has been forc'd to leave whole shoals of 'em behind: once they crowded in fo fast they had almost overset the Boat, and still as they pres'd forward, cry'd Vanban, Vanban: but the old Gentleman, unwilling to hazard himfelf, pulh'd a multitude of 'em back with his Sculls, and fo put off----However, this is not the business I design'd to mention: fomething more particular, and of more weighty consequence is the occasion of this Letter. The real Witts refus'd to take notice of Prince Arthur and King Arthur, who were walking hand in hand:

hand, fome shallow pated Versificators wou'd resent the indignity put upon 'em, ind spit whole Pages of Blackmore at 'em : This was very difgusting to the Literation and it is inconceivable what a horrid flench hey made with uttering those Verses. The nore robust Spirits were almost cheak'd; you may then judge what condition the lelicate and nice Stomachs of the Men of Wit were in: but while every one was vishing for their Clothes of Humanity gain to be les sensible of this execrable mell, a worthy Literate came in from Lonien, who being inform'd of the occasion f that terrible inconveniency, repeated a ew commendatory Verfes, and immedirely the Air grew tolerable, and the Brimone burnt ferene. Job himfelf did conis, that had he been in the Flesh again, e was terribly affraid he shou'd have murer'd the Doctor: when a merry Spirit anding at his Elbow, faid, It was no fuch vonderful thing to have a S'rreverence f a Man be mine Arle of a Poet. But baron waits, I must conclude, and as onveniency ferves, thall inform you of hat passes in these gloomy Regions.

LETTER

Abraham Comles

Mr. Abraham Cowley to the Covent-Garden Society. o hi is

Ao

H

ab

m ot

ne

Witingstop

By another Hand.

THE shatter'd Laurels of the Ache rontic Walks, owe not fo much of their misfortune to the shallowness of Aganippe as to the ungenerous procedure of the Sons of Helicon. Either Hill of Parnassus is fortifi'd, and what with ancient and modern Wit, even you, Gentlemen, of real parts, have none of you that appliante, which in a thousand occasions you have fo justly merited. These melancholy reflects ons, Gentlemen, add a new thickness to the gloomy Sulphur, and we cannot enjoy a perfect quiet here, feeing there is fo great and so dangerous a mifunderstanding between you on the other fide of Phlegethon. Why shou'd there be so many pointed Saryrs satyrs against one another, why should you show the very Blockheads themselves where you Men of Sence are not quite fuch as you would path upon the world for. Your invidious Orieldins only thew others where you are vulnerable, and give an argument under your own hand against your own felves. There is a Churity in concealing faults, but to make them more obvious, has a double ill nature in it. Cann't Arthur be a worthless Poem, but a Squadron of Poets must tell all the world fo. Is there Honour in rumaging a Dunghil, or telling the Neighbours where there is one. The Bee gathers honey from every flower, 'tis the Beetles that delight in Horse-dung. Is it not much more preferable to make formething ones felf ufeful to mankind, than only to shew wherein another is a Coxcomb. Partizans in Wit never do well: They only lay the Countrey waste, they gratifie their own private Spleen it may be, but they do not help the pubick. Unite your Forces, Gentlemen, against Ignorance that growing and powerful Enemy to you and us: Erect Triumphal Arches to one another, and do not enviously pull down, what others are endeavouring to fet up. Your mutual quarrels have Shaken

f

A

7

t

いっちゃちゃち

shaken the very soundation of Wit and good Humour. 'Tis the Faction a Man is of, determines what he is, not his Learning and Parts; we cannot hear, Gentlemen, of these intestine Dissentions without a great concern and displeasure: and must take the liberty to tell you, we apprehend the Muses may shortly be reduced to the necessity of shutting up the Delphic Library, and write upon the doors, ruit ips suis Roma viribus.

V

o wife b

it

n

B

hi

M

to

W

B

te

M

in

FROM

CHARON

To the most Illustrious and High-born

FACK KETCH, Efq.

Most worthy Kinsman and Benefactor,

I Cannot but with the last degree of forrow and anguish, inform you of our present wretched condition; we have even tired our Palms and our Ribs at Slappatypouch; and if it had not been for some Gentlemen, that came from the Coasts of Italy

Italy. I had almost forgot to handle my Sculls. There came a fneaking Goast Here, fome a day, or two, or three ago, and he furpris'd us with an account (I may call it indeed a terrible one) that you have had a Maiden Sellion in your Metropolis. Was it then possible that Newgate should be without a Rogue, or our Patron the most worshipful Sir senceless L--- without an Execution in his Mouth. You talk of having hang'd Tiburn in mourning: why Cousin Ketch upon my fincerity, and for fear you shou'd question my Veracity; by the thickest mud in Acheron, I swear, it is almost high time that my Boat was in mourning: what He upon the Bench and no man hang'd! well, as affuredly as the Blood of the Horses rise up in Judgment against our Friend Whitney, this Maiden Session shall rife up in Judgment against him. Such shoals I have had from time to time, mere facrifices to his Avarice or his Malice, that unless his Conscience begins to fly in his Face, I cannot comprehend what shou'd occasion this calm at the Old Baily. For, give me leave, dear Cousin, to tell you, that formerly he never fav'd any Man for his Money, but he hang'd another in his room; trading was then pretty good, good, Cousin, and there was a Penny to be got; but indeed on your side it is very dull: Nay in Flanders too, that fertile foil of Blood and Wounds, there has not one Leg nor one Arm been brought us all this Pre'thee be you Charos, and let me be Recorder, I'll warrant you fomewhat more to do.

King FAMES the IIt LETTER To LEWIS the XIV".

By another Hand

Dear Royal Brother and Confin,

Ho' I have traverst the vast Abyss that lies betwixt us, and am now at some hundred Millions of Leagues distance from you, yet do Istill remember the Promise I made you before my departure, to fend you an account of my Journey hither. Know then that all the stories you hear of the Mansions of the Dead, are meer Flim-flams, invented by the Crafty, to terrifie and manage the Weak. Here's no fuch thing as Hell or Purgatory; no Lakes of Fire and Brimftone; no Cloven footed Devils : no Land of Durk nels. This Place is wonderfully well lighted by a never-decaying Effulgence, which flows from the Almighty; and the Pleafures we Dead enjoy, and the Torments we endure, confift in a full and clear view of our past Actions, whether good or bad; and in being in fuch or fuch Company, as is allotted us. For my part, I am continually tormented with the Thoughts of having lost Three Goodly Kingdoms by my. Infatuation and Biggotry; and to aggravate my Pain, Iam quarter'd with my honour'd Royal Father Charles I. My honest wellmeaning Brother Charles III and the Subtle Machiavel; the First reproaches me ever and anon, with my not having made better use of his dreadful Example, the Second, with having despis'd his wholesom Advice; and the Third, with having mifapply'd his Maxims, through the wrong fuggestions of my Father Confessor. Oh! that I had had as little Religion as your felf. or as S - M - R - H - and fome other of my Ministers! and my Succeffors! Then might I have reign'd with Honour

Honour and in Plenty over a Nation, which is ever Loyal and Faithful to a Prince who is tender of their Laws and Liberties and peacefully refign'd my Crown to my lawfully begotten Son, whereas through the delugions of Priest-craft, and the fond Infinuations of a bigotted Wife, I endervour'd to establish the Superstitions of Popery, and the fatal Maxims of a Despotick, Dispensing Power, upon the Ruins of the Protestant Religion, and of the Fundamental Laws of a Free People, which at last, concluded with my Abdication and Exile. I am forry you have deviated from your wonted custom of breaking your Word, and that you have punctually observ'd the Promise you made me at my dying Bed, of acknowledging my dear Son as King of Great Britain; for I fear my quondam Subjects, who love to contradict you in every thing, will from thence take an occasion to abjure him for ever; whereas had you difown'd him, they would perhaps have acknowledg'd him in meer spite. Cardinal Richelieu, who visits me often, professes still a great deal of Zeal and Affection for your Government, but is extremely concern'd at the wrong Measures you take to arrive at Universal Monarchy. He has defir'd fired me to advise you to keep to the old method he chalk'd out for you, which is to trust more to your Gold, than to your Arms. I cannot but think he is in the right on't, confidering the wonderful fuccess the first has lately had with the Archbishop of Cologn, and some other German and Italian Princes, and the fmall progress your Armies have made in the Milaneze. But the wholesomness of his advice is yet better justifi'd by your dealings with the English, whom you know, you have always found more easily brib'd than bullied. Therefore, as you tender the Grandeur of your Monarchy, and the Interest of my dear Son, instead of raising new Forces, and fitting out Fleets, be fure to fend a Cart-load of your new-coin'd Lewis d'Ors into England, in order to divide the Nation, and fer the Whigs and Tories together by the Ears: But take care you trust your Money in the hands of a Person that knows how to distribute it, to more advantage than either Count T.... d or P.....n; who, as I'm told, have lavish'd away your favours all at once upon infatiable Cormorants, and extravagant Gamesters and Spend-thrifts. Tis true by their Assistance, and the unwearied Diligence of my Loyal Jacobites.

you have made a shift to get the Old Ministry discarded, and to retard the Grand Alliance, but let me tell you, unless you Fee 'em afresh, they will certainly leave you in the lurch at the next Sellions, for Ingratitude and Corruption do always go together, Therefore to keep those Mercenary Rogues to their Behaviour, and in perpetual dependance, you must feed em with small Portions, as Weekly, or Monthly Allowances. Above all, bid your Agents take heed how they deal with a certain indefatigable Writer, who as long as your Gold tras lasted, has been very useful to our Cause, and boldly defeated the dangerous Counsels of the Whigs ; your implacable Enemies; but who, upon the first withdrawing of your Bounty, will infalliby turn Cat in Pan, and write for the House of Austria.

I could give you more Instructions in Relation to England, but not knowing whether they would be taken in good part, I forbear em for the present. Pray, comfort my Dear Spouse with a Royal Kifs, and tell her, I wait her coming with Impatience. Bid my beloved Son not despair of ascending my Throne, that is, provided he shakes off the Petters of the Romish Superstition; let him not despond upon account

count of my unfaithful Servant Fuller's Evidence against his Legitimacy, for the Depo-sitions of my Nobility which are still upon Record in the Chancery, will easily dea feat that Perjur'd Fellows pretended Proof, with all honest considering Men. And as for the numerous Addresses, which, I hear, are daily presented to my Successor against him, he may find as many in my frong Box, which were presented to me in his Favour, both before and after his Birth. The last Courier brought us News of a pretended Miracle wrought by my Body at the Benedickine's Church: I earnestly delire you to disabufe the World, and keep the Impostor from getting Ground; for how is it possible I should cure Eye Fistula's, now I am Dead, that could not ease my felf of a troublesome Corn in my Toe when living? My Service to all our Friends and Acquaintance; and be affur'd that all the Lethean Waters shall never wash away from my Memory, the great Services I have received at your hands, in the other World; nor the inviolable Affection which makes me subscribe my felf, Dear, Royal Brother and Coufin. Your most obliged Friend.

JAMES Rexi

LEWIS

LEWIS the XIV

ANSWER

To King JAMES the II'.

Most Beloved Royal Brother, and Coufin,

Ours I receiv'd this Morning, and no fooner cast my Eyes upon the Superscription, but I guest it to be written by one of my Fellow Kings by the Scrawl and Ill Spelling. I am glad your account of the other World, agrees so well with the Thoughts I always entertain'd about it. For, between Friends, I never believ'd the Stories the Priests tell us of Hell, and Purgatory. Ambition has ever been my Religion; and my Grandeur the only Deity to which I have paid my Adorations. have perfecuted the Protestants of my Kingdom, 'twas not because I thought their Perswasion worse than the Romish, but because I look'd upon 'em as a sort of dangerous Antimonarchical People, who, as they had fix'd the Crown upon my Head, fo they might as easily take it off, to serve their their own Party, and because by that means, I secur'd the Jesuits, who must be own'd the best supporters of Arbitrary Power. Nay to tell you the Truth, my defign in making you, by my Emissaries, a stickler for Popery, was only to create ealousies betwixt you and your People, that fo you might stand in need of my Affiftance, and be Tributary to my Power. I am forry you are in the Company of the Three Persons you mention. To get rid of their Teazing, and Reproaching Converation, I advise you to propose a match at Whisk, and if by casting Knaves you can out get Machiavil on your side, I'm sure ou'll get the better of the other Two. since you mention my owning the Prince our Son as King of great Britain, I must eeds tell you, that neither he nor you, ave reason to be beholden to me for it: for what I did, was not to keep my Pronise to you, but only to serve my own Ends, consider'd, that an Alliance being made etween the English, the Emperour and the Dutch, in order to reduce my Exorbitant ower; a War must inevitably follow. low, I suppose, that after two or three ears Fighting, my Finances will be pretty ear exhausted, and that I shall be forc'd

8

1

e

O

ri

10

P

al

re

m

y

VC

M

Cal

be

be po

The

car

to condescend to give Peace to Europe. as I did Four Years ago. The Emperour. I reckon, will be brought to Sign and Seal upon reasonable Terms, and be contented with having some small thare in the Spanish Monarchy, as will the Dutch also with a Barrier in Flanders. These Two less confiderable Enemies being quieted, how shall I pacifie those I fear most, I mean, the Eng. life? Why, by turning your dear Son out of my Kingdom, as I formerly did you and your Brother. Not that I will wholly abandon him neither: No, You may rell affured, that I will re-espouse his Quarrel, as foon as I shall find an opportunity to make him instrumental to the advance ment of my Greatness. I am oblig'd to Cardinal Richelieu for the concern he Thow for the Honour of France, and will not fail to make use of his Advice, as far as my running Cash will let me. But I am some what puzzled how to manage Matters in England at the next Sellion; for my Agent P.....n, by taking his leave in a publick Tavern of Three of our best Friends has render'd them fuspected to the Nation, and confequently useless to me. I wish you could direct me to some trulty Facobite in England, to distribute my Bribes; for I find find my own Subjects unqualified for that Office, and early bubbled by the thurp Mer-cenary English. However I will not fo much depend upon my Lewis d'Ors, as to disband my Armies, and lay up my Fleets, as you and Cardinal Richelien feem to counfel me to do. I suppose you have no oelfe you would not entertain to despicable an Opinion of my Arms in Italy. I fend you here enclosed a collection of the Gazems Printed this Year in my good City of Paris, whereby you will find upon a right Computation, that the Germans have 10st Ten men to One of the Confederates. Pray fail not fending me by the next Post, all the instructions you can think of, in relation to England: For the you made more falle steps in this World than any of your Predecessors, yet I find by your Letter, you have wonderfully improved your Politicks by the Conversation of Machiavil and Richelieu. I have communicated your Letter to your dear Spoule and beloved Son, who cannot be perswaded to believe it came from you; not thinking it possible that so Religious a Man, whilst living, should turn Libertine after his death. I cannot with fafety comply with your defire

y - n

es id

11

in

10 of disabusing the World concerning the miraculous Cure pretended to be wrought by your Body at the Benedictine's Church. Such Pious Frauds being the main prop of the Popish Religion, as this is of my Sovereign Authority. Your Son may hope to be one day feated on your Throne, not by turning Protestant ( to which he is entirely averse, and which I shall be fure to prevent) but by the SUPERIORITT of my Arms, and the EXTENSIVE NESS of my POWER, after I shall have fix'd my Son in the Monarchy of Spain. Madam Maintenon desires to be remembred to you; she writes by this Post to Mr. Scarron her former Husband, to defire him to wait on you, and endeavour to divert your Melancholy Thoughts by reading to you the third part of his Comical Romance, which, we are inform'd, he has lately written for the entertainment of the Dead. I remain as faithfully as ever,

Dear Royal Brother and Goufin,

Your affectionate Friend.

LEWIS Rex.

FROM

Č

th

m

or de

of wl

Vi

Cal

JULIAN

Late Secretary of the Mufes, to

WILL. PIERRE Of Lincolns-Inn Fields Play-house.

Pandamonium the Sthofthe Month of Beelzebub.

By another Hand.

Worthy and right well-beloved,

That you may not wonder at an Address from Hell, or be scandalized at the Correspondence, I must let you know first that by the uncertainty of the Road, and the forgetfulness of my old acquaintance all my former Letters are either miscarried, or have been neglected by my Correspondents, who tho' they were fond enough of my Scandal, nay courted my Favours, when living, now I am past gratifying their Vices, like true great Men, they think no more of me. The conscious Tub-Tavern can witness, and my Berry-street Apartment hei

he

Bo

we Hy

the

a ]

al

na

to

W

Lo

M

I

La

fer

CO

I

1

te

b

ri

8

al

S

ment testifie the folicitations I have had. for the first Copy of a new Lampoon, from the greatest Lords of the Court , tho their own folly and their Wives Vices were the Subject. My Person was so sacred that the terrible Scan man had no Terrors for me. whose Business was sopublick and souseful as conveying about the Faults of the Great and the Fair: For in my Books the Lord was shown a Knave or Fool, tho his Power defended the former, and his Pride would not see the latter. The antiquated Coquet was told of her Age and Ugliness, tho her Vanity plac'd her in the first row in the King's Box at the Play-house: and in the view of the Congregation at St. Jamer's Church. The precise Countess that would be scandaliz'd at a double entendre was thewn, betwixt a pair of Sheets with a well made Footman in spight of her Quality and Conjugal Vow. The formel Statesman that set up for Wisdom and Honesty was exposid; as a dull Tool, and yet a Knave; losing at Play his own Reve nue, and the Bribes incident to his Poll belides enjoying the infamy of a poor and fruitless Knavery, without any concern. The demure Lady, that wou'd fcarce fip off the Glass in Company, carousing her her Bottles in private of cool Nanes too, fometimes to correct the Crudities of her last nights Debauch. In short, in my Books were feen Men and Women as they were, not as they wou'd feem, frip'd of their Hypocrifie, and spoil'd of the Fig-leaves of their Quality. A Knave was call da Knave, a Fool a Fool, a Jilt a Jilt, and a Whore a Whore. And the Love of Scandal and native Malice that Men and Women have to one another, made me in such request when alive, that I was admitted to the Lord's Closet, when a Man of Letters and Merit wou'd be thrust out of doors. I was as familiar with the Ladies, as their Lap-dogs; for to them I did often good fervices, under pretence of a Lampoon, I conveying a Billet donx, and so whilst I expos'd their past Vices in the present, I promoted matter for the next Lampoon. After all these Services, believe me. Sir, I was not sooner dead than forgotten; I have writ many Letters to the brib'd Courtiers of their fore-runners arrival in these parts, but not one word of answer. I sent word to my Lord Squeezall, that his good Friend Sir Parcimony Spare-all was newly arriv'd, and clap'd into the Bilboes for a Fool as well as Knave, that stary'd himself to supply the prodigality of his Heirs. But he despites good Counsel, I hear, and starves both himself and his Children to raise them Portions. I writ another Letter to my Lady Man Shim, that virtuous Mrs. Vizor was brought in here, and made Shroving Fritters for the hackney Devils, for her unnatural Luss; but Sue Frousie that came hither the other day, affures me, That the either received not my Letter, or at least took no notice of it; for that the went on in her old road, and had brought her Vice almost into fashion, and that the practical Vices of the Town boaded an eternal breach betwixt the Sexes, while each confin'd it felf to the same Sex, and so threatned a cessation of Commerce in Propagation betwixt 'em. In short, Sir, I have tyr'd my felf with Advices to my quondam Acquaintance, and that should take away your furprize at my fending to you, who must be honest, because you are so poor, and a Man of Merit, because you never were. promoted, for your World of the Theatre is the true Picture of the greater World, where Honesty and Merit starve, while Knavery and Impudence get favour from all Men. For you, Sir, if I mistake not, are one of the most

elf

in

most ancient of his Majesty's Servants, under the denomination of a Player, and yet cannot advance above the delivering a fcurvy Message, which the strutting Leaders of your House wou'd do much more aukardly, and by confequence 'tis the partielity of them or the Town that have kept you in this low Post all this while: This perswades me that from you I may hope a true and fincere Account of things, and how matters are now carry'd above, for Lying, Hypocrifie and Compliment fo take up all that tafte of Fortunes favour, that there is scarce any credit to be given to their Narrations; for either out of Favour or Malice they give a false face to Histories, and misrepresent mankind to that abominable degree, that the best History is not much better than a probable Romance; and Quintus Gartius, and Calprenede are diftinguish'd more by their Language than Sin-Thus much by shewing the motive of my writing to you, to take away your furprife, the before I pals, to remove the Shame of fuch a Correspondence, I must tell you, that your station qualifying you for a right Information of the Scandal of the Town, I hope you will not fail to answer my expectation, behind your Scenes

Scenes come all the young Wits, and all the young and old Beaux, both Animals of Malice, and wou'd no more conceal any Womans Frailty or any Man's Folly, than they will own any Man's Sence, or any Womans Honesty.

I know that Hell lies under some disadvantages in the opinion even of those who are Industrious enough to secure themfelves a retreat here. They play the Devil among you, and yet are asham'd of their Master, and rail at his abode as much as if they had no right to the Inheritance. The Mifer whofe daily Toils and nightly Cares and Study is how to oppress the Poor, cheat, or over-reach his Neighbour; to betray the Trusts his Hypocrisie procur'd, and in fhort, to break all the positive Laws of Morality, crys out, oh! Diabolicall at a poor harmlest double meaning in a Play, and bleffes himfelf that he is not one of the ungodly, rails at Hell and the Devil all the while he is riding Poft to em. The holy Sifter that facrifices in the Righteousness of her Spirit, the reputation of fome of her Acquaintance or other every day, that Cuckolds her Husband in the fear of the Lord with one of the Elect, rails at the Whore of Babylon, and Lawn-fleeves as the diabolical invention of Lacifer, the the is laying up provisions here for a long abode in these shades of reverend Sathan. whom the to much all her life declaims against; The Lawyer, that has watch'd whole Nights, and bawl'd away whole Days in bad Caufes, for good Gold; that never car'd how crasse his Clients Title was if his bags were full; that has made a hundred Conveyances with flaws to beget Law-fuits, and litigious Broils, when he's with the Devil, has the detellation of Hell and the Devil in his Mouth, all the while that the love of them fills his whole heart, and fo through the rest of our falle Brothers whose Mouths belye their Minds, and fix an Infamy on what they most purfue.

This is what may make you afham'd of my Correspondence, but when you will reflect on what good Company we keep here, you will think it more an honour than differace, for our Company here is chiefly compos'd of Princes, great Lords, modern Statesmen, Courtlers, Lawyers, Judges, Doctors of Divinity, and Doctors of the Civil Law, Beaux, Ladies of Beauty and Quality, Wits of Title, Men of noise Honour, Gifted Brothers, boasters of the Spirit,

Spirit, supply'd 'em from hence: In thort, all that make most noise against us, which will, I hope, satisfie you so far, as to make me happy in a speedy Answer, which will oblige

Your very humble and Infernal Servant, Julian.

WILL. PIERRE'S ANSWER

Lincolns-Inn Fields, Novem. 5. 1701. Behind the Scenes.

By the fame Hand.

Worthy Sir of venerable memory.

Yours I received, and have been fo far from being surprized at, or asham'd of your Correspondence, that the first I desired, and the latter was transported with, my Mind has been long burden'd, and I wanted such a Correspondent to disclose my grievances to, for there is no Man on Earth that wou'd give me the hearing, for Poverty makes a Man

Man of the best parts a Jest, and every Fool with a Feather in his Cap, can overlook a Man of Merit in Rags. Wit from one out at heels founds like Non-fenfe in the Ear of a gay Fop, that knows no other furniture of a Head, but a full Wig, and he that would fplit himfelf with the half tell of a Lord he wou'd flatter, is deaf to the best thing from the mouth of a poor Fellow he cann't get by. Thefe Confiderations, Sir, have made me proud of this occasion of replying to your obliging Letter in the manner you defire. For as Scandal was your occupation here above, you like Vintners and Bawds living on the Sins of the Times, to a thorr impartial account of the present sate of Iniquity and Folly, cannot be disagreeable to you.

Poetry was the Vehicle that conveyed all your Scandal to the Town, and I being conversant about the skirts of that Art, my scandal must dwell chiefly thereabout, not omitting that scantling of general Scandal of the Town, that is come to my knowledge: for you must know since your death, and your Successor Summerton's madness, Lampoon has felt a very sensible decay, and seldem is there any attempt at it, and when there is, 'tis very heavy and dull, cursed

3

Verfe or worfe Profe: So gone is the brisk Spirit of Verie that used to watch the Follies and Vices of the Men and Women of Figure, that they cou'd not flart now ones fafter than Lampoons exposed them. This difficiency of Satyr is not from a furcity of Vices, which abound more than ever, or Follies more numerous than in your time, but from a meer impotence of Malice, which the as general as ever, confines it felf to discourse, and railing is it's pernost effort, defaming over one Bottle those they cares over another: Every Man ebutes his Friend behind his back, and no Man ever takes notice of it, but does the fame in his turn; and for fincerity, Women have as much. The Women grow greater Hypocrites than ever, lewder in their Chamber practice, and more formal in publick, they rail at the Vices they induige; they forfake publick Diversions, as Plays, &c. to gain the reputation of Victhe, to give a greater loofe to the Dome-Hick Divertions of a Bottle and Gallant, and Hypocrific heightens their Pleafures. Mode now is not as of old in all amorous encounters every Man to his Woman, but like Nuns in a Cloister, every Female has her privado of her own Sex, and the honester honester part of Men must either fall in with the modifh Vice or live Chaftly, to both which I find a great many extreamly averse There has a terrible Enemy arose to the Stage, an abdicated Divine, who when he had eleaped the Pillory for Sedition and reforming the State, fet up for the Reformation of the Stage, the Event was ad rable, Fanaticks prefented the Non-juror, and Mifers and Extortioners gave him bountiful Rewards; one grave Citizen that had found his Character too often on the Stage, and famous for the ruine of fome hundreds of poor under Tradefmens Families, laid out Threefcore Pound in the Impression to distribute among the Saints, that are zealous for God and Mammon at the fame time; Bully's and Republicans quarrel'd for the Passive Obedience Sparks Grave Divines extol'd his Wit, and A-theists his Religion, the Fanaticks his Honefty, the Hypocrite his Zeal, and the Ladies were of his fide because he was for Submitting to Force. There is yet a greater mischief befall'n the Stage, here are Societies that fer up for Reformation of Menners; Troops of infirmers who are maintain'd by Perjury, ferve God for Gain, and ferret out Whores for Subfiltence. This noble

fq

T

ti

i

n

ft fi

CI

f

noble Society confift of Divines of both Churches, Fanatick as well as Orthodox, Saints and Sinners, Knights of the Post and Nights of the Elbow, and they are not more unanimous against Immorality in their Informations than for it in their Practice; They avoid no fins in themselves, and will fuffer none in any one elfe. The Fanaticks that never preach'd up Morality in their Pulpits, or knew it in their dealings, wou'd feem to promote it in the ungodly. The Church men that wou'd enjoy the Pleasure of Sinners, and the Reputation of Saints, are for punishing Whores and Drinking in all but themselves. In short, The Motive that carries the Popish Apostles to the richer Continents, makes these Gentlemen so busie in our Reformation, Money. Reformation is grown a ftaple Commodity, and the dealers in it are fuddenly to be made into a Corporation, and their privileges peculiar are to be Perjury without Punishment, and Lying with Impunity. Whores have a Tax laid on them towards their maintenance, in which they share with Captain W---- and the Justices of the Peace, for New Prison knows them all in their turns, and 25, or 30. Thillings gives them a Licence for Whoring till next pay day, fo that the effect of their Punishment only raifes the price of the Sin, and the Vices of the Nation maintain the Informers. Drinking, Swearing and Whoring are the Manufactures they deal in, for shou'd they Aretch their Zeal to Gozening, Gheating, 21fury, Extortion, Oppression, Defamation, Secret Adulteries and Fornication, and a Thoufand other of these more crying Immoralities, the City would rife against these invaders of their Liberties; and the Cuckolds. one and all, for their own and their Wives fakes rife against the Reformers; these worthy Gentlemen, for promoting the interest of the Crown-Office, and some such honest place, pick barmless words out of Plays to indite the Players, and fqueez Twenty Pound a Week out of them if they can, for their exposing Pride, Vanity, Hypocrisie, Usury, Oppression, Cheating and the other darling Vices of the Master Reformers, who owe them a grudge not to be appeas'd without considerable offerings; for Money in these cales wipes off all defects.

There are other matters of smaller importance I shall refer to my next, as Who kisses who in our Dominions, that Hypocisse has infected the stage too, where Whores

₿

Whoves mith great Bellies wou'd thrust themfelves off for Virgins, and Bally the Audience out of their fight and understanding; where Maids can talk bandy for Wit, and Footmen pass on quality for Gentlemen, Fools fit as Judges on Wir; and the Ignorant on Men of Learning, where the Motto is, Vivitur ingenio, the dull Rogues have the Management and the Profits. Where Fasce is a darling, and good Sence and good Writing not understood. And this brings to my mind a thing I lately heard from a falle imatterer in Poetry behind the Scenes, and which if you fee Ben. Johnson, I defire you to communicate to him. A new Author fays one, that has wrote a taking Play, is writing a Treatife of Gomedy, in which he manis the learned Roques the writers to some purpose; he shows what a Coxcemb Aristoile was, and what a company of fenceless pedants the Scaligers, Rapines, Voffi, &c. are's proves that no good Play can be regular, and that all rules are as vidioulous as ufeleft. He tells us Aristotle knew nothing of Poetry (for he knew nothing of his fragments fo extell'd by Scaliger ) and that common Sence and Nature was not the fame in Athens as in Drary-Lane 3 that Uniformity and Coherence was. Green-

a

1

Green-sleeves and Pudding-pyes, and that irregularity and nonsence were the chief perfections of the Drama. That the Silent Woman by consequence was before the Trip to the Jubilee, and the Ambitious Stepmother better than the Orphan; That Hiccius Doctius was Arabic, and that Bonnyclabber is the Black-broath of the Lacedamonians; and thus he runs on with Paradoxes as new as unintelligible; but this noble Treatise being only yet in the Embryo, you may expect a farther account of it in the next, from St.

4

S

12-

Your obliged bumble Servan,

The second secon

and the world with the total

Will Pierre.

SCARON

day taddi one is and that we SCAR 10 Con car 14, 0.

CHARLE A CHICKS

yo

cec

Me

to Su

vo

in

Pri ne be

vo

4 1

(pe

be

an

qu

for

mo Co

to

du

me

ly,

tal

vat

So

Ma

and the bright the

ores biore the thin LEWIS le Grand.

By Mr. Tho. Brown.

LL the Conversation of this lower World at present runs upon you and the Devil a word we can hear in any of our Coffee-houses but what his Gallic Majesty is more or less concern'd in. 'Tis agreed on by all our Virtuofo's, that fince the days of Dioclesian, no Prince has been so greats Benefactor to Hell as your felf; and as much a master of Eloquence as I was once thought to be at Paris, I want words to tell you how much you are commended here for fo heroically trampling under foot the Treaty of Ryswick, and opening a new Scene of War in your great Glimatterick, at which age most of the Princes before you were fuch Recreants as to think of making up their Scores with Heaven, and leaving their Neighbours in Peace. But you, you, they fay, are above such fordid Precedents, and rather than Place shall want Men to people his Dominions, are willing to spare him half a Million of your own Subjects, and that at a juncture too, when you are not over-stock'd with them.

This has gain'd you an universal applause in these Regions, the three Furies sing your Praises in every street, Bellona Swears there's never a Prince in Christendom worth hanging besides your self, and Charon bustles for you in all Companies. He desir'd me about a week ago to present his most humble respects to you; adding, That is it had not been for your Majesty, he with his Wife and Children must long ago have been quarter'd upon the Parish, for which reason he duly drinks your health every morning in a Cup of cold Styx next his Conscience.

er

u,

14

ys

a ce

0 d

)t N

9

f

d

t

Indeed I have a double Title to write to you, in the first place, as one of your dutiful the unworthy Subjects, who formerly tasted of your Liberality, and secondly, as you have done me the Honour to take my late Wife not only into your private embraces, but private Counsels. Poor Soul! I little thought she would fall to your Majesty's share when I took my last farewell

well of her, or that a Prince that had his choice of fo many thousands, would as cept of my forry leavings. And therefore I must confess, I am apt to be a little vain as often as I reflect that the greatest Me. narch in the Universe and I are brother Starlins, and that the eldest son of the Church and the little Searon have fill'd in the fame hole. Some fawcy fellows have had the impudence to tell me to my face that Madam Maintenon ( for fo out of respect to your Majesty I must call her ) is your law. ful Wife, and that you were Clandefinely married to her. I took them up roundly a they deferv'd, and told them I was fure it was a damn'd lye, for faid I to them, if my Master was married to her, as you pretend, the had broke his Heart long ago as well as the did mine, from whence I positively concluded that the might be your Mistress, but was none of your Wife.

Last Week as I was sitting with some of my Acquaintance in a publick House, aster a great deal of impertinent that about the affairs of the Milanese, and the intended Siege of Manua, the whole Company fell a talking of your Majesty, and what glorious exploits you had perform'd in your time. Why, Gentlemen, says an ill-

look'd

100

Bu.

na

ha

cer fa

in St

no

ſh

ab

to

th

In

th

L

th

W

1 af

an

th

pr

to

ha

fu

地山山の市山

ve lee se ve

M.

be

fe. of

of.

ut d.

ny let

m

'd

look'd Rascal, who prov'd to be Herefireins, for Place's fake let not the Grand Monarch run away with all your praises. I have done fomething memorable in my time too, 'twas I, who out of Galete de ceur, and to perpetuate my name, fir'd the famous Temple of the Epselian Disna, and in two hours confumed that Magnificent Structure which was two hundred Years a building : Therefore, Gentlemen, lavish not away all your Praises, I befeech you. upon one Man, but allow others their thare. Why, thou diminutive inconfiderable Wretch, faid I in a great Passion to to him, thou worthless idle Loggerbead, thou Pigmee in Sin, thou Tom Thumb in Iniquity, how dares such a puny Infect as thou art have the Impudence to enter the Lifts with Lawis le Grand? Thou valueft thy felf upon firing a Church, but howe When the Mistris of the House, who was a Midwife by Profession, was gone out to affift Olympias, and deliver'd her of Alexander the great. 'Tis plain, thou hadfinot the courage to do it when the goddes was present and upon the spot: But what is this to what my Royal Mafter can boalt of, that has destroy'd a hundred and a hundred fuch foolish Fabricks in his time, and bravely ly order'd them to be Bombarded, when he knew the very God that made and redeem'd him had taken up his quarters in them. Therefore turn out of the room like a paltry infignificant Villain as thou art, or I'll pink thy Carkais for thee,

He had no fooner made his exis, but crys an odd fort of a Spark with his Hat button'd up before like a Country Scraper, Under favour Sir, what do you think of me? Why, who are you reply'd I to him. Who am I, answer'd he, why Nero the sixth Emperour of Rome, that murder'd my----Come, faid I to him, to ftop your prating, I know your History as well as your felf, that murder'd your Mother, kick'd your Wife down stairs; dispatch'd two Apostles out of the World, begun the first Persecution against the Christians, and lastly, put your Master Seneca to death. As for the Murder of your Mother, I confess it shew'd you had some taste of wickedness, and may pass for a tolerable piece of Gallantry: but pri'thee what a mighty matter was it to fend your. Wife packing with a good kick in the Guts, when once she grew naufeous and fawcy, 'tis no more than what a thousand Tinkers and Foot-Soldiers have done before you: Or to put the Penal Laws

n

n

h

t

in execution against a brace of hot-headed Bigots and their befotted Followers, that must needs come and preach up a new Religion at Rome : or in fine, to take away a haughty ungrateful Pedant's Life, who conspir'd to take away yours, altho I know those worthy Gentlemen, the Schoolmasters, make a horrid rout about it in their nonfenfical Declamations? whereas his most Christian Majesty, whose Advocate I am refoled to be against all oppofers whatever, has bravely and generoully starved a Million of poor Hugonots at home, and fent t'other Million of them a grafing into foreign Countries, contrary to folemn Edicts and repeated promises, for no other provocation as I know of, but because they were fuch Coxcombs as to place him upon the Throne. In fhort, Friend Nero, thou mayst pass for a Rogue of the third or fourth Class, but be advised by a stranger, and never shew thy felf such a Fool as to dispute the pre-eminence with Lewis le Grand, who has murder'd more Men in his Reign, let me tell thee, than thou hast murder'd Tunes, for all thou art the vilest thrummer upon Cats Guts the Sun ever beheld. However, to give the Devil his due, I will fay it before thy face and behind behind thy back, that if thou hadst reign'd as many years as my gracious Master has done, and hadst had, instead of Tigellinus a Jesuite or two to have govern'd thy Conscience, thou mightst in all probability have made a much more magnificent Figure, and been inferiour to none but the mighty Monarch I have been talking of.

Having put my Roman Emperour to filence, I looked about me, and faw a pack of Grammarians ( for fo I meffed them to be by their impertinence and noise) difputing it very fiercely at the next Table. The matter in debate was, which was the most Heroical Age, and one of them, who valu'd himself very much upon his reading, maintain'd, that the Heroical Age properly so call'd, began with the Theban and ended with the Trojan War, in which compais of time that glorious Constellation of Heroes, Hercules, Jason, Theseus, Tidens, with Agamemnon, Ajax, Achilles, Hector, Troilus and Diomedes flourished, Men that had all fignaliz'd themfelves by their perfonal Gallantry and Valour. His next neighbour argu'd very fiercely for the Age wherein Alexander founded the Grecian Monarchy, and faw fo many noble Generals and Commanders about him. The Third

Third was as obstreperous for that of Julius Cafar, and manag'd his Argument with fo much heat, that I expected every Minute when these Puppies wou'd have gone to Logger-heads in good earnest. To put an end to your Controverse, Gentlemen, fays I to them, you may talk till your Lungs are founderd, but this I positively affert, That the prefent age we live in is the most Hereical Age, and that my Master Lewis le Grand is the greatest Heroe of it. Hark you me, Sir, how do you make that appear, cry'd the whole pack of them opening upon me all at once. By your leave, Gentlemen, answer'd I, two to one is odds at Foot-ball, but having a Hero's cause to defend, I find my felf poffes'd with a Hero's Vigour and Refolution, and don't doubt but I fhall bring you over to my Party. That Age therefore is the most Heroical which is the boldest and bravest. The Ancients, I grant you, Whor'd, and got Drunk, and cut Throats as well as we do, but, Gentlemen, they did not Sin upon the same Foot as we, nor had so many wicked discouragements to deter them. We Whore when we know 'tisten to one but we get a Clap for our pains, whereas our Forefathers before the Siege of Naples had had no fuch bieffings to apprehend. We drink and murder one another in cold blood, at the same time we believe that we must be rewarded with Damnation; but your old Heroes had no notion at all. or at least an imperfect one of a Future State. So 'tis a plain cafe, you fee, that the Heroism lies on our side. To apply this then to my Royal Master, he has fill'd all Christendom with Blood and Confufion, he has broke through the most folemn Treaties sworn at the Altar, he has stary'd and undone infinite numbers of Poor Wretches, and all this for his own Glory and Ambition, when he's affur'd that Hell gapes every moment for him. Now tell me whether your fasons, your Agamemnons, or Alexanders durst have ventur'd fo heroically, or whether your pitiful Emperours of Germany, your Mechanick Kings of England and Sweden, or your lowsie States of Holland have courage enough to write after fo illustrious a Copy.

Thus, Sir, you may fee with what zeal I appear in your Majesty's behalf, and that I omit no opportunity of magnifying your great exploits to the utmost of my poor abilities. At the same time I must freely own to you, that I have met with some rough-

rough-hewn fawcy Rascals, that have stopt me in my full career, when I have been expatiating upon your Praises, and have so dumb-founded me with their Villainous Objections, that I cou'd not tell how to reply to them.

Some few days ago it was my Fortune to affirm in a full Assembly, that since the days of Charlemain, France was never bleft with fo renown'd, fo victorious, and fo puissant a Prince as your Majesty. You lame gouty Coxcomb, fays a fawcy Butterbox of a Dutchman to me, don't give your felf these Airs in our Company. Lewis the greatest Prince that France ever had! why Itell thee, he has no more Title to that Crown than I have to the great Mogul's, and Lewis the Thirteenth was no more his Father than the Pope of Rome is thine. I bleft my felf to hear the Fellow deliver this with fo ferious a Mein, when a Country-man of his taking up the Cudgels, 'Tis true, fays he, your mighty Monarch has no right to the Throne he possesses. The late King had no hand in the begetting of him, but a lufty proper young Fellow, one le Grand by name, and an Apothecary by Profession, was employ'd by Cardinal Mazarine, who had prepar'd the Queens G 3 Con-

Conscience for the taking of fuch a Dole, to firike an Heir for France out of her Ma jefty's Body: by the same token, that this Scarlet Agent of Hell, got him fairly poylon'd as foon as he had done the work, for fear of telling Tales. If you ever read Virgil's life written by Donatus, crys a third to me, you'll find that Angustus having rewarded that famous Poet for fome little Services done him with a parcel of Loaves, had the curiofity once to enquire of him who he thought was his Father; to which question of the Emperour, Virgil fairly answer'd, that he believ'd him to be a Baker's Son, because he still paid him in a Baker's Manufacture, viz. Bread. And thus were there no other proofs to confirm it, yet any one wou'd swear that Lewis le Grand is an Apothecary's Son, because he has acted all his life time the part of an Apothecary.

Imprimis. He has given so many strong Purges to his own Kingdom, that he has emptied it of half its People and Money; Item. He apply'd Caustics to Genoa and Brussels, when he bombarded both those Cities; Item, He gave a damn'd Clyster to the Hollanders with a witness, when he fell upon the rear of their Provinces in the year 72. Hem, He lull'd King Charles the

Second

Second afleep with Female Opiates, Item, He forced Pope lunecent the Eleventh to swallow the unpalatable Draught of the Franchifes, Item, He administred a restorative Gordial to Mahumetanifin, when he enter'd into an Alliance with the Great Turk against the Emperour, Item, He wou'd have bubbled the Prince of Orange with the gilded Pill of Sovereignty, but his little Confin was wifer than to take it; and laftly, If he had reftor'd King James to his Crown again, he wou'd have brought the People of England a most conscientious Apothecaries Bill for his waiting and attending. In short, Shake this mighty Munarch in a bag, turn him this way, and that way, and t'other way, furfum, deorfum, quaquaversum, I'll engage you'll find him nothing but a meer Aporbecary, and I hope the Emperour and King of England will play the Apothecary too in their turn, and make him womit up all those Provinces and Kingdoms he has fo unrighteoufly usurp'd. Prince Eugene of Savoy has work'd him pretty well this last Summer, and 'tis an infallible Prognostic that he's reduced to the last extremities, when his Spiritual Phyficians apply Pigeons to the Soles of his Feet, I mean Prayers and Masses, and advise him G' 4 him to reconcile himself to that Heaven he has so often affronted with his most exe-obf

tru his

litt

the

nic

do

ha

ne

Pr of

dif

th

hi

ha

aff

th lik

ar

be

in ex

Fi

fo

crable Perjuries.

'Tis impossible for me to tell your Majesty what a surprize I was in to hear this graceless Netherlander blaspheme your glorious name after this insufferable rate. But to see how one Persecution treads upon the heels of another! I was hardly recovered out of my astonishment, when a Son of a Whore of a German, advancing towards me, was pleas'd to explain himself as follows.

You keep a pother and a noise here about your mighty Monarch, says he to me, but what has this mighty Monarch, and be damn'd to you, done to merit any body's good word? I fay, what one generous noble exploit has he been guilty of in his whole Reign, as long as it is, to deferve fo much Incense and Flattery, so many Statues and Triumphal Arches, which a pack of mercenary, naufeous, fulfome Slaves have bestow'd upon him? For my part, continues he, when I first heard his Historians and Poets, his Priests and Courtiers talk fuch wonderful things of him, I fansied that another Gyrus or Alexander had appear d upon the Stage, but when I observed observed him more narrowly, and by a truer Light, I found this Immortal Man. as his Inscriptions vainly stile him, to be a little, tricking, pilfering Fripon, that watch'd the critical minute of stealing Towns, as nicely, as your Rogues of an inferior Sphere do that of nimming Cloaks, and the he had the fairest opportunity of erecting a new Western Monarchy that ever any Prince cou'd boast of, since the declension of the Roman Empire, yet to his eternal difgrace be it faid, no Man cou'd have made a worfe use of all those wonderful advantages that Fortune, and the stupid security of his Neighbours conspir'd to put into his hands. To convince you of the truth of this, let us only confider what posture the affairs of France were in at his accession to that Crown, and feveral years after, as likewise how all the neighbouring Princes and States about him stood affected: To begin then with the former, he found himfelf Master of the best disciplin'd Troops in the Universe, commanded by the most experienc'd Generals that any one Age had produc'd, and Spirited by a long train of Victories over a careless, desponding, lazy linemy. All the great Men of his Kingdom to depressed and humbled by the fortunate

ſe

ly

W

p

CC

ar

di

fe

T

Ca

th

by

th

W

CI

To

ly

bo

th

ſm

the

ma

ing

and

lig' it f

bot

Pri

artifices of Richelien and Mazarine that they were not capable of giving him any uneafiness at home, the sole power of raising Money intirely in his own hands and his Parliaments fo far from giving check to his daily incroachments upon their Liberties, that they were made the mol effectual Instruments of his Tyranny: In fhort, His Clergy as much devoted, and the whole body of his People as subservient to him as a Prince cou'd wish. As for his Neighbours, he who was best able of any, to put a stop to his growing greatness, I mean the King of England, either favour'd his defigns Clandestinely, or was so enervated by his Pleafures, that provided he cou'd enjoy an inglorious Effeminacy at home, he feem'd not to lay much to heart what became of the rest of Christendom. The Emperour was composing Anthems for his Chappel at Vienna, when he should have appear'd at the head of his Troops up on the Rhine. The Princes of Germany were either divided from the common Interest by the underhand management of France, or not at all concern'd at the impending Storm that threatned them. The Hollanders within an Ace of lolingtheir Liberty by the prepoferous care they took to fecure ny of

ds

eir oli

四日 vifor

d es, r'd ierhe at

art Mi

for

AP.

ere

elt

tce,

14

er-

fecure it, I mean, by divesting that Family of all power in their Government, which as it had formerly erected their Republick, fo now was the only one that cou'd help to protect it. The little States and Principalites of Italy, looking on at a distance, and not daring to declare themfelves in fo critical a Conjuncture, when the Two Keys of their Countrey Pignerol and Cafal hung at the girdle of France. In fhort, the dispeopled Monarchy of Spain govern'd by a foft unactive Prince, equally unfit for the Cabiner and the Field, his Counsellors, who manag'd all under him, taking no care to lay up Magazines, and put their Towns in a posture of defence, but wholly relying, as for that, upon their Neighbours, like some inconsiderate spend-thrift thrown into a Jayl by his Creditors, that smokes and drinks and talks merrily all the while, but neveradvances one step to make his Circumstances easie to him, leaving the burthen of that affair to his Friends and Relations, whom perhaps he never oblig'd fo far in his prosperity, as to deserve it from their hands.

Here now, fays he, was the fairest opportunity that ever presented it self for a Prince of Gallantry and Resolution, for a

ne

m

by

at

th

ly

w

mi

G

be

ha

fit

in lif

le

M

th

th

th

Wi

Al

N

hi

the

dr

cry

and

fav

da

Tamberlane and a Scanderbeg to have done fomething eminently fignal in his general tion, and if in the last Century, a little King of Sweden with a handful of Men cou'd force his way from the Baltie to the Rhine, and fill all Germany with Terrow and Consternation, what might we no have expected from a powerful King d France, in the flower of his Youth, and at the head of Two Hundred Thouland Effective Men, especially when there was no visible Power to oppose him? But the wonderful Monarch of yours, instead of carrying his Arms beyond the Danube and performing any one Action worthy forhi Historians to record in the Annals of hi Reign, has humbly contented himfelf now and then in the beginning of the Year when he knew his Neighbours were un prepared for fuch a vilit, to invel form little Market-Town in Flanders with his in vincible Troops, and when a parcel of filly implicit Fools had done the business for him, then forfooth he must appear at the head of his Court-Harlots and Minstrels and make a magnificent entry through the Breach. And after this ridiculous piece of Pageantry is over, return back again to Verfailles with the same Equipage, order new lone

ien

ittle

Men

the

our

not

3 0

fund

Was this

do

and

e his

h

WOF

ear

un

ome

in filly

the

els,

the

e of

1 to der

lew

new Medals, Opera's, and Sonnets to be made upon the occasion, and what ought by no means to be omitted; our most truste and well-beloved Counfellor and Coufin the Archbuhop of Paris, must immediate ly have a Letter fent him to repair forth with at the head of his Ecclefiaftick Mes midons to Notredame, and there to thank God for the facces of an infamous Robe bery, which an honest moral Pagan wou'd have bluffe'd at. So that when the next fit of his Fiftula in Ano Chable fend this Ima mortal Town flealer, this Divine Village. lifter, this Heroic Pilferen of poor Hamlets and their Dependencies, down to these Subterranean Dominions: don't limagine that he'll be allow'd to keep company with the Pharamonds and Charlemaign's of France the Edwards and Henries of England, the Williams of the Naffovian Family, or the Alexanders and Gafare of Greece and Rome. No, should he have the impudence to shew his head among that illustrious Assembly; they would foon order their Footmen to drub him into better manners: Neither, crys a furly Englishman clapping his fides, and interrupting him, must be expect the favour to appear even among our Holiday-Heroes and Custard-stormers of Gheapfide.

p

by Co hi

W

to

de

ne ve

fu

fe

W

fo

ST

Re

h

h

a n b

A

CE

0 fi

r

a

fide, those merry Burlesquers of the Ar Military in Finsbury Fields, who poor Cres tures never meant the destruction of any mortal thing but transitory Roaft-beef and Capon. No, Friend fays he, Lewis h Grand must expect to take up his habitation in the most infamous Quarter of Hell among a parcel of Houle-breakers and Shop lifters, Rogues burnt in the Cheek for Petty larceny and Burglary, Brethren of the Moon, Gentlemen of the Horn-thumb. Pillagers of Hedges and Hen-roofts, Conveyers of Silver Spoons, and Chamlet Cloaks, and fuch like enterprising Heroe, whose famous Actions are faithfully register'd in our Sessions Paper, and dying Speeches transmitted to Posterity by the Ordinary of Newgate; a much more impartial Historian than your Pelissons and Boileau's. However, as I was inform'd last week by an understrapper at Count, Pluto in confideration of the fingular fervices your Royal Master has done him, will allow him a brace of Fidlers to scrape and fing to him where ever he goes, fince he takes fuch a delight to hear his own Praises.

Rogue, a Countrey man of his, that lince the Grand Monarch we have been peaking of, who has all along done more by his Bribing and Tricking than by the Conduct of his Generals or the Bravery of his Troops, who has play'd at fast and loofe with his Neighbours ever fince he came to the Crown, who has furprised abundance of Towns in his time, and at the next Treaty been forced to fpue up those very places he ordered To Deums to be fung for a few Months before : I must confels, fays he, That fince in conjunction with a damn'd Mercenary Priest he has forg'd a Will for his Brother in Law of Spain, and plac'd his Grandfon upon that Throne, I fhould think the reft of Chris stendom in a very bad condition indeed, if he should be suffered to go on quietly with his Show a few years more. Then for all I know, he might bid fair to fet up a new Empire in the West, which he has been aiming at fo long. But if the last Advices from the other World don't de ceive us, if the Parliament of England goes on as unanimously, as they have begun, to support their Prince in so plous and necessary a War; in short, if the Emperour, the Durch and the other Allies, act with that Vigour and Refolution as it becomes them upon this any and little little and for of mb, re-

the

m· ınd

b'n

er vill

he

vn

ng œ

this pressing occasion, I make no question to fee this mighty Heroe plunder'd, like the Jay in the Fable, of all the fine Plumes he has borrow'd, and reduc'd to fo low an ebb, that he shall not find it in his Power, tho he has it never for much in his Will, to disturb the Peace of the Gbristian World any more. And this, continues he, is as favourable an opportunity as we cou'd desire, to strip him of all his Usurpations, for Heaven be praised, Spain at present is a burthen to him, and by grasp ing at too much, he's in a fair way to lole every Farthing. Besides this late Forgery of the Will has pluck'd off his old Mask, and shews that 'tis an Universal Monarchy he intends, and not the repose of Europe, which has been to fortunate a tham to him in all his other Treaties; so that the Devil's in the Allies now if they don't fee through those thin Pretences he so often bubbled them with formerly, or lay down their Arms till they have made this French Bustard, who is all Feathers and no substance, as bare and naked as a Skeleton, and effectually spoil his new Trade of making Wills for other People. And this they may easily bring about, continues he, if they lay hold on the present opportunity, ion

ike

nes

wo

his

in bri-

ıti-

28 ur-

at

íp.

ose

Ty

k,

hy

be,

to

he

en

m

ch

b-

ais

for, as I observed to you before, he has taken more business upon his hands than he'll ever be able to manage, and by grafping at too much, is in the direct road to lofe all. For my part, I never think of him but he puts me in mind of a filly foolish Fellow I knew once in London, who was a common Knife-grinder about the streets, and having in this humble occupation gather'd a few stragling Pence, must needs take a great House in Fleetstreet, and set up for a Sword-Cutler: but before Quarter-day came, finding the Rent too bulky for him, he very fairly rubb'd off with all his Effects, and left his Landlord the Key under the Door. Without pretending to the Spirit of Noftradamus or Lilly, this, I foresee, will be the Fate of Lewis le Grand; therefore when you write next to your glorious Monarch, pray give my respects to him, and bid him remember the fad destiny of the poor Knife-grinder of London.

Thus, you fee, Sir, how I am daily plagu'd and harrafs'd by a parcel of brawny impudent Raskals, and all for espousing your quarrel and crying up the Justice of your Arms. For Pluto's sake let me conjure your Majesty to lay your Commands upon Boilean, Racine, or any of your Panegyrists to instruct me how I may stop the Mouths of these impertinent Babblers for the suture, who make Hell ten times more insupportable to me than otherwise it would be, and threaten to tos me in a Blanket the next time I come unprovided for your desence into their Company. In the mean time humbly desiring your Majesty to present my Love to the quendam Wife of my bosom, I mean the virtuous Madam Mainemon, who in conjunction with your most Christian Majesty now governs all France, and put her in mind of sending me a dozen New Shirts by the next Pacquet, I remain,

H

in-

Your Majesty's most Obedient, and most obliged Subject and Servant,

Scaron

HANNIBAL

HANNIBAL

To the Victorious

Prince Eugene of Savoy.

By the fame Hand

received the news of the happy fuccess of your Arms in Italy. My worthy Friend Scipio (for so I may justly call him since we have dropt our old Animolities, and now live amicably together) is eternally talking of your Conduct and Bravery; Nay, Alexander the Great, who can hardly bear any Competitor in the point of Glory, has freely confessed that your Gallantry in passing the Po and the Adige in the face of so powerful an Enemy, falls not short of what he himself formerly show dupon the Banks of the Granieus. For my part I have a thousand obligations to you my march over the Alpes, upon which I may deservedly value my self, was look dupon here to be fabulous, till your late Expedi-

Expedition over those rugged Mountains confirm'd the belief of it. Thus neither Hills nor Rivers can stop the progress of your Victories, and 'tis you who have found out the lucky fecret how to bafflle the circumspect gravity of the Spaniards, and repress the furious impetuosky of the French. His Gallie Majesty, who minds keeping of his word as little, as that Mercenary Republic of Tradefmen whom it was my misfortune to ferve, will find to his coft, that all the Laurels he has been for long a plundering, will at last fall to your Excellencies share, and that he has been labouring Forty Years together to no other purpose than to enrich you with the spoils of his former Triumphs. Go on therefore in the fame glorious Track as you have begun, and be affured, that the good wishes of all the Great and Illustrious Persons now resident in this lower World attend you in all your enterprifes: As nothing can be a greater pleafure to Virtuous Men than to fee Villains rewarded acording to their deferts, fo true Heroes never rejoyce more than when they fee a Sham-Conquerour, and vain-glorious Bully, fuch as Lewis the XIVeb. plunder'd of all his unjust acquisitions, and reduced

of

ŗ.

there a free Communication between our Territories and yours, Cyrus, Militades, Gafar, and a Thousand other Generals wou'd be proud to offer you their Service the next Campaign, but 'tis your happiness that you want not their afficience, your own personal Bravery joyn'd to that of your Troops, and the Justice of your Cause being sufficient to carry you through all your undertakings.

Farewel.

Tom D-y.

By the same Hand.

HOwever it happen'd fo, I can't tell, but I cou'd never get a fight of thy famous Pindaric upon the late Queen Mary, till about a Month ago. Most of the Company wou'd needs have me declare open War against thee that very Minute, for H 3 prophaning my name with fuch execuble Doggrel. Steficherus railed ar thee worfe than the Man of the Horfe-flore Towers in Drug. lane, Alcan, I believe will hardly be his own Man again this Fortnight, fo much concern'd he is to find thee crowding thy felf among the Lyrle Poets: Nay, Sapple the patient feld about her like a Fury, and call'd thee a rhouland pinning fluttering Ballad-fingers. As for me, far from taking any thing amis at thy hands, I am mighrily pleafed with the honour thou haft done me, and besides must own thou has been the cheapest, kindest Physician to me I ever met with, for whenever my Circumflances fit uneafie upon me (and for thy comfort Tom, we Poets have our Plagues in this World, as well as we had in yours) when my Landlord perfecutes me for Rent, my Sempstress for Linen, my Tayler for Clothes, or my Vintner for a long Pagan Score behind the Bar; I immediately read but half a dozen lines of thy admirable Ode and fleep as heartily as the Monks in Rabelais after finging a Verfe or two of the Seven Penitential Pfalms. All I am afraid of, is, That when the Virtues of it are known fome body or other will be perpetually borrowing it of me, either to help him to a Nap, or cure him of the Spleen, for I find 'tis an excellent Specific for both: Therefore I must defire thee to order trusty Sam. to fend me as many of them as have escaped the Pastry-Cook, and I will remit him his Money by the next opportunity. If Augustus Cafar thought a Roman Gentleman's Pillow worth the buying, who flept foundly every Night amidst all his Debts, can any man blame me for bestowing a few transitory Pence upon thy Poem, which is the best Opiate in the Universe? In fhort, Friend Tom, I love and admire thee for the freedom thou hast taken with me, and this I will fay in thy Commendation, that thou hast in this respect done more than even Alexander the great durst do. mighty Conqueror upon the taking of Thebes spared all of my Family, nay the very House I liv'd in: but Thou, who hast a Genius Superiour to him, hast not fpared me even in what I value most, my Versification and good Name, for which Apollo in due time reward thee.

Farewel,

Complete and the controls 1. Programme syrid a gradie : - a soverback of the work of the William Constitution of the transfer that " The will the six material be were being the beautiful negoting There are a grown and specific him the / - / - / Cape I San you you was a superplay with it which have the spirit and the state of the same de la financia de la compania del compania del compania de la compania del la compania de la compania del la compania de la compania del la compan The state of the s of comment of the section of the section of supplied the second of the second of the second min do from and the state of t tor a vicini para i companion etc are alteria poste mili more relative to the second of the few to the second secon gar tona toxograph, tribian win belt without on a Unit final week. or the day of the table to the and the said was a superior with the yes the police that was been a transfer the Color and a server to the fact of the first and the system of the start

THESE

LETTERS

FOLLOWING

Were Translated out of French

Cap: BARKER,

The VERSE by

M' THO. BROWN.

LETTERS

rdittowing

Were Translated out of Fiench lap BARKEA

The VERSEly.

MITHUE BROWN SY

ANTIOCHUS

TO

LEWIS the XIVE

Dear Brother,

You will be furprifed, I know, to receive this Letter from a stranger, and of all the damn'd, perhaps, I am the only Man from whom you least of all expected any News; because I have always pass'd for so impious and cruel a Prince, and my Name has given People such horrible Idea's of me, that they think me infensible of Pity, as having never practiced any in my Life time.

When I fat upon the Throne of Syria, having no more Religion than your most Christian Majesty, I stifled all the dictates of my Conscience, pillag'd the Temple of the Jews, carous'd with their Blood, and running from one Crime to another, drew infinite Desolations every where after me. But after I had exercised my Tyranny on the Innocent nocent Posterity of several great Kings, and left a thousand Monuments of my Barbarity, I found to my forrow, that I was Mor. tal, and oblig'd to submit to that Fate whose attacks feeble Nature cannot resist. I then fell into an Abyss which is inlightn'd only by those flames which will for ever roaft fuch Monsters as we; and where I was loaded with much heavier Irons than any I had plagu'd poor Mortals with above. To bid me welcome into this place of Horror, and refresh me after my Voyage, I I was plung'd into a Bath of Fire and Brim. stone, cup'd by a Master Devil, rub'd, fcrub'd, &c. by a parcel of fmoaking grining Hob-goblins, and afterwards preferred with a Musical Entertainment of Groans, howling and gnathing of Teeth. I foon began to play my part in this hideous Confort, where Despair bear the Measure; and because myPains were infinitely greater than those of others, I immediately ask'd the Reafon of my Torments, and was told it was for having hindred the peopling of Hell, by the multitude of Martyrs my long Perfecutions had made, and of which you cannot beignorant if you delight in useful reading. Since I have been in this Empire of Sorrow, where I found the * Pharaohs, Ahabs, Jezebels,

1

n

r

i

n

* Perfecutors of Itte

d

n

bels, Athaliahs, Nebuchadnezzars, &c. and where I have feen arrive the Neroes, Dioclefians, Decii, * Philips of Austria, | Charles of Va- * Kings of lois; whose names wou'd fill a Volume; The Spain. Recruits of Loyola arrive every day in fearch Author of of their Captain, but in some confusion for lomew's. fear of meeting Clement and Ravaillac, who nevercease curling 'em. Your Apartment, most Christian Hero, has been some Fifty Years a Airing, but now they redouble their care. your coming being daily expected; I give you timely notice of it that you may take your measures accordingly. Perhaps you'll be offended at this familiarity, and tell me no Man can deferve Hell for fighting against Hereticks under the command of an infallible General; but if you knew the prefent State of those Miter'd Leaders, it wou'd not a little terrifie you. Lucifer has turn'd them into feveral shapes, and peopl'd his back-yard with them; the Place 'tis true, is not fo delightful as your Menagerie and Trianon at Verfailles, but much excells it in variety and number of Monsters. Your Cell is in the same Yard, that you may be near your good Friends, who advis'd you to make the Habitation of the stades a Desart; for which the Prince of Darkness hates you mortally, and defigns you formething worfe than than a Fiftula or the Bull of Phalaris. Your ingenious Emissaries Marillac, la Rapine, and la Chaife will meet in the Squadrons of Plan with more invenom'd Dragoons than those they let loofe against their poor Country men in France: 'T will be their imployment to keep his Menagerie clean; whose sench wou'd otherwise poison the reft of Hell. That Renegado Peliffon too makes fo edious a Fi gure here that he frights the boldest of our laylors; and his Eyes red with crying for his Sins, which were fo much the greater because they were voluntary, make him asham'd to look any one in the Face. Our Learned think him profoundly ignorant; ver you must be the Trajan of that Pling for he's now writing your History in fuch a terrible manner, that it will but little refemble that which your Pensionary Wits are composing. The Voyage having made him lose some part of his Memory and forget the particulars of your Virtues, he will therefore take me for his Model and draw my Life under your Name. The your dear * Daloinea, whose head he dresses like a Girls, at the Age of Three core and Ten * Madam Maintenon.

makes the Court of Proferpine rejoyce before hand, yet the deformed | Author of the Scaron. Comical Romance cannot laugh as facetious

as . for ori

am ta

ha

one tis

me

[er fuc

mo Po

rop

Pu

pa

Ra

DO

for

be

ma

eld

br

nì

ch

at

u

ter

ıt j

m) ch

tle its

de nd he nd ho les

en

re

he

115

33 as he is. I will tell you no more, because some may think I give this Counselout of private Interest; for having been always ambitious, it would doubtless grieve me to see a more wicked and cruel Tyrant than my felf; but on the Faith and Word of one that endures the sharpest of Torments, its pure compassion. Law Yours, &c.

LEWIS the 14th Answer.

I Just now receiv'd yours by a Courier, who, had he not been too nimble for me, had been rewarded according to his deferts for his impudent message, But are you fuch a Coxeomb as to imagine that the most ambitious Monarch upon Earth, whose Power puts all the Princes and States of Eu. rope into Convultions, can be frighted at the threats of a wretch condemn'd to everlasting Punishments? The Infolence of your Comparifon, I must confess, threw me into a Rage; and not reflecting at first on the impossibility of the thing, I sent immediately for Boufflers to Dragoon you. But, Villain! because your Malice has been rampant for so many Ages, must you now level it at the eldest Son of the Church, whom the godly Fefuits

H

n

h

C

11 p

ft

h

Vi

Festits have already Canoniz'd? I am not so ignorant of the History of Afia, the I never read any of the Books of the Maccha bees, but I know you were both Judge and Executioner, and that there is not in the U. niverse one Monument consecrated to your Glory. Thanks to the careful Jesuits, la Place des Victoirs, is a sufficient proof that my Reputation is no Chimera, and my Name, which is to be feen in Golden Characters over feve ral Monasteries, assures me of a glorious Immortality. 'Tis true, to keep in favour with the Church, I have compell'd a handful of obstinate Fools to leave their Countrey and Estates, by forcing them to renounce their God and implicitly take up with mine Therefore the World has no reason to make fuch a noise about it. Are you mad to all Pelisson, who has read more Volumes than a Rabbi, and cou'd give Lessons of Hyporifie to the most exquisit Sect of the Pharifes, a Blockhead? Your Torments are fo great you know not on whom to fpit your Venom, and my poor * Mistriss for sooth, must fuffer from your Malice, Is the the worfe for being born in the Reign of my Grandfather? Pray ask Boileau, whose fincerity has cost him many a Tear, what he thinks of her. the World knows her Virtues, and that The's

" Mainte-

Dot

10 I

ceba-

e U.

rour

lace

Re

hich eve-

Im-

vith

il of

and

beir

ine.

ake

han

cri-

èes,

eat

Ve-

nft

for

er?

im

All

e's

the's grown gray in the School of Diffimulation and Lewdness, which have render'd her so charming in the feats of Love, that the pleafes me more than the youngest Beauty; therefore are her Wrinkles the Objects of my wonder and the Provocatives of my enervated Limbs, instead of being Antidotes, and I wou'd not give a Saint a Wax-candle to make her younger. Tho I'm feiz'd by a Cancer on the Shoulder, yet I am under no apprehensions; for I have given a Fee to St. Dannen, who will cure me of it, as well as of that nauseous Malady of Naples: and I have Plenipotentiaries now bribing Heaven for its Friendship, and a new Term of Years. Therefore 'tis in vain for Lucifer or you ever to expect me; and when I must leave this Terrestrial Paradife, 'twill be with such a Convoy of Masses as will hurry me by the very Gate of Purgatory without touching there. In the mean time, correct your fawcy Liberty, and let a Monarch, who wou'd scorn to entertain such a pitiful Wretch as thou art for his Pimp; still huff the World, and sleep quietly in his Seraglio.

LEWIS R.

Verfailles, 14. July.

CATHA-

CATHARINE de Medicio

To the Dutchess of

ORLEANS.

Madam,

Have long bewail'd your Condition, and tho I am in a Place of Horror, yet I should think my felf in some measure happy, if I knew how to deliver you from those Anxieties which torment you. have fome body or other arrives here daily from Versailles, and as my curiosity inclines me to enquire after your Highness, I have received fo advantageous a Character of your Goodness, from all hands, that I think every one ought to pity you. Your Life, Madam, has been very unhappy, for you were married very young to a jealous, ill-natur'd Prince, who had no love for you; tho no person in the world was fitter either to inspire or receive it than your felf: However you have had better luck than his former Wife, which I take to be owing to your own Prudence, and not his Generofity. The Defolations of the Palatinate, and Perfecution of a Religion you once approv'd, must must infallibly have given you many uneasie moments, but your misfortunes did not stop here, for even your domestick Pleafures have been poison'd by the Dishonour and Injustice of the Court you live in. In short, tho I was very unfortunate; yet I think you much more worthy of Compaffion: When I marry'd Henry 2d. I was both Young and Handsome, yet his doting on the haughty Dutchess of Valentinois, who was a Grandmother before Francis the 2d. was born, made me pass many melancholy Nights. Notwithstanding the Injustice as well as Cruelty of keeping a fawcy Strumpet under my Nose, yet with the Veil of Prudence and Religion, I easily cover'd my Inclinations; because the pious Cardinal of Lorrain, who had an admirable Talent to comfort an afflicted Heart, commiferating my condition gave me wonderful Confolation. As the refreshing Cordials of the Church foon made me forget the King's ill usage of me, so Madam, it is not so much the Infidelity of your Husband, as the cruel Constraint and Jealousie that makes me think your Life to be miserable, for how great foever your occasions are, you dare not I know accept of those Assistances I daily receiv'd from a plump agreeable Prelate, and I am heartily forry for it. To divert this discourse, which may perhaps aggravate your uneafiness, by renewing your necessities, you'll tell me, I suppose, that I shou'd have had as much Compassion when France was dyed with the Blood of so many Thoufand Victims, and that I might easily have moderated the Fury of my Son, and of the House of Guise, but besides, you must confider, I was a zealous Papift, and they, you know, think the cutting of poor He reticks Throats is doing Heaven good Service; fo that I beheld the dreadful Maffacre of St. Bartholomen with as much fatisfaction as ever I did the most glorious and folema Feffival. I am not for it at prefent, Madam, and cou'd I have been to fooner it would have been much more for my eafe. All my comfort is, that I am not my felf in a france unknown Countrey, for the old Dutcheft, who robb'd me of my dueBenevolence in the other World, continually follows me to upbraid me, the Guifes rave, brandishing bloody Daggers in their hands, and every hour I meet with numbers of my former Acquaintance and nearest Relations, but I avoid their Company as much as I can for the love of my dear Cardinal, who continues as great a Gallant as ever. Iask

.

his

Ate ffi-

ı'd

nce u-

ve he

m.

le

er-

re

on nn

m, ld

19

e A

10 to ıg

er at n 0 k

0

no Masses of you, for the Dead are not a Farthing the better for them. But Madam, fince all the World has not fo good an opinion of me as Brantome, let me conjure you not to let my Memory be too much Some may fay I was as cunning as Livia, that I was even with my Husband, and govern'd my Children, but their Fate did not answer my Care; for Francis liv'd but a little time, Elizabeth found her Tomb in the Arms of a jealous Husband, the Queen of Navarre was a wandring Star. Charles, a Cautious Coxcomb that facrifie'd all to his fafety, and Henry, on whom I had founded all my hopes, a diffolute Debauchee whom the Justice of Heaven could not mare. You know his Hiftory, and if you fhou'd fee a Tragedy of the like nature acted on your Stage, let your Conflancy, which makes you respected even in Hell. Let old * Meffalina enjoy the inneed not blush at it, fince all the World esteems you as much as they.

丁HE

THE

ANSWER

Of the Dutchess of Orleans to

CATHARINE de Medicu.

IS with much reason you pity me, and tho I have faid nothing all this while, yet I have not thought the lefs. If the practice of our Court did not teach me to diffemble, I should give my felf fome ease by imparting many things to you which wou'd fill you with Horror; and then you wou'd find that the Cruelties of your Sons, were Trifles in comparison of thefe. The most impartial Censurers of Barbarity, maintain that the Massacre of S. Bartholomen was milder than the present Perfecution of the Protestants: Ambition was the chiefest motive of the Guises; but now their Cruelties are cover'd with the Cloak of Religion; for the virtuous Favourite * Sultaness, with the pious | Musti in waiting, are refolv'd to cause the Christians to be more cruelly perfecuted than they are at Algiers, and the Roman Church is refolv'd

* Madam Maintenon || Father la Chaife.

at any rate to merit the name of the bloodthirfty Beaft. They value not exposing the Reputation of Princes, Iblush for my Race, and am often oblig'd to fwallow my Tears. I believe the efficacy of Maffes no more than you, therefore I will not offer you any. I am very glad to hear the Gardi. nal of Lorrain proves to constant, For a Prelate of his Talent and Constitution must certainly be a great Confolation to a diffreffed Princess. Bransome who has fo much flatter'd you, may do it again, and tho Sancy has been too fincere, yet he dares not contradict him in your Presence. I hope to fee the Ruines of my Countrey rais'd up again; for the our ambitious Monarch huffs and hectors all Christendom, yet his Game to me feems very desperate, and I believe he'll prove the Dog in the Fable; fince he has fo depopulated and impoverish'd his Dominions by Persecutions, that those pious Drones the Monk only can Support the Churches Grandeur in their Faces with three-story Chins; the rest of his People being reduc'd to wooden Shooes and Garlick. Tho our Gazettes are little better than Romances; yet they will ferve to divert you and your Cardinal when not better imploy'd; and I wish I cou'd

me,

his

If

ich

Celf

Ou

nd

of

of

ar-

ar-

er-

as

W

k

te

t-

0 ıt

ıt

Kil

îni

Re

WI

W

th

th

W m in Fi

> C ed

> te fe

> th

H hi

ar

ar

fta

W

W

y

y

0 cou'd fend them to you weekly. 'Tis true, great numbers fet out daily from hence, for your Countrey, and among them, People of the best Quality, but I carefully avoid all Commerce with them, and tho I have a wonderful esteem for you, take it not amis, Madam, if I endeavour never to fee you.

Cardinal MAZARINE

To the Marquis

De Barbesieux.

AM furpriz'd to think you have pro-I fited fo little by your Father's Example. As great a Beast as he was, he govern'd himself better than you; for contenting himself with pillaging all France according to our Maxims, he never attempted the The Mar- Life of any Man, nor ever fet any * Ravaillac's to work. Is it not a horrible thing to see the | Servant of a Minister of State Val hang'd fuffer upon a wheel, and publish the in Flanders shame of him that set him to work? You were mightily mistaken in the choice of your Villain; for whenever you have a King derer of Henry 4th. Granding to hill K. W.

1,

d

e

r

King to dispatch, you must employ a Feinit, or some Novice inspir'd by their Religious Society, and had you been fo wife, the * Prince you had a Plot against, * King wou'd not be now in the way to hinder William, the defigns of | a King, for whom I have | Lewis the tenderness of a Father, who was al the 14th: ways under my fubjection, and wou'd have married my Niece if I had pleas'd. I fell into a cold Sweat even in the midst of my Fire and Brimstone, at the News of your Conspiracy, because it so severely reflected on his Reputation. Ought you to have expos'd his Credit in so dubious an enterprize? Is it not fufficient that Poets fet him upon * Mont Pagnotte, whilft o- * Aplace ther Princes give glorious Examples at the out of the Head of their Troops; that they reproach reach of him with Incest, Sodomy, Adultery, and Cannon. an unbridled Passion for the Relict of a poor Poet, who is a Turn-spit here below, Scaron. and who had nothing to keep him from starving when upon Earth, but the Pension, which the Charity of Ann of Austria granted to his Infirmities, rather than his Works, tho very diverting? What was your aim in this cowardly design? wou'd you have more Servants, and more Whores? Or, ought you to effect that, to revive thole

I

C

Y

fi

C

A

01 tl

fa

T

th

th

al

A

H

u

in

y

CC

er

those Scenes of Cruelty and Treachery which we banish'd after the death of the most Eminent Gardinal Richelieu? All the Wealth you can raise will never amount to the Treasures I was Master of. And how much is there now left? Ask the Duke of Mazarine, and my Nephew of Nevers; one has been the Bubble of the Priests; and the other of his Pleasures; fo that the Children of the first will hard. ly share or year of my Revenue. His Wife for leveral years was no charge to him; she, for her Beauty, being kept by strangers; whilst he fool'd away those vall Riches he had by her. In short, you see the praying Coxcomb I made choice of which I must confess I did when I was in my Cups, has through his Zeal and Bigottry ruin'd all, even my most beautiful Statues; and that there is a curse entail'd upon fuch Estates, as begin with a Miracle, and end with a Prodigy. I was born at Mazare without any other advantage than that of my Beauty; but as a young Fellow can scarce desire a better Portion than that in Italy; so it mov'd Gardinal Anthony to lead me lovingly from his Chamber into his Closet, where on a foft east Couch he preach'd to me Morals after the Italian

ery,

the

All

ount

And

the

of

the

res;

ard.

His

to

by val

fee

of,

Was

ind uti-

en-

1 2

vas

an-

on wal mile he

ian

Italian fashion; by which, and some other virtuous Actions of the same stamp, I became the richest Favourite in the Universe. You may as well as I heap a mighty Treafure and lose it as foolishly. Do not be guilty then of Murder for things fo uncertain in the possession. Poor Louvois. who left you all, who drank more than Alexander, and thiev'd better than Colbert or I, has not now Water to quench his thirst. You will undoubtedly meet the fame Deftiny; for this is the Refidence of Traytors, Murderers, Thieves, and all other notorious Villains. 'Tis not altogether fo pleasant a place this, as * Mendon * Great and Chaville; for we drink nothing but Houses near Aqua-fortis and eat burning Charcoal; all Happiness is banish'd, Mifery only triumphs; and notwithstanding all those lying stories the Priests may tell you, yet you'll be strangely furpris'd when you come to judge of it by your own Experience.

TI

yo di

th

fer in

th

W

CO

T

CO

th

in

D

W

Ra

M

do

ta

at

te

Il

m

do

W

ne

ANSWER

Of Monsieur le Marquis de Barbesieux to

Cardinal MAZARINE,

Our Eminence, I find, is in a great Passion, because my Father did not get an Estate in your Service; must you therefore abuse him and turn that as a Crime upon me, which has been practis'd ever fince there have been Kings in the World? If your Talent only lay in pillaging and plundering, must it therefore prescribe to mine? and do you think the Glory of taking away by Dagger, or Poifon, the Enemies of ones Prince deferves less immortality than that of ruining his Subjects? You have I confess very meritoriously eterniz'd your name by that method, for which reason you ought in Confcience to allow me the liberty to find out You are much in the wrong on't to complain of the Duke of Mazarine, who did you the honour to think you were only in Purgatory, and lavish'd your TreaTreasures upon Bigots, in hopes to pray you out of it. If he in a holy fit of Zeal dismember'd your fine Statues, which perhaps too often recall'd to your Memory the pious Sermons of Cardinal Anthony, he is feverely punish'd in a Libel made against him in Vindication of your Beauteous Niece. If thatSatyr reaches yourRegions below, you'll foon be convinced what a Coxcomb you were when you chose the worst of Men to couple with the most charming of Women. This with feveral other passages of your Life, makes me not much wonder at your condemning me by your Gardinals Authority to drink Aqua-fortis, and eat burning Charcoal: it may perhaps be a proper Diet for Epicurean Cardinals and Italians, who love hot Liquors and high-feafon'd Ragoos; but the Lords of Chaville and Meudon desire other Entertainments. How do you know, I befeech you, but I may take the Cell of the young Marquis D'Ancre at * Mont Valerien, there by a long Peni- * Hermitence to purge me of those sins you say rage near Ihave committed? Therefore if you reckon me in the number of those Reprobates doom'd to people the Infernal Shades, time will at last make it appear that your Eminence has reckon'd without your Hoft. MARY

at

ot

OU

8 s'd

he

la-

re he oi.

res nis

0-

le-

nut 'nt

10 re ır

7-

MARY of England TO THE POPE.

he

th

a

S

b

h

ľ

Most Holy Father,

HE malignant Planet that govern'dat my Birth, so influenc'd all the Faculties of my Soul, that I was the most outrageous and barbarous Princess that till that time mounted the English Throne; and as it is no extraordinary thing to continue in the same temper; in a countrey inhabited only with Tyrants and the Butchers of their Subjects; fo you ought not to be furpris'd if I am not now disposses'd of it. I had not long troubled the World before my * Mother was divorc'd, and I my felf declar'd incapable of fucceeding Henry the 8th. Ann of Bulloin was then brought to the Royal Bed, and what was worse, with her was introduc'd a Religion, so conformable to the Laws of God, that it never fuited with my Inclinations. proud Rival of Gatharine was afterwards facrific'd to the inconstancy of her voluptu-

* Queen Catharine of Spain. ous Husband; but that insipid Religion, to my Grief, was not confounded with her; for the young and simple Edward countenanc'd it during his Reign. But then, came my turn! and you know, Sovereign Pontiff, with what Pride and Malice I mounted the Throne; the means I us'd to destroy that cursed Heretical Dodrine; the pleasure I took in shedding my Subject's Blood; what Magnificence and Splendour I gave to the Mass; how barbaroufly I treated that innocent and beautiful Princess Fane Suffolk; with what severity I us'd my Sister Elizabeth; and also the immoderate Joy that feiz'd my precious Soul, when I married a Prince, who had as well as I, the good quality of being Cruel to the highest degree, is not unknown to you. Notwithstanding what I said in the beginning of my Letter, you may, perhaps, think my Sentiments now alter'd, but I affure you the contrary, and that I cannot behold with Patience your present Insensibility and Mildness. Is it possible you can suffer a Religion, destitute of all Ornaments, that has nothing but Truth and Simplicity to recommend it, to get the advantage of your Rome, which Reigns in Blood and Purple, subsists by Falshood and Idolatry. and

dat

cul-

but-

till

ne;

onrey

But-

not

s'd

rld

dI

ing

hen

was

on,

t it

The

rds

tu

ous

and fets up and pulls down Kings? How can you indure it? What a horrid shame and weakness is this? Are there no more Ravaillacs? Is their neither Powder nor Daggers in the Arfenal of the Festitis Have they forgot how to build Wheels, Gibbets and Scaffolds? Or is your Malice. Envy, Hatred and Fury feiz'd with a Lethargy? 's death Holy Father! I am distracted when I think that nothing succeeds in England, where I took so much Pains, and practis'd fo much Cruelty to establish Popery, and root out the Doctrine of the Apostles; and where your pious Emissaries, following my Zeal, had invented most admirable Machines, to sacrifice, with James the First, all the Enemies of your Antichristian Holiness! Do you sleep! and must France only brandish the glorious Flambeau of Persecution? Consider, I pray, that I employ'd the best of my time in Imprecations against the Deferters from your Church, that I fo inflam'd my Blood in those Transports, that it threw me into a Dropfie, which hurried me to the Grave. My Husband, who was too much of my Temper to love me, was very little concern'd. In short, That filthy Disease stiff'd me, a certain prefage of the continual Thira

How

name

more

nor uits?

neels,

lice,

a Le-

di-

fuc-

ruch

y to rine

ious ven-

fice.

s of

ep?

ous

ray,

Imour in o a ive. my

on-A'd

ial

MA

Thirst I now fuffer. But I once more befeech you, most Holy Father, to re-inforce your Squadrons, to joyn them with the most Christian King's, and with your Holy Benediction, give them strict orders to grant no Quarters to the Disciples of St. Paul. You will infinitely oblige by it, both me and Lucifer, who is now as zealous a Romanist as your Eldest Son, and who, like him, wou'd not willingly fuffer any but good Papiffs, the Friends and Penfioners of Verfailles, those sworn Enemies of Liberty and Property in his Dominions. I am fo ill natur'd that my Husband Philip is as cautious of imbracing me as he was in the other World; but that's no misfortune either to Earth or Hell, for we cou'd produce nothing but a Monster between us. which wou'd be the Terror of mankind. and Horror of Devils.

K The

describing a many rest to the other origin brown of to of the bearing

ANSWER

TO

MARY of England.

70U are too violent, dear Madam, and Men of my Age and Grandeur require more moderation. I'am acquainted with your History, and know your Zeal, by the same token you needed not waste your Lungs to acquaint me with either the one or the other. To be free with you, I am not of the Humour to espouse mady other People's Passions, the I shou'd leave the Triple Crown destitute of all Pomp and But I will make the Heretick Greatness. blot out of their Writings, if possible, the names of Antichrift, devouring Dragon, Wolf diffuis'd in a Sheep skin, and several other as abusive. Do not you believe People are weary of paying a blind Obedience to the See of Rome? Imperious France has made us fensible of it; and 'tis not the fault of the Eldest Son of the Church, if he does not On

and

nted

æal,

raste

her

VOU.

idly

ave

and

iek

the

Volf

F 86

are

the

ade

t of not

de-

dethrone his Mother. Ecclesiastical Cenfures are now out of fashion, and no more minded than Pasquinades. We were forn'd and ridicul'd in your Father's time; and tho you were as handfom as my quondam Mistress, or, Donna Maria di S. Germano you shou'd not oblige me to put up fresh Affronts for your sake. Your Husband is to blame to treat you with fuch indifference and I think it very ill for an infected Worln-eaten Carcais to despife fo devout a Queen. But I cannot imagine why the Popes, who live all under the fame Zone with you, fuffer fuch coldness? Suppose your Husband shou'd, like a Heretick despise their Exhortations, one of their Decrees has Power enough to divorce you? Which in time, I hope, may advance your Grandeur, for we hear Pla to is in Love with you for your Zeal, and that Proferpine is given over by the Physiclans. Therefore take my advice, and drink as little water as you can; for, being Dropfieal, the Water of Styx must needs be prejudicial to you, and the Church would lofe an admirable good Friend. I offer you no Indulgences, they are pure Mounte-bank Drugs, and were you got no further yet than Purgatory, have northe Virtue to bring bring you out. But grant they had that Power; as your Amours stand now, I suppose you wou'd not desire it; so till I have the happiness of wishing your Imperial Majesty much joy, 1 am, &c.

HARLEQUIN

10

Father la Chaife.

Since we were of the same Trade, with this difference only, that I compos'd Farces to make the World laugh, and that you invent Tragedies that give them Horror; I believe, Reverend Father, you will not condemn the liberty I take of writing to you.

In the first place, I beseech your Reverence not to put your Penitents out of conceit with those harmless Diversions which make me and my brother Players live so plentifully; but be pleased to take our small fmall Flock into your Protection. That that w, I till I mpe-

&c.

ith os'd hat

orvill ng

vench fo

or ill

Power lies in the Breast of you and your pious Society; and who wou'd grudge it to fuch Holy Men as have no other aim than fetling and fatisfying Men's Confciences, by clearing all the controverted difficulties of Christianity, and rendring Religion fo plain and easie, that your Enemies cannot find the least doubt or difficulty in it. Nay, like dexterous Artists, you can, with your admirable Morals, remove the justest scruples, for they give so pious an Air, fo devout a Shade to the greatest Crimes, that they inchant the World, and hide their Deformity, without opposing the Licentiousness of Passions, or destroying their Pleasure or Intention. Thefe admirable Talents, most Holy Confessor, open to your Society the Closets and Hearts of Princes, and bring all the lovers of Voluptuousness and Barbarity to be your Confessionaries. Truly, Reverend Father, your Fame is infinite, and the great St. Loyola may be proud of having fo many righteous Disciples. But these Miracles make the World believe him fomething related to Simon Magus; for without Inchantments tis impossible to do so many Prodigies. The Lameness in his Feet, and Megrim

K 3

he's ti

t

te

di

o ti

d

n

u

tl

d

0

e

n

CI

fa

K

tl

n

W

1

he's daily troubled with, by being too hear a hot Furnace of Brimstone, make him to peevish and out of humour, that he cannot write to any of you, Therefore look upon me as his Secretary, and not a jot the leffer Saint for having been upon the Stage, all Paris can witness for me, that as foon as I laid afide my Comical Mask and Habit, I cou'd upon occasion look as demure and devout as a fresh pardon'd Penitent; fo that the imployment is neither above my Gravity, nor I hope above my Sincerity and Capacity; for I have often had the honour of shewing my Parts before his most Christian Majesty in his Seraglio, to make him more prolifick and more dispos'd to the mighty work of Propagation. But, Reverend Father, 'tis time now to tell you, as a good Catholick and your Friend, that we are so scandalized here at his Conduct, that we cannot believe he follows your Holy Advice; and were it not for this doubt, and our follicitations, Lucifer had last Summer fent Linyola under the Command of Monsteur Luxembourg to dragoon you. 'Zounds! fuys he, is the Order that daily fent me fo many Subjects, revolted? 'Tis true, the Rogues Ravaillac and Clement have a little difgrac'd

10 ot p-

he

e,

on br

le-

'n.

er ny

en

16-

g.

id

0-

ne

pt

e-

id

ol-

nt

är

s!

6

10

le

d difgrac'd you , but we do not value now what they fay, for the Wits have espous'd your Quarrel, and blind the Eyes of Detraction. Indeed, it is no wonder to us. fince they fing to Apollo's Harp, which had the power to calm the Transports of Jupiter? Is there any thing fo charming as the discourses of * Ariste and Lugene, and that * Father little Fe ne fai quoy, they speak so wittily Bauhours, of? Who can relift the Art of good Inven-Moine, fee tion in the work of Wit, or an exquisite suis. choice of good Verfes? And who would not be charm'd with all those Panegyricks upon the Ladies? Is not once reading of them a thousand times more diverting, than those prefound Writings you so prudently forbid your Penirents the perufal of? I own indeed that this Conduct is not altogether fo Apostolical, but 'tis much easier than to be always puzzling and hammering out Parables? 'Tis certain, most Reverend Father, frou'd you leave the Sau cred Writ open to all Readers, it would fare with a thousand good Souls as with King Abafaeras, who became favourable to the True Religion by reading a True Chro-How many blind wretches think ye, wou'd fee clear? How many Favourites wou'd be hang'd, and Mordecai's rais'd to Ho-

Fo

fo

Li

in

w

al

fu

no

an

Col

to tio

po

and tia

He

8

Honour? And how many Fesuits wou'd be treated as the Priests of Baal? But you, I'm fure, will take care to hinder that for truly 'twou'd be contrary to your Ecclesiastical Prudence, and 'tis much safer for you to darken the Divine Lights, and confound, by Sophisms, the Sacred Truths of Holy Writ; for what wou'd become of your Church if the Clouds were once dispers'd, since it flourishes by their Favour, and the protection of Ignorance. Nothing can keep up the Credit of a repudiated Cheat, whose Shams are so notorious, and whose Equipage so different from that of the legitimate Spouse of Jesus Christ, that neither He, nor any of his Faithful Servants know or own her, but Ignorance and Falshood. I ask your pardon, most Reverend Father, these Expressions flow so naturally from my Subject, that they have escap'd my Sincerity, and I own this is not the Style of a Flatterer. But to atone for my Fault, I will give you some wholefome advice, which is, to make Hay while the Sun shines, for you must not expect much fair weather in these doleful Quarters. Those worthy Gentlemen, call'd Confeffors, being look'd upon here to be no better than so many Ignes Fatui, that lead their Followers fon they are not allow'd Ice with their Liquor. This I can affure you to be true in verbo histrionis, therefore since you know what you must trust to, I need not advice a Person of your profound Parts what meafures to take. Adien.

Father la Chaise's Answer

TO

HARLEQUIN.

Tho you conversed with none but impudent Lowsie Rimers, yet you are not ignorant, you little Jack-pudding of the Stage, that all Comparisons are odious, and that there can be none between the Confessor of a Monarch and a Bussion. But to answer your Letter with the Moderation and Prudence of a Jesuit, I will suppose the first part of it not meant to me, and now take into consideration the essential Points in it. Have we not proscrib'd Heresse by sound of Trumpets and not withstanding

fte

B

of

m

in

a

ne

W

In

fre

de

9 withstanding all the pretty Books we have publish'd and the cajoling tricks we have us'd, is not Herefie Still the fame? But, to be ferious, Harlequin, good Raman Catholicks must follow no other Lights than those of Tradition; and they, who are fo incredulous and obstinate as not to believe it, must have their Eyes open'd with the Sword, 'Twou'd be a fine enterprise, wou'dit not, and very profitable to the Church to condemn Images, Candles, Holy-mater, Beads, Seapulaires, Relicks, with a hundred others, which are so many Golden Mines, and offer only to Bigots the flovenly Equipage of Calvin's Reformation? Devotion merely fpiritual is too flat and infiold, therefore we must fet it off with Jubilees, Pilgrimages, Proceffions, Drums, Trumpers, Groffes, Bamers, and all the Mountebank Tricks, and noble Knick-knacks of St. Germain's Fair. If I did not know that jefting was an habitual Sin in you, I wou'd never pardon you y for the Society of Fefus does not teach us to forgive Injuries. Tell St. Loyola, the first of us that shall be fent Post to mighty Lucifer, to defire his affidance in those important Affairs our great Monerel has undertaken by his Instigation, and which are too tedious now to relate, shall put into his Portue I fe.

0-

n-

it

n-

un

0

of

in

Port-mantle some Ice to refresh him, Plaisters for his Megrim, and Ointment for his Burns. Tell him also that the Memory of the glorious Prophet Mahomes is not more respected than his, and that I am but it was never as

m ber His most sealous I will to renve event allett on frytisk Het aud dong eindur ein to fartier bedaged La Chaife.

The Duke of ALVA

TO THE

Clergy of France.

I Believe, worthy Gentlemen, you are very well farisfied that I am damn'd ,--- and indeed there was little likelihood that fuch a Monster as my self should enjoy Happiness, after having committed so much Wickelness, and taken so much Pleasure in it. I took a fancy to acts of Cruelty from my very Cradle, and with great Fidelity serv'd Philip the Second, the celebrated

1

t

n

p

B

r

u

0

H

te

th

ra

fa

M

be

th op an pro

Ey

dee

as a

ry

(F)

brated Apostle of the Gentiles never made fo many miferable wretches, when he was a violent Zealot of the Law. I like him made use of Chains, Racks; Fire, and all that an ingenious Fury cou'd imagine mell tormenting, but it was never any part of my Destiny to be converted at last like him. Thus I went on in my Iniquities, and became the ftrongest Brute that B gotry ever debauch'd, fo that at my fin arrival to Hell, there was never a Devi of the whole pack but fell a trembling the he had been never to much accustom ed to fuch Company before. But, Gentlemen, why are not you become Will by my Example For you must not flat ter your felves that the difference of our Professions makes any in our Crimes? you are Warriours when you pleafe, for the Monastick Soldiery follow'd the Duke of Mayenne's Standard during the League crown'd themselves with immortal shame at the barbarous Triumph of St. Barth lamen, and shoulder'd the Musket after they had preach'd those bloody Sermons which made Christians treat their fellow Creatures like Beafts of Prey. I confes, never troubled my head about fcruples of Conscience, and if I have not obey'd that Article better de

/as im

all

No

art

ike

les,

Bi-

first

livs

ng,

mi

en:

Vife

Hat.

Out

you

the

of

[HO]

me

ribo

ftet

ons,

low

ís, l es of that

ticle

Article of the Decalogue, Thou foals not kill, I never roar'd our with a wide mouth, as the Priests of the Roman Church, Perfecute, Imprison, Kill, Destroy, force them to obey. My Fury came only from your Brethren, who had to thoroughly corrupted me, that I thought Heaven wou'd be my reward, if I Butcher'd all they were pleas'd to stigmatize with Herefie. So I gave a loofe to my Paffions, as you may read in History, where, I think, they have us'd me but too kindly. To feduce Men of weak understandings is no extraordinary matter, but that Princes, who ought to have a competent knowledge of every thing, shou'd be cheated by you, is a Miracle to me. No age of the World ever faw a greater Example of it, than in my Master Philip, whose natural sloth, and beforted Bigotry gave fo fair a Field to these Ecclesiastical Impostors, so fair an opportunity to manage him as they pleas'd and his * Fathers Ashes are a sufficient * Charles proof of it. Instead of setting before his the Vih. Eyes the Examples of that invincible Prince. thele fanctified Villains only plung'd him deeper in Superstition and Idolatry." And as a domineering lazy Lord of a counry Village will never go out of his own Parish,

i

F

C

Q

n

S

di

th

P

C

d

Parish, so he never travell'd farther than from Madrid to the Escurial. His Wife. Father, Son and Brother felt the Effects of their barbarous Doctrine. And to leave behind him a pious Idea of his Soul when he was dying, he order'd his Crown and Coffin to be fet before him. This was Hypocrific with a witness, but that is no crime in a Zealot. You'll tell me, per haps, I direct my discourse to improper Persons, who know not the History of Philip of Austria; Ignorance being common enough in those of your Fraternity: Ye, let me tell ye, I am not mistaken; forthe Diabolical Spirit that now possesses you, is the very fame that influenc'd the Prick of my time; and I may fafely affirm that France is the Theatre of Cruelty and Inquity. Your Monarch, who is much fud another Saint as my Master, spares the poor Protestants Lives, for no other refon, but to make, by his inhumane Torments, Death more defirable to them These and a Thousand more unjust Actions does he commit to fatiate your hellish Vanity, which wou'd for ever do mineer in the City built on Seven Mountains. 'To this you'll answer, What don't it fignifie if we make him perfecute the ProteProtestants, murder their Kings, and keep no Faith, or Treaties with them, since it increases our Power and propagates our Religion? But, Gentlemen, when you come to be where I am, you will, I'm certain sing to another Tune.

the the Hart Handle and the

han

ife.

sof

ave

oul.

Win Was B no

bet-

non

Yet,

the

i, is that

Ini-

uch

the

rea-

Cor-

em.

jul

OU

do

un

loth

the ote-

ANSWER

Of the Olergy of France to the month

Duke of ALVA.

Hard you made as sincere a Confession in the days of yore as you do now, you might for your Zeal in persecuting Herese have obtain'd an ample Absolution of all your sins, the they had been never so numerous and black, and been a glorious Saint in the Remov Calendar; which induces us to believe your Zeal, tended rather towards the Propagation of your own Power and Interest, than that of the Church: Thus in cheating us you likewise cheated your self; and we are not forry at your Calamities. But does it become you, who once fill'd Flanders and Spain with Horror, to reproach the Apostolick Legions with the noble effects of their Fer. vency? And was it not absolutely neces. fary, after we had once preach'd the de struction of the Protestants, that Lewis the great, to compleat his Glory, and our fatisfaction, should fend his Holy Troops to Burn, Ravish, and Pillage at discretion; that he might say with an Emperour of Rome, whom he very much refembles, let them hate, so they fear me. Where, Sir, do you find us commanded to keep Faith with Hereticks, or fuffer their Princes to live when 'tis against our interest? Does not the Roman Church dispense with these little Peccadillos, and are not those who wear her Cloath, and eat her Bread, oblig'd to obey her Precepts? What pleafes us most, is, to hear a whining Recreant, as thou art, fing peccavi at this time of day, and pretend to remorfe of Conscience. For your comfort, you may defire Cerberus, if you please, to joyn in the Confort with you; but restassured, that if you had three mouths like that triple-headed Cur, your barking wou'd be all in vain.

8

fi

r

re

as

di

of

an ha

pe

cri

Pr

he ev

PHILIP of Austria TO THE

me

dick

Fer. cef-

dethe fa-

s to

on;

r of

let

Sir,

ith

to oes

efe

ho

ob-

us

as

of

íci-

ire

70-

ou

ed

1.

lip

THat do you mean, worthy Kinf man, by pretending to be a Man of Honour? Does it become a Person of your Birth? Do you find any Precedent for it in your Family? Did your Father make himfelf formidable by it? or do you find in History that any merciful or generous Prince made himself so Great, or reigned fo prosperously for almost 60. Years, as your debauch'd and perjur'd Father has done; who is now the Terror and Scourge of Europe, and will be its Tyrant if Treachery. andGold can prevail? But do you think those things to be Crimes in Sovereigns? If he has indulg'd his Luft, does he not feverely persecute Heresie? And besides, does nor his * Mistress constantly pray and offer Sa- * Madam crifice? you know the's old enough to be Maintenon Prudent; and lives up to the Gravity of her Age, fince the stretches her Devotion even to the Stage; by the same token she will fuffer none of her * Husband's diverting Farces to be acted there any more Thank Heaven therefore for fending you that bountiful Patroness from the | New Maintenon World, who is the Comfort and Preserva-Martenico. tion of your Father and his Kingdoms; and tho your Mother was my near Relation, yet am I not asham'd to see so pure and see lous a Saint supply her place in the Royal Bed. I wonder she has not yet prevaild with you to have more regard for the Interest of the Roman Church: to promote the Grandeur whereof I destroy'd many Thou fands of its Enemies by the Ministry of the Duke of Alva, and ordered my Fathers Bones to be dug out of the Ground and burnt for having tolerated Lather's Herefie Otherwise I should never have concern'd my felf much about it, supposing none but Flegmatick Goscombs wou'd espouse a Church which does not keep open House all the year round, and won't pardon the great est Crimes for Money. You know, I don't doubt, what my jealousie cost my * Son and | Wife, and how I treated the * Conqueror at Lepanto , To balance that account with Heaven, I gave largely to the Priests, built Monasteries, went to Proces fions, was loaded like a Mule with Beads

* Dom Carlos. || Elizabeth of France. Dom John of Austria.

41

Sa

en

tri

m

de

tal

of

fin

tio

an

do

Hu

glo

the

Sai

we perc

Pri

Wa

and

and

us I

Tori

lot

lo r affec

t-

Du

W

a-

et

1

In<sub>2</sub>

he

)U

of

nd nd

sie.

id

ut

reb

te

at

THE PE

the

cef ads and affection for you.

and Relicks, and by this means passed for a Saint. And this I think, may properly enough be call'd a good Religion. true, I never faw any Engagement but in my Closet, or at a distance like your prudent Father. What then, does the World talk less of me, or him for that? The end of my Life, I must confess, was something fingular for the Worms ferv'd an Execution upon my Carkass before the times and so we hear they do his. But what does that fignifie, to a Man fatisfies his own Humour? Be not infatuated then with vain glory; for if they, who are exempt from the Flames of Hell, boast of having Angels, Saints, and Martyrs for their Companions; we can brag of having Popes, Gardinals, Emperours, Kings, Queens, Jesuits, Monks and Priests in abundance. I must own our Walks have not the charming Fountains and Shades of * Verfailles and the * Escurial; ** The two and that tis always as hot weather with Royal Houus here, as with the good Folks under the France and Torrid Zone: But such a trifle as this ought Spain. not to make you thun the Company of

L 2

to many choice Friends as have an entire

The

The Dauphin's

ANSWER

TO

PHILIP of Austria.

Teither the Examples you have quoted nor those which are daily before my Eyes have power enough to pervert me; I have a veneration for Virtue, which you for sooth, call the quality of a Coxcomb, and an abhorrence for all that bears the stamp of Vice, tho you have illustrated it with the prosperous and glorious Reign of the French Monarch. But were the first unknown to me, I wou'd not look for it in your Life, since, according to your best Friends, it is a thing you never practis'd. As Sons have no authority to condemn the Conduct of their Fathers, so I will not presume to examine into that of Lewis the 14th. But tell me, I beseech you, what advantages you reap'd from from your Bigotry and Superflition? For my part, had I some of the Ashes of every Saint in the Roman Calendar in my Snuffbox, and carried Beads as big as Cannonbullets about me, I shou'd not believe my felf either a better Christian, or less expos'd to danger. But to what purpose did you, who never expos'd your Royal Person in Battel, arm your self with all those imaginary Preservatives? Or can you fay they defended you from being devour'd alive by Millions of Vermin that punish'd you in this Life for the Iniquities you daily committed, and were only the prelude to more terrible Punishments. Let not my indifference for the Church of Rome break your rest, I have no Power at present; and I can't tell what my Sentiments wou'd be, had I a Crown on my head. But it now cruelly troubles me to fee France so weakned by the dispersion of fo many thousand innocent People; and did my opinion fignifie any more in our Councils than wind, I wou'd advise the recalling of 'em. But the Nymph you fee with fo much fatisfaction supply the place of your Grandchild, and who has more Power now than ever, is there as absolute my

ne

YOU

mb,

the

ted

ign

the

ok

to ne.

ity

71, ito

as a Distator. The French Manarchy, which has subsisted for so many Ages, might be still supported without her; She being good for nothing that I know of, but to instruct Youth in the nicest ways of debauchery: Therefore I cou'd wish the king wou'd transport her to her native Soil, and make her Governness of the American Mankies; a fitter imployment for her than that she usurps over our Princesses. To deal plainly with you, I have no ambition to see your Majesty, being satisfied with knowing you from publick Report; so will carefully avoid coming near your Torrid Zone, if 'tis possible for a man to be any time a King of France without it.

Land vine "This " Manghet on but ortholiving between the britis toply strollings.

to our vince) was in down of this

JUVE-

FUVENAL BOILBAU.

Clince we don't dispatch Couriers every day from the Kingdom of Pluto, you ought not to be furprised, that I have not had an opportunity till now of telling you what flicks in my Stomach, I thought your first Satyrs very admirable, your Expressions just, and laboriously turn'd, yet charming and natural. Were the diffribution of Rewards in my Power, I shou'd certainly give you fomething for your Art of Poetry: But, for your Latrin, that Master-piece of your Wit, that highest effort of your Imagination, I fee nothing in it worthy of you, but the Versification. Every one owns you can write, nay, your very Enemies allow it; But you know a Metamorphosis requires an entire change; therefore, fince you refolv'd to imitate Virgil, you should have made choice of noble Heroes. He that travested the Aneis understood it better than you, and did not fatigue himself so much, and as he was a out all L4

Man of clear and good sence has judiciously go

CSS

ea

th

fo

is,

W

by

he

In

ar

nı

be

be ly

CL

fa

lo

tv

fe

Si

th

ce fa

m

godly,

remark'd that his Queen difguis'd in a Countrey Wench, is infinitely beyond your Glockmaker's Wife dress'd like an Empress. let us leave this Subject which now 'tis too late to amend, fince what is done cannot be undone. What did you mean, you I fay, who have been accus'd of stealing my Lines. and who, to deal honeftly with you, have often follow'd the same Road I have trac'd, what did you mean, I fay, by reflecting on particulars in your Satyr against Women Did I ever fet you that Example? Is not my Sixth Satyr against the Sex in general; and when I look back as far as the Reigns of Saturn and Rhea for * Modesty, do I pretend the least shadow of it is left upon Earth? Unthinking Fool! those different Characters you have drawn will make you fo many particular Enemies; and I question, if the Patroness you have chosen can secure you from their Claws. If an affected zeal inspires you with so much Veneration for a Saint of the Italian fashion, in truth, you ought to have burnt your Incense so privately, that the Smoke might not have offended others. How can the Bard that boalts of eating no Flesh in Lent, that wou'd frankly discipline himself in the face of the * Credo pudicitiam Saturno Rege moratam. godly, like one of the Militia of St. Francis, adore a Golden Com, and adorn an Idol each blast of Wind can otherthrow, with those Garlands, which shou'd be preserved for the Statues of the greatest Heroes! She is, 'tis true, very singular in her kind: But will you stain your name of illustrious Poet, by creeping before a walking Mummy of her superannuated Gallantry? your fordid Interest has made you a Traytor to Satyr; and thereby you occasion here daily continual divisions. | Chapelain and St. Amant have | Two Anbeen at Cuffs with * Moliere and Corneille, cient Poets. because you have not treated them so civil- dern Poets. ly as your | Urgande. The two first ridi- | Madam cule your fordid covetous humour, and fay, you learnt that baseness while you belong'd to the Register's Office. The other two, who were perhaps of your Trade, defend the honour of your Extraction. But AFrench St. Amant, who will never forget the unwor. Poet whom thy Character you have given him, con-makes free cerning his Poverty, which he fwears is with in his false; and submitting his Verses, to the judg-fift sayr, ment of unprejudic'd Persons, for which where you ridicule him, faid, in a haughty tone, (which fet us all a laughing) that when he was Gentleman of the Chamber in ordinary to the Queen of Poland, and Ambassador baffador extraordinary at the Coronation of the Queen of Sweden, he kept several Footmen of better Quality than your felf. Chapelain, who cannot fay fo much for himself, is content with singing the terrible Valour of the Duke de Nevers Lackeys, who kept time with their Cudgels on your Shoulders. We were forc'd to call for a Bottle to appeale this War; and St. Amam, taking the Glass in his hand, swore by his Maker, he had rather you had call'd him Drunkard than Fool, tho he drinks very moderately in this Place, where 'tis no great fcandal to be Thirsty. Be not concern'd at this Paragraph, because the rell of my Letter sufficiently testifies the esteem I have for you, and my concern for your welfare: Therefore to preferve both, renounce your fordid way of praising Vice, and imploy your happy Talent in teaching Good Manners, and correcting the Bad, which will be an Employment worthy of your great Genius; and is the only way to recommend you to the good opinion of the Learned Ancients.

(13)

BOILEAUS

P

BOILBAU'S Answer TO

is align definer to die

Illustrious Ghoft,

on

ral elf. for ble

ho

ınt,

his

im

ery

110

onrest

em

óur

Te-

ice,

ing

of v

way

ion

Message from the Muses never fill'd me with fo much Transport as the first fight of your Letter; but I had not read fix Lines before I wish'd you had never done me that honour. To praise my Satyrs, and fall foul upon my Latrin, which made me sweat more drops of Water, than your drunkard St. Amant, (fince I must call him fo) ever drank of Wine, is no Favour. After many laborious and fruitless endeavours finding, to my great grief and distraction, I could match you in Wit, I refolv'd, if possible, to outdo you in Malice, which made me take the liberty of Romancing a little on St. Amant, falling foul upon peoples Characters and Manners, and treating feveral fcurvy Poets more roughly, than you did the Thefeis of Godrus, when you fang, Semper ego auditor tantum? Numquam ne re-Vexatus toties rauci Theseide Codri?

Thus

Thus suffering the Gall of my heart to flow through the Chanel of my Pen, I procur'd my self Enemies in abundance, and since I must confess all to you, some stripes with a Bulls Pizzle, which was a most terrible mortification to my Shoulders; but I bore all this with the patience of a Philosopher, as will appear by the following Lines.

Let Godrus, that nauseous pretender to Wit, Condemn all my works before Courtier and Cit. I bear all with Patience, whatever he says, And I value as little his scandal as praise. Vain-glory no longer my Genius does fire, 'Tis Inte'rest alone tunes the strings of my Lire. Integrity's naught but a plausible Sham, For Money I praise, and for Money I damn. Old politic Bards for Fame have no itching, The Apollo I court is the steam of a Kitchin.

The four first Lines, I must own, are something against the grain; and the natural Inclination I have to Rail and be thought an excellent Poet gives my Tongue the Lye; but the four last, which shew more Prudence than Wit, reconcile that matter. Tis certainly, illustrious Bard, more difficult to please the World now, than

b

y

n

to 0 nd

es

oft

S;

a

W-

re.

are na-

be gue

eW

hat

erd,

w, 1an

Holita #

to Keng

o he

France

Heart th

than it was in your time; for if I write Satyr, I'm bearen for it; if I praise, I'm call'd a mercenary Flatterer; which to disheartens me, that I address my felf now to my Gardener only; and don't doubt but fome bufie nice Gritick, will be cenfuring this Poem alfo. Not being in the best humour, when I writ it, perhaps it may appear fomething dark and abstruse; but I can easily excerte that by maintaining that 'tis impossible for the best Author in the World, to keep up always to the fame strain. Have you ever heard of the Tales of the Peau-d'Afue & Grisedilis? If Proserpine had any little Children, 'twou'd be a most agreeable diverfion for them, and I wou'd fend it 'em for a Present. Tho that Author furnishes you with fufficient matter to laugh at me, yet I must confess he has found the Art of making something of a Trifle. Every one here learns his Verses by heart; and in spight of my Translation of Longinus, which makes it so plainly appear I understand Greek, and know fomething of Poetry, my Book begins to be despis'd. Wou'd it not break a Man's Heart to fee fuch impertinent Stuff prefer'd before so many sublime Pieces? But, as for your Glory, that will eternally subsist, and nothing can destroy it, since time has not DIANA already done it.

❷

* Mistris to King Henry the ad. of France.

I AN A of Porcuers Madam Maintenon,

Beller O. John to in not something of the water and

I

II

di

W

ar

B

th

li

th

R

ye

Olnce the Spirit of Curiofity possesses us here in this World no less than it did in yours, 'tis an infinite trouble for those Perfons, Madam, who were acquainted with every thing while they liv'd, not to know all that paffes after their Death; and of this you will one day make an Experiment. I am not defirous to know, Madam, what you have done to succeed the greatest Beauties of the Earth in the Affection of an old libidinous Monarch, nor what Charms you make use of to secure the possession of his Heart, at an Age you cannot please without a Miracle. My Planet, dear Madam, has rendred me fome. what knowing in these affairs, for Henry the 2d, was my Gallant as long as he liv'd; and the I was a little handsomer than you, I was not, I think, much younger. I must tell you, I cannot comprehend what procures you those loud Commendations and Applauses which reach even our Ears; and are by their noise most horribly offenfive to us. The advantages of my Birth were great; and it is well known my Charms to captivated Francis the First, that they redeem'd my Father from the Gallows. I married a very confiderable Man, and the name of Breze Sene schal of Normandy, founds formewhat better than that of Scaron the Queens Ballad-maker. The House of Poithers too, from which I was descended, may furely take place of those Monarchs from whom that mercenary Fellow Boileau derives your extraction, and laftly, if I had a few particular Enemies, I did nothing to make my felf generally odious. Yet for all this, I was neither canonized nor prais'd but openly laugh'd at and by one of my own Profession I mean, the Dutchess of Estampe, who was Mistrils to the Father of my Lover, and faid the was born on my Wedding day. Blundering imprudent Bayard was banish'd for speaking too freely of mes and tho it was faid, that for me alone Beauty had the Privilege not to grow old, the Compliment was to forcd, that I was little the better for it. Ragged Marot was the only Poet that ever pretended to couple Rimes in my Praise, and I will appeal to you if he did not deferve to go naked.

0

d

4 le

è.

'n

u

ly e ny l; u,

it,

at

ns

s;

I dare not (wer't to fave my ranfome) Affirm you Ladyship is handsome, Nor without telling monstrous Lyes Defend the lightning of your Eyes. For, Madam, to declare the Truth, You've neither Face, nor Shape, nor Youth How'er, all Flattery apart You've play'd your Cards with wondrous Arr. When Young, no Lover faw your Charms, Or prest you in his eager Arms: But Triumphs your Old Age attend. And you begin where others end.

What think you, Madam, of this; isit not rather Sayr than Praise? Shou'd the Bard, that fings your Virtues from the top of Parnassus down to the Market-place, be as fincere, how wou'd you reward him? Tho I know he has more Prudence yet I cannot believe he compares you to Helen for Beauty, to Hebe for Youth, for Chastity to Lucretia, for Courage to Chelia, and for Wisdom to Minerva, as common report fays, because, were it true, it is not to be suppos'd you wou'd have put a poor deform'd Poet in possession of fuch mighty Treasures; for, were there

C

A

W

fa

( 2 fue lit

(3

ger

fex to th

it.

is it

the top

be

im

yet

He

ha-

elia,

OM

rue,

nave

ffion

were there there not Scepters and Crowns then inticing? Were not then the Eyes of Princes open? Did ye choose an Author for your Love, out of Caprice, or Despair? Did you take his Wicker-Chair for a Throne? Or did the Love of Philosophy draw you in? Had the latter wrought upon you, you wou'd not have been the first, I must confess, for the famous Hipparchia, Handsome, Young and Rich, prefer'd poor crooked Crates before the Wealthiest and most Beautiful Gentleman of Greece. I am unwilling to judge uncharitably. but, I cannot be perswaded that fuch an Alliance cou'd be contracted without some pressing necessity. When I reflect on the beginning, increase and circumstances of your Fortune, I am astonish'd! for neither your Hair which was Gray when you began to grow in favour, nor the Remembrance of (1) a (1) Mudam Vestate once ador'd nor the Idea of a la Val-(2) Blooming Beauty, whom cruel Death liere. fuddenly fnatch'd away by the help of a de Fonlittle Poison; nor the Presence of a tange. (3) Rival, by so much the more dan- (3) Madam gerous, because she had triumph'd over devonter feveral other, cou'd prove any obstacles panto your Prosperity. The Bountiful Lady

162 Diana of Poitiers to Madam Maintenon.

that brought you out of your mean obscurity, and in whose Service you thought your self happy, is now content if you let her enjoy the least shew of her former Greatness. In this Chaos I lose my self, Madam, but if you will bring me out of my Consusion, I saithfully promise to give you an exact account of all that concerns me, when I shall have the Pleasure of Embracing you. I exceedingly commend your prudent Conduct, for those young Planes you cultivate in a those young Plants you cultivate in a *The Nuns * terrestial Paredise, will one day proof St. Cyr. duce Flowers to Crown you; and the Zeal you profess for a Religion which began to act furiously in my time, must stop the mouths of the nicest Bigots, and make the Tribunal of Confession favourable to you; tho perhaps, dear Madam it may make that of Minos a little more fevere.

Madam

C

tl

(e far Ipi

Madam MAINTENON'S

ob.

ght

her elf, t of to hut

leagly

for n a oro-

the

betou

and

our-ami

TOTE

A COMPANIE OF THE PARTY OF THE

ANSWER

TO

DIANA of POITIERS.

Uriolity, Madam, being the Character of the Great and Busie, I will answer you according to your Merit and Birth, tho' you have not treated me fo. Since you know what Charms a Lover when Youth is gone, I'll difmifs that Point to come to the History of my Life, and the Virtuous Actions I am praifed for. I know you are of an Ancient Family, that you Married a Man of Power and Riches, and that you were Francis the First's Bedfellow, before his Son fell in Love with you. As for me, I was born in the * New World, under a favourable Constellation, and the off- Indies. spring of a Goayler's Dangbeer, with whom my Father, the of Royal Blood, was oblig'd, either through Love, or rather Necessity; to cohabit. Fortune which which never yet forfook me, first depriv'd me of my Beggarly Kelations, with out leaving me wherewithal to cover my Nakedness, and then brought me into Europe, where I found a great many Lovers and few Husbands. Poor de form'd Scaron at last offer'd me his hand a I had my Realons for accepting him, and his Infirmities did not hinder me from receiving that Title which was convenient for one in my circumstances. thort, I lost him without much concern, and liv'd fo prudently during my Widow hond, that Madam Mantespan took me out of my Cell, to bring me into the Intrigues of the Court. Every one knows I drove my generous Patroness from the Royal Bed, and that fince my being in favour, I have been profulely liberal to all my Idolaters. Our Poets, who do not resemble Marot, value not Honour, provided they have good Pentions, which I generously bestow on them, and they re pay me in Panegyricks, by which mean I am Handfom , Toung , Chaft , Virtuous Wife, and of as Noble Blood as Alexan der the Greet. Tho' I was a Protestant, the Church is not so foolish as to inquire into my Religion; thus out of prin-

f

t

f

Fo

Srili

hi

e h er n y e

me in our it

n

1

Interest, I have fill'd the Heart of our Monarch, with the godly Zeal of Persecution. I have also founded a stately Edifice, where I breed up a great many St. Cyr. pretty young Virgins, who no doubt on't will prove as Modest and Discreet as their Founder; and I play so well the part of a Queen, that the World thinks me so in reality. These sew hints may give you some light into my History, Madam; therefore to reward my sincerity, if you find Mines dispos'd to use me severely, prepare him, I beseech you, to be more favourable.

HUGH SPENCER the The fayounger, to all the Favourites and mous Minion of our Ministers whom it may concern. Edward Tetal those that are ambitious of the listery of my Life, how dangerous a Folly it is to monopolize their Prince's Smiles. A Man climbs to the top of this slippery ascent through a Thousand difficulties, and if he is not moderate in his Prosperity (which few are) he often M3

h

C

th

re

1 u

to

h

Roll

ne E

re

th

be Ti

for

W

at

fulls with a more precipitated fhame, into Difgrace. I acquir'd, or rather ufurpy the Favour of Edward the Second, in whose Breast the proud Gavefor had be fore me licenticulty revell'd. To effect this, my Father lent me his helping hand but without growing Wifer by the Ex amples of others, the vanity of my Am bition made me follow that wandring Star, call'd Fortune. I had no fooner pollefs'd my felf of the King's Ear, but crept into the fecrets of his Heart, and infeded it with the blackest venome of mine; sching the part of a Self-interent not an Honest Minister. As I value not the Glory of his Reign, or Bufe of his People, provided I Govern'd him and render'd my felf Master of his Tree fures, so did I never move him to relieve the Miferable, or reward the Faithful and Deferving, but indeavour'd to blacken the Merit of their greatel Actions, and fo fettled the first motion of his Liberality, with seafons of fordid Interest. If any Places of Trust were to be fill'd, covering my Treachery fill with the Vail of Zeal and Love for my Country, I recommended only fuch as were devoted to my Service; pretending illmanage.

management in every Thing that went not through my Hands; and that the Nation was betray'd, whilft I, like fome of you now, was Selling it, and was in reality the worft Enemy it had. After I had facrificed the great Duke of Laseffer to my Revenge, and a Hundred Perfons of Quality belides, I fow'd Difcord in the Royal Family. The Queen, with the Prince of Wales her Son, and the Earl of Kent, the King's Brother, retir'd into France: During which time I Govern'd at my Eafe, wallow'd in Lux. ury and Riches, and had Interest enough to hinder Charles the Fair from protecting his Sifter. The Pope, who was of my Religion, storm'd like a true Father Son of the Charob, and fo frighted the King of France, that in spight of their nearness of Blood, he hunted the Queen of England out of his Dominions. But at last the King being reconcil'd, the Queen returns, I was taken Prisoner, and by the Laws of the Kingdom, Sentenc'd to be Drawn on a Sledge, at Sound of Trumpet, through the Streets of Hereford. The Circumstances of my Death were infamous, my Head was expos'd at London, my Bowels, Heart, and some other M 4 il.

20215日

ed

of

m,

64.

re.

th-

to

eA

かはなっ

th

11.

other parts of my Body burn'd, my Car-cals abandon'd to the Crows, in Four parts of the Kingdom; the justest Rel ward a Villain, who had almost deftroy'd both King and Country; cou'd expect. This is, Gentlemen Favourites and Minifers, a Picture you ought all to have in your Closets, to keep you from refembling it. When in Favour, banish not Justice, Clemency and Generosity from the Thrones of your Master, and to avoid a just Hatred, and make Men of Virtue your Friends, study the publick Interest. Turn over old Histories, and you'll find there is fcarce one, or few of us got peace ably to the Grave, but either Starv'd or Rotted, or immortaliz'd a Gibber. Not one Eye ever wept for our sufferings; Pity it felf rejoyc'd: Thus Deteffed on Earth, and Curs'd by Heaven, our last refuge is to become the Prey of Devik: Confider well, Gentlemen, and arm your felves against all those vicious Passions, which will certainly undo you, if you listen to them as I did. Therefore in the shippery Paths of a Court, take Prudence and Justice for your Supporters.

the second of This was bottom to the tribin a printer or was award

The Martin of the theat all after

ANSWER

OF THE

Chief Minister of the King of Ivetos,

To palatity to be

HUGH SPENCER.

THE Picture you have drawn of your Life and Death, shews you were notoriously Wicked, and rewarded according to your Deserts. But let me tell you, Sir, that 'tis a great mistake to believe a Minister cannot mannage or steer his Prince without abusing Him and the Publick. Because you were the Horror of your Age, is it an inevitable Destiny for other Favourites to be so too? I will not here make my one Panegyrick, but leave that care to Posterity: However, I will boldly maintain, that to suffer a Master to divide his Benevolence, when one can secure it all to ones self, is Folly and Stupidity. A Prudent Manknows knows how to make a right Use of his Mafter's Weakness; and if he finds him inclined now and then to gratifie eminent Services, he will not feem much a. verse to it, provided still he loses nothing by the bargain: But if his Prince is of a Covetous Temper, Charity, which always begins at home, then bids him thu up his Exchequer, and referve to himfelf the fole Priviledge of opening it at leafure. Tis likewise no ill step in our Politicks to cry down those Actions which might otherwise by their weight out-value ours; upon fuch occasions to testifie the least Zeal, Pidelity, and Care will be thought Meritorious. The the Escutchions we leave our Children have fome Blots in them, what fignifies that provided we leave them Rich and Noble Titles, which will procure them Honour, and all forts of Pleasure in this World, and a Saints Place hereafter, in that unerring Volume of the Roman Alme ack.

JUBIA

fr

m af

to

ar

OU

fp

Da

He

cec

Or

you Le

9 0 L 1 A,

TO THE

*Princess of CONT 1.

at

u ns.

to

u,

u, d,

n.

Natural Daughter
to the French
King.

S you may wonder, Medam, that I king. who liv'd so many Ages ago, and at present am so many thouland Leagues from you, shou'd esteem and love you; might I wonder too, in my turn, if you should have a good Opinion of me, after fo many Historians have Conspired to blacken my Reputation. But there are, Dear Sifter, fuch Circumstances in our Fortunes, as ought to make us Love one another, and hold a friendly Correspondence, since you are like me, the Daughter of a Beautiful, Treacherous Prince, who drags good Fortune at his Heels, and of a Mother, who renounced the World, before it did her the injury of renouncing her. I was once the Ornament of the Court of Augustus, and you now Shine like a Star, in that of Lewis the 14th. I was Married very Young to Marcellus, the hopes of the

at

ar

th

ha

re

mio

to co er'

th

it

u wa Di

Pr

C

bu

Ďυ

h

my

wa

Lo

bra

a, ik

Pec

cie

Romans; and almost in your Infancy, you were given to the most aimable Man that ever was of the Bourbons: I loft the Son of Octavia some Months after our Man riage, and your Fore-head was bound with the Fatal Sable, before Hymen's Garlands were in the least wither'd; You are Handsom, I was not Ugly, you occasion Jealous, and I suffer'd the sharp est Darts of Destruction; I had Loven beyound Number; And who is able to reckon Tours? They have not perhaps been fo favourably receiv'd; and I be lieve the Air, and want of Opportunity. not our Inclinations, to be the Caule, for you never yet despis'd those Pleafures I daily Enjoy'd and Sigh'd after, and tho, by the Death of Agrippa, came under the Tiranny of Tiberius, 1 pursu'd my Inclinations to the last, Widows, of your Age, generally enter the Lift again . But, Princels, the Counfel I have to give you, is, to referve to your felf the Liberty of your Choice There are so many Tiberius's where you are, that One may easily fall to your thare; and after that, nothing but Banishment will be wanting to finish the Maintenen. Comparison. A very * malignant Planet

OU

lat OR

ar

nd

M'S

d;

ou P er to pa by least r

3 5.

70.

20

CE

OU

Buthe

net

at present, Commands your Destiny and 'tis in vain to expect Justice from that Jealous ill-natur'd Fury. Now I have given you Advice, which if i could return into the World, I wou'd follow my self; permit me to justify my Act Historians tells you, I indeavour'd to Reign in every Heart, whatever it roft me, without any regard to the Own: er's Birth or Condition: But do you think that so very Criminal ? Does a little Kindness deserve so severe a Cenfure? Must Persons of Quality be always obliged to have an Eye on their Dignity? And did not He that made the Prince, make the Coachman? But what cannot with parience fuffer, is, the itibudent Lie some have made concerning Dvid: That Verfifier had a nicer Fancy in Poetry than Beauty, like your Father, my dear Sister, he imagined wonderful Charms in Gray Hairs, for Marcellus was but newly Dead when he fell in Twas her he cele-Love with Livia brated under the feighed Name of Corina, and when he pleas'd, disciplin'd, she ike a Child not daring to relist. Thus, cople being ignorant of Closet Privaies, invent Malicious Lies, for do you

A

Y

D

A

W

A

T

T

Re

là I

lev

fuppole i wou'd have fuffer'd fuch into lent Usage, and that if I had not been firong enough to Cuft that Rhiming Pu py, I wou'd not have found out fome other way to have been even with him You very well see my Reasons have fome appearance of Truth; and I am confident, that when we meet, we fhall agree very well. The Emperour, who had his Private Amours, never troubled those of his Wife; and Merenas's Spoule, Proud of possessing the Affections of & great a Monarch, return'd in fost Embrices, the Favours bestow'd on her Hu-I have intentibly, made you at ingenious Confession; do you the same, Madam, for Hell is fo damnable tirefome that I gape and stretch a Thousand time an Hour; when your hand is in, pay fend me word what they are doing in your part of the World; but above all, give me a true Account of your Amount and Conquests, for those Relations Tickle us, even when we have full the power of Acting. Therefore, to invite you to be very plain with me, as likewife to diven my felf, in my prefent Malancholy Mo-ments, ! will give you some of my Thoughts in Metre, fuch as it is

A Mighty Monarch you begot, Who's Pious as the Devil, Your Mother too by all is thought To be Extreamly Civil.

Descended from so bright a pair, You both their Gifts inherit; All your great Father's Virtue share, And all your Mothers Merit.

I

all

M.

ie,

はり

in

When I was Young and Gay, like you; I lov'd my Recreation; Mamma's dear Steps I did perfue, And bilk'd no Inclination.

And, Madam, when your Charms are gone Your Lovers will forfake you; They'll cry, your foorting days are done; And bid Old Pinto take you.

Thus I have giv'n all Trading o'er,
And wifely leave off Sporting: Refolv'd to practice it no more, After my Reign of Courting.

As Reproaching and Talking freely is not here discouraged; so had I done any lew'd Trick, your Confessor wou'd have acquaint-

Julia, to the Princess of Conti.

acquainted you with it for he keeps ftrict Correspondence with the Chiefel Ministers of our Manarch, You have been Jealous where you ought not and the Saints of St. Germains and Verfaile, when they come to discover the Mistery of your Curiofity, will never forgive The many-mouthed Goddels wa always easie to be Corrupted, and the Old Monster, Envy, prospers but to much; therefore take care of One, and prevent the other, that the Sire of other may not be imputed to you. the World can fay against your Virtue shall never diminish my good Opinion of it; and if you do not believe the Character I give of my felf, confult 104 prinede, who has drawn me to the Life, and was as great a Mafter in that way, a Apelles in his. Farewel, fair Princels, and Remember that Julia Languishe with defire to fee you rapilings was evactived band! and astore outlibuilding on it vialed extering angular Courtinger

THE Translater and Talking Active mether ediformaged: to had, I done any widthing pour Congler would fire despension.

nebor of Cheopatra.

as

tl

1

th

11

fo

A

St 1:

in pr

de for vii

85

Princes of C O N T I's

ANSWER

7 U L 1 A.

T Did not expect to be honour'd with a Letter from fo Famous a Princefs as Julia: This makes my Joy so much the greater. I do sincerely declare, that I take all you fay to me fo reasonable, that I can do no less than applaud it: And I further affure you, that I never fearch'd for your Character in those disobliging Authors, who magnify the least falls Step, and makes an Elephant of a Mouje. I am fatisfy'd to know you, as I find you in Calprenede; and the Complaifance he pretends you had for Ovid, does not hinder me from having a great Affection for your aimable Qualities, and believing, as advantagiously of your Modesty, as you can defire. I am not fo fevere, as to imagine a little Indulgence can be a great Crime, but think those, who will for a little natural Civility, Ruine the Reputation of Courseous Ladies, to be malicious People only, envying those Gallantries which are address'd to o thers. But, Madam, you have strangely furprized me with what you tell me of Livia; for I always believed that when old. Ambition was her only blind-fide, but am aftonish'd to hear she was Amorous. This Discovery confirms the received Opinion, That Old Age has as wanton Inclination, as well as Youth, tho' not fo much Ability, and fince the Wife of Cafar, lov'd the Language of the Muses, I am not affonish'd that our Saints, of St. Cyr, has been Charm'd with it. But, Dear Madam, is it certain that Ovid Disciplin'd her like a Child? I thought the Roman Ladies had not wanted that Exercise, and I believe, my Gallants will never be oblig'd to come to that Extremity with me. I need not use much Precaution against the Folly of a Second Marriage, for tho' I was Coupled to a very Charming Young Man, yet I foon found my Expectations bilk'd, because the Name of Husband and Wife, and thoughts of Duty so lessen'd the Plea-- fures fures of our softest Imbraces, that it made them Odious: So that now, I only love a Spoule for a Night, from whom I may be divorc'd the next Morning, and this perhaps you'll find more plainly expressed in the following Lines, as I doubt not, Dearest Syter, but you have made the Experiment.

ho

ine

to

ose

0.

ely

of en e;

10-ď

on ot

of es,

it,

ill

e.

h

d

n

.

Your tender Girls, when first their hands Are joyn'd in Hymen's Magic bands, Fondly believe they shall maintain A'long uninterrupted reign:
But to their cost too soon they prove That Marriage is the bane of Love.
The Phantom Dury damps its fire,
And clips the wings of fierce desire.

7

But Lovers in a diff'rent strain Express as well as ease their pain: Ever Smiling, ever Fair, To please us is their only care.
And as their stame finds no decay, They only covet we should pay In the same Coin, and that, you know, Is always in our pow'r to do.

N 2

And

And will always be fo, Illustrious Princess, to our great Comfort and Satif-You have heard, I suppose, faction. what the Writing of a few Letters has cost me, so that I have wholly lay'd afide all Commerce of that nature at prefent, and am often oblig'd to stifle my Thoughts. Had I not fear'd Mercury's being fearch'd, I wou'd have open'd my Heart a little more to you; but if the times ever change, or Madam Maintenon, the Governess of Versailles becomes less inquisitive, you may certainly expect to receive an Epistle, or rather a Volume from me. I put no confidence in the King my Father, and he is so jealous of me, that shou'd he pack up his All for the other World, I wou'd not trust him. I pity you for being kept fo close, and having so bad Company. That you may Yawn and Stretch less, and Laugh a littie more, entertain your self with la Fountain's Tales, or the School of Venue, both excellent Books in their kind, which I'm confident will extreamly dis vert you; not so much upon the account of their Novelty, as by recalling to your Mind fome past Actions of your Life. For my part, I highly esteem 'em both, and and you'll oblige me in telling the Authors io.

DIONYSIUS the Tounger,

TO THE

Fathers, of what Degree or Country foever.

my former Tyrannies, are as great as they are just, yet you, cursed Villains, deserve much greater for being the Promoters of them. You, with your infernal Praises, blind the Eyes of Princes, and hurry them on headlong to their ruine: Therefore I charge you with all the ill Actions of my Reign. I was no sooner Seated on my Throne, but you so swell'd me with Pride, by applauding all my Perjuries, Oppressions and Cruelties, that I believ'd it lawful for our Race to be Tyrants from Father to Son with impunity. Every one knows my Father was equally Wicked and Covetous, neither sparing or fearing Men or Gods, and of this this Jupiter and Esculapius are Examples. In a fit of Impiety till then unpractis'd by the most desperate Villains, he stripp'd the first of his Golden Mantle, excusing it with this Jest, That 'twas too hot for the Summer, and too cold for the Winter. To the Second he turn'd Barber, and cut off his Golden Beard, which with great devotion had been presented to him, alledging it was improper for the Son, fince his Father Apollo went without one. When his Conduct had thus render'd him odious to the World, he thought it necessary to make himself secure, for which end, he order'd a large deep Dirch to be dug about his Palace; but that was no Fortification against Fear, which cou'd creep in at every Key-hole, and his diffrust increas'd to that degree, that he suspected his nearest Relations. Not so much as a Maintenon came near him! At last his Guards, to oblige the World, cut his Throat, and fent his Soul as a Harbinger to the Devil, to provide room for his Body; and the People thinking me a thuch honester Man, without difficulty plac'd me in his Throne. But I foon took care to convince these credulous Sots, that a worse was come in his room; far ex.

exceeding him in Cruelty, 1 endeavour'd to fecure my Throne by Actions then unknown to the World, First, I caused my Brothers to be put to death, and when I had glutted my felf with the Blood of these Victims, I made no scruple to violate the Laws, and trumple upon all the just Rights and Liberties of my People. By those and a Thousand other Barbarities, tiring the Patience of the Syracu-Sans, They drove me into Italy, where the Locreans kindly receiv'd me; and I to requite them for their Civility, Ravish'd their Women, Murder'd numbers of their Citizens, and Pillag'd their Country. At last, by a new-contriv'd Treachery, I re-enter'd Syracufe, with defign to revenge my felf by new Defo-lations; but Dion and Timoleon, much Honester Men than either my felf, or you, prevented me, and put me a fecond time to Flight. 'Twas my Destiny, and I wonder Hiftorians do not add the Epithet of Coward to my just name of Tyrant. I then retir'd to Corinth, where in a fhort time my Mifery became fo preffing, that I was forc'd to turn Bumbrusher in my own defence, a Condition which best suited with a Man that delighted

an

no

for

ing

11 app

loft

ie &

giv

ceff

to I

deur

t n

Fab

but

n v

f I vill

brt

oti

ke bea

nd

ev in lighted in Tyranny and Blood; and as I had been one of Plato's Disciples, I taught a fort of Philosophy which I had learn'd, but never practis'd. Thus was my Throne turn'd into a Desk; and my Sceptre into a Ferula. Heavens! what a shameful Metamorpholis was this! but, Gentlemen Sycophants, with a murrain to you, I may thank you for it. You, like the Cameleon, can put on any Colour, can turn Vice into Virtue, and Virtue into Vice, to deceive your Masters; and under the specious pretence of Religion can commit the greatest Barbarities. But tho, under the shelter of that Reverend name, you think all your Iniquities unditcover'd, fo you possess your Princes with the abominable Zeal of Perfecution, yet Heaven fees and detests your Hypocrifie, and even Men at long run discover the Chest. Oh! ye unworthy Enemies of Virtue, whose only aim it is to raise your own Fortunes upon the Ruins of others, How useful are ye to the Devil? You matter it not, provided you compass your desir'd ends, if we lay wast the Universe, and afterwards become the Hate and Scorn of all Mankind: As for Example, 'ris long of you that I have been a Pedant in Greece, and and that * One of my Rank, if he had "He means not been taken to Reft, wou'd have been k. J. forc'd to cover his Follies under a flinking Cowl in the Lowfie Convent of la Trape. You will not fail, I know, to applaud all his Actions, and fay, if he loft all, 'twas only for obliging his Subjects to take the true Road to Heaven, and give the Title of Refignation to meer Neceffity and Compulsion. But is it a Sacrafice o Renounce, through Despair, the Grandeur we cannot maintain any longer? Is t not rather imitating the Animal in the Fable, that despises the Grapes which are out of his Reach? But I wast my Lungs nvain, and talk to the Deaf: However, I have been Humbled, believe that you vill not always be Exalted. 'Tis my comort that you will one day be condemn'd oturn a Wheel like Ixion, to rowl Stones ke Sysiphus, to be devour'd like Promebem, continually Thirsty like Tantalus, nd to heighten your Evils, that you will ever lose the Remembrance of those Vilinies you committed.

es.

edi

THE

ANSWER

OF THE

fer all end or iou

an

es. urr

jo

ay Ve

ago

on rea

ant

ow

han iter nd

ut y lessi

ou

NEWS-MONGERS

TO

Young DIONISIUS.

THE Flatterers have done you too much Honour, Mr. Pedane, and shou'd they believe you, and turn Hones (of which I think there is no great danger) and perswade their Masters to be Just to their Oaths and Treaties, Wou'd not they Govern in Peace and Unity? And wou'd not that very thing cast the World into such a drowzy Tranquility, that it wou'd be Melancholy living in it, and Storve Millions of all Degrees and Professions who now Lord it very hand somely? We, I'm sure, shou'd be first sensible of it, by having no variety of News to stuff our London Gazette's, Mercuria fercuries and Slips with , which would ake the Bookfellers withdraw our Stiends, and by confequence, oblige us to ave off tippling the generous Juice of Grape, and content our felves with Geever or some more Flegmatick Mann-Therefore keep your Harangues Unre. r your School Boys, and do not malioully take our daily Bread from us, nd feek to ruine those complaisant Perons, that can condescend to sooth the anities and Inclinations of their Prines. But to dismiss this point, and reirn to your felf, 'tis plain you have not jot of Honour about you, fince you sy no regard to your Father's reputation. Ve easily perceive you have been a Per gogue by your tatling, which Indifcreon makes you unworthy the Title of reat Plato's Difeiple. But has your Peantick Majesty no better Rewards to beow on Gentlemen of Courtly Breeding nan Wheels, Vultures, Millflones and an ternal Thirst? Truely 'tis very liberal, nd School-master like in every respect; ut you are defir'd to keep those mighty lesings for your felf, who deferve them such better than any one elfe, and if ou were Cullied by those about you, talk too

ind

eft

an-

be

u'd

y the ty it

nd

10 ra

of s ies

talk no more on't, but keep your weak. ness to your felf.

Dan

vho he

hy ot her

ge

Voi ue

irly

har

et ith

y (

le,

nfil

ere

o t tho

, 4

gga ith

AI

at I

CHRISTINA

QUEEN of SWEDEN

TO THE

WOMEN

That I, who never testified much a steem for the Fair Sex, shou'd at this time address my self to them, will, without doubt, be thought strange, but if necessity breaks Laws, it ought also to cancel Aversion, and excuse me for seeking Protection amongst a Sex I have so often despis'd, being compell'd to it by Thousand injuries done to my memory. Therefore I now ask Pardon of the Lieus; and am perswaded I do them no little Honour, (since there has seldom been a more extraordinary Woman that I was) in owning my self one of the Female kind. First, I may boast of all eak.

h e-

vill,

but

o to eek.

e fo

by 4

ory.

L

no

lom

han

the all

the

he udvantages of a glorious Birth, being Daughter of the great Gultavus Adolphus, tho did not only fill the North, but all he Universe with Admiration, and of lary Elzivor of Brandenburgh, the work ly Wife of fuch a Husband. If I was ot as handsome as Helen, and those oer Beauties, whom the Poets have from ge to Age recorded in the Book of me, yet all the World own'd me a Voman of incomparable Parts. ueen at Five Years of Age, and even fo rly took upon me that important Truft, hich but few Men are capable to diflarge, and which fewer wou'd cover, they knew the Troubles that attend it: et lupported the weight of all Affairs ith fuch a Grace and Prudence, that y Crown did not feem too heavy for e. As fron as Reafon had made me nfible of my Power, my only thoughts ere how to make my felf worthy of it. othis end, I invited to my Court those thought the most capable of improving which was no fooner known by the garly French, but stockbolme fwarm'd ith Mallers Of all Sciences. Among the At had a Pack of hungry Poets; but he at took the most pains, was not the best rewarded, because he did not resemb Boilean, who can in half an Hour mi a Saint of a Devil. In my green Year feem'd only addicted to Grandeur at Virtue ; for I Studied like a Dottor, A gued like a Philofopher, and gave Leffo of Morality to the most Learned; so the every body imagin'd I should Eclipsed most famous Hereines. But I had n yet heard the Voice of a certain Del whose Language I no fooner underfloo but it poison'd all my former good Dife fitions, for whereas till then I had be charm'd with the Conversation of the Dead, I began now to have passionately clinations for the Living. But not to u deceive the World, which thought a Conduct blameless, I was forc'd to put curb to my defires, or at least to purh them with more Precaution. Wheth the trouble to find my felf fo inclin or my Grandeur, which wou'd not allo of those Liberties I sigh'd for, oblig'd to punish the Flatterers of my Passion, know not, but I committed many Be barities. As my defires were infatiable fo'twas not in my power to confine then and this gave my Subjects too many portunities to discover several Indecend

(F)

6

IT

W

te

Fo

W

O

To

Ar

Bu

Hi

Th

Ti

An

ma

ean

r at effo

o th

Ce t

d n

Dell

floo

dic

be

tel

0 11

t n

out

urfi

eth

lin

Lilo

da

on,

Ba able nem

na

in my management; and because I would not be tumbled headlong from my Throne by them, I very prudently descended, and put my Cousin Charles Adolphus in my Place. Then did I, under pretence of visiting the Beauties of France, take large Dojes of those Joys I durst no longer taste at Stockholme. I was Treated every where as a Queen, had Palaces at my Command, and I made Fontain-blean, which was before a Bandy house, a Slaughter-house also, before I left it.

Tate justly reach'd the prattling Fool, For telling Stories out of School.
Was't not enough I stoop'd so low,
On him m' Affection to bestow;
To class him in my circling Arms,
And feast him with Love's choicest (Charms,

But must the babbling Fool proclaim His Queen's Infirmity and Shame?

Of all the Sinson this fide Hell, The blackest sure's to Kiss and tell.
Tis Silence best becomes delight, And hides the revels of the Night.

Christina Queen of Sweden,

If then my Spark has met his due For bringing Sacred Mysteries to view; E en let him take it for his pains, And Curse his want of Gratitude and Brains.

But I know not whether the Monarch of France had long Ears like his Brother Midas, or some little Familiar whisperd it in his Ear; but what I thought could never be detected, was publickly discourfed at Cours. Perceiving this, I refolved on a Voyage to Rome, and the rather because I thought the Romish Religion most commodious for a Woman of Inclinations, and that it would illustrate my History, to abjure the Opinion of Luther at the Feet of the Pope; tho' I had as little believ'd and follow'd the Doctrine of the Reform'd, as I have fince the Absurdities of the Roman Church. Italy feem'd to me a Paradife, and I thought my past Troubles fully recompens'd, when I found my felf in that famous City, which has been the Mistress of the World, without Subjects to controul me, faucy chattering French Men to revile me, and a mongst a mixture of Strangers, which made all my Actions pass unregarded. 'Twas gi fo

t

K

pi

to

co

th

to ju

the

fu

evi

gu

We

15.

ch

ter

rd

ld

ur-

v'd

er,

ton

cli-

my

ber

lit.

of

rdi-

d to paft

und

has

lout

nter-

hich

ded.

Twas enough for me to be efteem'd a Saint, that I was turn'd Papift, in a place where Debauchery is tolerated; and you'll find me, perhaps, one day Canoziz'd by the Roman Clergy, Tis true, I was not so rigorous to them as others, for the Pepe, Cardinals, Legars; Bishops, Abbots, Priefts, and Mooks compos'd my Gourt, where Licentiousnels Reign'd most agreeably. Not that I had tenounc'd the Company of young Virgins; for I was intimate enough with fome of them, to have it faid, I was of the Humour of Sapho, and as I live at Rome, fo I thought my felf oblig'd to practice their Mannets. But the chief Reason of my Writing, is, to desire you, to protect me against those ignorant Coxtombs, who indeavour to put me among the number of the foolish Virgins, for I began and finish'd my Course, as I have told you, and will now leave you, to judge if there can be any probability in fuch a standalous Story. My good Friend the Pope, to whom I had been wonderfully civil, folemnly fwore, that whenever I left this World, I shou'd not languish in Purgatory, tho' he knew very well I shou'd go to another Place: But as it was the promise of a Tricking Jesuit, so did I not much credit it, nor was much surprised to find my self turn'd into a Sty among a company of Boars and old Lassivious Goats, a fort of Animals I had formerly been well acquainted with at my Palace in Rome, and who came then grunting and leaping to imbrace me. I cannot in this place hear of the poor Gentleman whom I murder'd, I ask'd one of my He Companions concerning him, who knows no more of him than I do, therefore I verily believe he's among the Martyr's.

(3)

and the second s

The state of the s

Carry on the second second second second and your areas of the Thouse e with home water a ment of the state of the fee Bu

THE

pu

the use

ture

Dar

frail

beg ther

but

THE

early principle will mit expend

•

e-

the seminary and

ANSWER

OFA

Toung VESTAL,

TO THE

QUEEN.

I outly did your Majest, begin your Letter! and what pleasure did I take to see such hopeful Dispositions to Virtue! But what was that inchanting Voice that put you out of the good Road! Was it the Devil? If so, why did you not make use of Holy Water? For we, poor Creatures, oppose no other Buckler against the Darts of Satan, when he conjures up the stally of the Flesh to disturb us. But I beg your pardon, you were then a Latheran, and Holy Water has no efficacy but only for true Carbolicks. My Confession has so often Freach'd Charity to me, that I cannot but bewail the Fate of the Poor Gentleman you Lov'd fo dearly, and Treated fo Barborously. Oh, my dear St. Francis! what fort of Love was that! And how unfortunate are those precious fouls that have Paris of pleasing you! One may very well perceive, by that piece of Barbarity, you neither believ'd Purgatory, or fear'd Hell; and I wou'd not have been guilty of fuch an Action for all your excellent Qualities and Grandeur. I hear you talk'd of fometimes, and in fuch a manner, that it makes me as often figh, pant, and pull down my Vail, and I feel a terrible Fit coming upon me by Reading your Conteffion.

i

tr

wai

th

m

no

Cri

Madam, I much rejoyce to hear You'll take a Stone up in your Ear; For I'm a frail Transgressor to,
And Love the Sport as well as you.
But then I choose to do the Work Within the pale of Holy Kirk: For Absolution cures the Scars Contracted in Venereal Wars, And saves our Sex a world of Prayers.
Had you this Ghostly Counsel taken,
You might till now have sav'd your Bacon.

Tis fafe Intrigueing with a Flamen, Who Sanctifies their Work with Amen: Then who wou'd trust ungodly Lay-(men?)

f

y

19

[e

g

y

e.

1 in es

eit

ill

44

n-

Do, Madam, as you please, but I None but the Priest-hood will employ; With them I'll live, with them I'll dye; Who like the Pelian Spear, are fure, With the same ease they wound, to cure.

But 'tis easie to judge your Conscience is as large as the Sleeve of a * Cordelier, *A French fince you began in the Spirit, and ended no Conscience in the Flesh. Notwithstanding what I have merrily own'd in Rhime, more to entertain your Majesty, than express my true Sentiments, there are certain Hours, when I cou'd willingly follow your Example, and it you wou'd obtain from the Holy Father a Dispensation of my Vows, which now grow burthenform to me, I wou'd break a Lance in your Quarrel: This I'm fure of, that the World will think it less strange to see a New renounce her Convent, than a Queen her Crown.

O 3 FRANCIS

In the Mann-free Downstell Mannes and the

FRANCIS RABLAIS,

TOTHE

Physicians of PARIS.

2

t

b

Be

m

W

th

CO

pr

Th

w

Wa

tha

ple

in

Bu! from

was

bei

C

15

IS in vain for your Flatterers to cry you up for able Doctors, for you will never arrive at my knowledge, and I'm asham'd every hour to hear such Affes are admitted into the College. Do not believe 'tis a fenfless Vanity that in duces me to fay this, but the perfect knowledge I have of my own worth; and tho' I was defign'd for a more lazy Profession, yet that does not in the least diminish my Merit. You know I was born at Chinon, and that my Parents, hoping I shou'd one day make a preciou Saint, put me in my toolish Infancy into a Convent of Cordeliers: But that greate Habir, in a little time, feem'd to me as heavy and uneafie as the Armour of Gyant, fo that by intercession made to PopeChment the Seventh I was permitted to change my Gray Frock for a Black, foll quitted the Equipage of St. Francis, for that of 11

11

to or e ch

the

ea

h;

zy alt

VAS

145 ou nto

afie

45

60

10 fo l

hat

pf

dinal

of St. Benedicl, and that I was as weary of in a fhort time as of the other. As I had learn'd a great deal of Craft, and but little Religion, during my Noviciate in those good Schools, so I found a way to get loofe from that Cloyster for ever and took to the Study of Hipocrates, Belides, that I had a fubtle and clear Genius, my Comrades discover'd in me an acute natural Raillery, which made me acceptable to the best Companions. Cardinal Bellay, who made me his Phylician, took me to Rome with him in that Quality, where the Sanctity of the Triple Grown, the ador'd Slipper, and all-opening Ker, could not hinder me from jetting in the presence of his Holiness. Twas Paul the Third, before call'd Alexander Farnese who then fill'd the Apoleniuh Chair, and was more remarkable for his Lewdness than Piety. I had the good fortune to please him with the Inclination he found in me to Lewdness, and he gave me a Bull of Absolution for my Apostach, free from all Fees and Duties, which, I think, was a gracious Reward for a Foreign Ar beiftical Buffoon. After 1 had compil'd Catalogue of his Vices, to make use of is I should find an opportunity, the Cardinal my Patron return'd to Paris, and 1 with him, where he immediately gradfied me with a Canonsbip of St. Maur, and the Benefice of Mendon. Having all I cou'd defire, I liv'd luxurioufly; and the Love of Satyr pleasing me much more than the Service of God, after I had wrote feveral things, without fuccels, for the Learned, I Compos'd the History of Gargantua and Pantagruel for the Ignorant, Things which tome call a Cock and a Ball, and others, the Product of a lively 1magination. I know most Men understand them as little as they do Arabick; and as it is not to our present purpose, so de not I intend to explain that Souff to them, but will now, fince tis more Propos, give you some Advice concerning the Malady of your Elustering Monarch. The Residence I made at the Court of France, in the Reign of Francis the First, makes me more bold in judging of the Nature of those Distempers. You conceal the Virulency of Lewis the Four teenth's Disease, because you dare not examine into the bottom of the Caule and are more modest in proposing Remedies, than he has been in contracting the Distemper, Yet, every one talks according

fr

h

b

in lil

ot

A

by lo.

Tu

W

at

Co

M

pr

hi

fel

to pu

d

10

te

te

10

7-

t,

II.

2-10

as

do

to

.

ng

ch.

of

rlt,

he

Anc.

HP

not Se

me.

the

cor-

ding to his interest, and the News-mongers always keep a Blank to fer down the manner of his Death. If he does not tremble, he must be thorow pac'd in Iniquity, for he has feveral Reckonings to make up with Heaven, which are not fo easily adjusted, and as he has often affronted the Maje by of foveral Popes, he will fearce obtain a Pafapore to go Scotfree into the other World. We are told here, by fome of his good Friends, He begins to putrify, and has Vicers a Yard in length, where Vermin, very Soldierlike, intrench themselves. There is no other Remedy for this, according to old Afculapius, but to make him a new Man by a fevere penitential Pilgrimage into fome of the Provinces of Mercary and Turpentine. If he fill fears the danger of War, let him go in a Disguise; and if, at this Age, he cannot be without a She Companion, let him take his old Priend Maintenan along with him , She is Pollonproof, and may, to fave Charges, ferve him in Three Capacities, viz. as a Bed-fellow, Nurfe, and Guide, keep him also to a strict Diet, scrape his Bones, and purge him thorowly, and all may be found again, but his Conscience. You can-

soo Francis Rablais to the Physicians at Paris.

cannot imagine, how merrily we Gentle. men of the Faculty live at Place's Court; I am Secretary to the fame Paul the Third who pardon'd me gratis the violation of my Vows, my Irreverence for the Church, and my want of Respect for him, Searamonche is his Gentleman Ufh. er, Arlequin his Page, and Scaron his Poet Laureat. Don't suppose I was such a Blockhead as to Kifs his Sweat, Toe, when I visited him in the Varieur; he had no thing from me but fuch an Hypocritical Hug, as your Monks give each other at the ridiculous Ceremony of High Mass This old Goat still keeps his amorous Indinations, and I, who have to often made others blush, am often asham'd to hear his Ribaldry. He'd certainly make love to Proforpine, but our Sultan wou'd not be pleas'd with his Courtship, and befides, his Seraglio is as well Guarded as the Grand-Signior's; otherwise we might have a Litter of fine Puppies betwin them. Little, Hump-fboulder'd Laxe burgh , late Marefebal of France, is the Captain of her Guards, and fodamnably Jealous, that he will not fuffer any to come near her, at which Plato is very well pleased, and does not mistrust him. think-

n

1

r

d

11

h

ar hi

th

to

th

Re

boi

an

As Bu

W

for tol

W

t:

he 12.

he

or ħ.

Nis

ch

en

0-

al

at ſs.

li-

de

ar

ve

ot

e-

25

he me he

to ry

m, thinking it impossible for any body to be in Love with fuch a Lump of Deformity. But, to return to our Friend Paul, he fcorns to Copy after the Devit, who turn'd Hermet when he was old, and I am now making another Collection of his Impieties and Amours, which will be ready to come out with a Gazette Noftradamus has been Composing fince the Year 1600. That fly Conjurer is fo earneit upon the matter, that he lifts not up his Head, tho' Pluto's Black-guard Boys are continually burning Brimstone under his Nose. However, I do not know but this Mountair may bringforth a Moufe. for to speak freely, I put as little Faith in those Prophets, who like fots lose their Reason in the Abyss of Futurity, as the bonest Whigs of England do in the Oaths and Treaties of your Imaggering Mafter. As for you Brother Doctor, Cur, Scarify, Blifter and Glifter fince 'tis your Protesions but take this along with you, that they who do the least Mischief, pass with me for the ablest Men. But I wou'd advice you not to fuffer any longer those barbarous Names, of Affaffins, Poisoners, Closefool-mongers, Eastors of Death, &c. the World gives you. I have had words

C

ta

b

M

CI

You Girmin

on

Ba

aff Fo

a

Bi

can

of

the

fpe

Co

wh

Sca

tat

wi

poli

us

₿

words with Moliere on your Account, and I expect that fine Rhiming Fellow Boilean will give him a wipe over the Nose in one of his Satyre. For the I have made bold to talk freely with you, yet I do not mean all the World should take the same Liberty.

THE THE

ANSWER of Mr. FAGON,

First Physician to Lewis the 14th,

TO STATE OF THE ST

FRANCIS RABLAIS

You're a very pretty Gentleman, Friend Rablaia, to boast of your self so much, and value the rest of your Fraternity so little. Do not you know that I'm of the Tribe of Juda, and perhaps, related to some of the Kings of Israel? Had you heard me Preach in Synagogue, you'd soon be convinced whether I am an illiterate Fellow, or not is it such an Honour to be of your College.

nt,

ow the

ou,

uld

th, an, our

na he

no.

lege

college? Or wou'd it be any advantage to be like you? You have been, by your own Confession, a most horrid Rake-hell; and I would not for all the Mammon of Unrighteousness in my Kings Coffers, transgress one Point of the Law. You ought not to be aftonish'd at my Greatness, for I concern my self with more than one Trade, and no Man ever was in fuch Favour, and grew fo Rich, by only applying warm Injections to the Back fide. If you enjoy'd Prebend, and other Benefices, you must, I know, have assisted Cardinal Bellay in his Amours: For my part, I boast of having been a Broker, Sollifitor, and under the Rofe, Billet doux carrier and Door-Keeper, because all imployments at Court are Honourable, especially in that great concern, of S-y. Do not think you were the first that thought of the Remedy you speak of, we have had several learned Consultations about it, but know not which way to mention it, for Madam Scarron, who is very tender of her Reputation, and Reigns Sovereignly at Court, will fay we accuse her of bringing the Neapolitan Distemper to Versailles, and have us fent to the Galleys, or Hang'd for our good good Advice. I have often reflected on the Scandalous bantering Stuff of those they call Wits, have said, and do say of us, and wish, with all my heart, the first Brimstone they take for the Isch, and Mercury for the Pox, may Poyson 'em; but for us to stir in it, wou'd, bring 'em all about our Ears, and we know the consequence of that from a Neigh-

*D.B—re. bouring * Country, where they have *England, mumbled a poor * Physician, and one that can versity also, almost as severely as a Troop of Hungry Wolves wou'd a sat Ass. However, we thank you for your Zeal; but at the same time advise you not to make a Quarrel for so small a Business ness, and I, in a more particular mannet, Kiss your Hand, and desire you'l give my service to Nostradamus, I can give my service to Nostradamus. Ican not beat it out of my head, but that he * Stauras has put me into his * Centuries, and of Nostra- and that an ingenious Man might discover me there. I own tis looking for a Needle in a Bottle of Hay, but you know I Sprung up like a Mulbroom, and that He foretells nothing but Proof.

was a some some and the 100 (53 The 25517 270 200

gies.

THE

his

fo

of l

yo

wh

in

VOI

Ma

of

me

Fea

loo

fide

you

you

THE

hé

ey

s :

n; lng

jh.

we

hat

is a fat

NOV.

ıli-

anu'l

20

he

and dik or a vou

ind

044

DOY

1204

HE

Dutchess of FONTANGE,

TO THE

Cumean SibylL

I desir'd Mercury to call, en passant, at your Cave, and as he has Wings at his Feet, and Complaifance in Heart, fo he will, I don't doubt, go a little out of his way to oblige me, by delivering you this Letter, I have from my infancy, had you in my mind, and heard my Nurle, when I lay fquawling in shitten Clouts in my Cradle, tell frightful Stories of you. As foon as I began to prattle, my Maidstaught me to call all Old wrinkled Women, wither'd Sibylls, and the Idea of the Dee, you were confin'd in, fill'd me with Fear. But fince I have been inform'd of the Truth of your History, That Fear is chang'd into Veneration, and I now look upon your Cellas a facred Place. To assure you of my Respect, and the Confidence I repose in you, I will consult you about some future Events, and tell you one part of my Griefs. I am nobly bly born, handsome, and young enough to inspire and receive the sottest Love. The French King, who had spoil'd the Shape, and wore out the Charms of se-

Í

R

h

b

rê

ü

fü

01 tò

W

ge

He

TA

th Lo

St

let

bu

ten

Lo

veral Mistresses, long before i appear'd at his Court, had a mind to do the same by Being naturally Proud, and Wanton, and tempted by the fine Compliments of a great and vigorous Pilace and Title of Duschess La Temptation none of w Women can refift) I foon yielded to his Defires, which so mortify'd the haughty Montespan, that the with a Regon who mode d'espagne, dispatch'd me out of the World, before I cou'd get a ture Tafte of Greatness, or the Pleasures of a Royal Bed. Alas! What a mighty defference there is between you and me; your Year are innumerable, you are still mentioned in History, your Voice Rill remain, and you injoy the Divine Facily of Prediction; But I was murderd in my Bloom, when ripe and juicy as the fulcious Grape, and that ungrateful, pe jur'd Man, who rifled my Virgin Tresfere, has not to much as thought or spoke of me fince. He dotes on nothing but Old Age, and cou'd you appear in fomething more Solid than Air, I do not doubt hu he'd 10

gh

ve.

he feat by anoli-

nd

De-

hey eleche

nce

ears

iw.

ain thi

Ok

but he'd ness.

he'd make his Ad dreffes to you . I believe his being born with Teeth, prefagil he would always be a Tyrant to his People and in his later Days the Cally of fuch a tough piece of Carrion as Mrs. Maistenon. Morbleu! Have I barbaroufly been facrified, and must a Mils of 1 hreefore and Fifteen live unpunified, and be treated better than I was in the greatest height of that Prince's Passion, and warmth of my defires, when capable both of receiving and giving Joy? It really defineds me! And I compare you, in the Name of apollo, who never re-fused you may thing, to let me know by one of your Oracles I thall never return to France again: You came bither, I know, with the brave Assar (but ftay it no longer chan you lik'd the Place) and have heard fome People (ay, That Karght Errant diverted himself entreamly upon the Road, and made a great deal of lot love to you, but I take that to be a meet Story, because irgit, who wou'd not have let the Company of the Com let flip fo Pleafant a Pallage, has faid no. thing of it. However, could I return but for a fhort time, to dillodge Maintenon, and take a Brisk with my former Lover, if he be not too Old for that Buff-

H

T

T

Bu

A

Ha

11

No

Bu

Wa

and

of

my bee

RIVE

tion

194

100 ness; or were I but your Shadow, provided I liv'd, I shou'd be pretty well pleas'd. for tis a Melancholy Thing, to think Fares thou'd Spin fuch a Maine- long Thread for an Old Lafcivious " Ape. who never was to be compard with me and that there hou'd remain no more poor Fontange than an unfortunate Name over which oblivion will in a little time Triumph. At the Writing of this, in came a Courier from Verfailles, who brines us word, that Lewis the Great has undertook fuch a piece of Work, that the Weight and Confequence makes him lick of the World, That Miltress Maintenant wore out his Teeth; That Legions Fermin devour him, and that we may fuddenly expect him in these Dominions: Which if true, will be some satisfaction to me , and the' he be Toothleis Wereand Rotten, I will grant him the fame L berry he often took with me on a Couch a the Trianon, to get him again under Empire, that I may at Leifure revenge m Oh! Wou'd it not provoke a Maid, By softest Vows and Oaths betray'd,

Her

felf for his forgerfulness.

273

Her Virgin Treasures to resign, And give up Honour's dearest shrine?
Then, when her Charmshave been enjoy'd, Tobe next moment lay'd aside?

But why do I lament in vain,
And of my deftiny complain.
Had I been wife, as those before me, Ishould have made the World adore me Not to one Lovers Arms, confine,
But fearch'd and try'd all Human kind.

But I believe, this Foolife Confiancy, was only during to my want of Experience, and if I had lived a little longer. I should have had the curiofity to truthe variety of Humane performance, like the role of my Meighbours. You have been, my dear temy satisfy, in large, and have been below it, therefore, I beleech you, give me some healing Advices a Couloiston, as my cafe requires.

THE PROPERTY OF STREET

Manual of the Comment of the

Her offerther transference are

n

b n D til B 'ti

th

be

he

W

kn

H me

to

be

for

Æ

tha YOU

Asl

tha

CUMEAN SIBYLL'S

LATO THE

Dutcheft of FONTANGE.

S it possible that to charming a Beauty shou'd think of fuch an Old Decrept Creature as fam ! I was very defiron to talk with Mercury about you, but he flew away like a Bird. It extreemly troubles me, Dear Child, that I'm obligh, in answer to your Letter, to tell you thereis no hopes of your returning to effailler for you must consider, that when I conduct Aineas, I was then living, and that 'tis im possible for any under a Hercules to ferch you from whence you are, and where finil we find one now? The braveft Boufflers in France is but a Link-boy in comparison to Your Lover, fair Lady, is to fall him.

* M.Mam. link'd to his Old " Duegna's Tail, that he te men. chinks 曲点 aty

pit of the niversity and the district the di

to

fuft

he

nks

thinks no more of you, and your Com-plaints are infignificant, * She that hurried * M. M. Mone-you out of the World in the Flower of Pan. your Youth, with a favourable Dole of Poison, is now neglected, and grown fo monstrous Fat and Lecherous, by living Lazily in a Numnery, that the's not a fit Companion for any Creature that has but two Legs to support it. You know not what you do, when you envy my Deftiny, for I am fometimes to teazed and tir'd with answering the Virtuolo's and Beaux, that it turns my very Brain. lown tis a fad thing to Die at Bighteen, in the height of ones Greatness and Pleasures. because Nature always thinks she pays her Tribute to Death before-hand. I would willingly divert you a little, but know not which way, unless this little History I fend you, which a Traveller gave me not long fince, and which has Novelty to recommend it felf, will do it : Do not believe, good Lady, the Scandalous Story fome ignorant Rhiming Puppy has made of Aneas and me, he was not fo brisk as that comes to; and I can affure you, never put the Question to me. Ask Dido, the can tell you more of him than I can; and as modest as Virgil defcribes fcribes her, yet she was forc'd to take this Trojan Prince by the Throat, to make him perform the Duty of a Gallant; by this you may judge of his Constitution. Besides, had he been never so amorously inclin'd, yet not knowing my Inclinations, he might think his Courtship wou'd displease me, and so disoblige Apollo, for whose assistance he then had occasion. Therefore laugh at all those idle Ralleries of impertinent People, and turn your Eyes and Thoughts on the following Dialogue.

The transfer of the state of th

n

to 01

W

vi

th

The second of th

The Mitred H O G:

making by your phononical and in the second oy 1

the delight

n, le-

ur

1 and the state of t

DIALOGUE

BETWEEN

Ablor Furetiere and Scarron.

Faresiere. OH! have I found you at last, old Friend? The I was certain you were here, and desired earnestly to see you, yet being Goury, and tir'd with walking, I began to have no more thoughts of searching after you. How many troublesome Journies I have made, and Leagues I have Travell'd, and all to kis your Hands; the Tam a Virraese, I cannot tell: For in much, I am quite out of my Element; and confounded, ever since I have lost sight of Sun and Moon.

What's your Name : For the Dead, having neither Beard nor Bonner, nor any thing elfe to diftinguish them by, I know not exactly, what, nor who you are; but by your Language and Mien, suppose you some Mungril of the French Acadami.

P4 are,

hac

in t

Ih

ver

in 1

load

Dra

I C

Fre

not

for

the

VOL

the

is n ftre

hov

wh

bf

VOL

qui

0

he

f

no

1 .. 11

1

*13 a Proverb in French, for a fat largeMonk French for & Hog.

Furetiere. Well guess'd, I am call'd Monsieur L'Able Furetiere, *alias Porc de bon Dien, who has long, but in vain, been gaping and Icraping at Verfailles for Abbot, a Miter, that I may wallow in Peace Cochon is and Plenty like a Hog : But, alas, what a lest handed Planet was I born under? a Debauch with Stummed Wine, ferting an old Pox, which lay dormant in my Bones, into a Ferment, foon carri'd me off, almost in the height of my Defires, and when I bid fairest for the Biffe the reservoir his deposit prick Scarron. I am forry for your Misfortune, but am at the same time, heartily glad to fee you, Monfieur L'Able You will not, perhaps, meet with all these Conveniences here, you enjoy'd at Paris; but in Recompence, you will meet with much honefter dealing. For my part, I must own my self infinitely happier; for now, I am neither troubled with Lawyers, Phylicians, Apothecaries, Collectors of Taxes, Priefts nor Wife, the Flague and Torment of Men's Days, when on Earth. But how have you had had your Health fince you have been in the Country.

Furetiere. Thanks to our Master Place, I have not yet selt any Cold. I was so very Tender and Chill, for Six Months in the Year, at Paris, that the I was loaded with Ermins, and always had a Dram of the Best Nantes in my Pocket, I could scarce keep my Blood from Freezing in my Veins.

1

r

e

t

?

g

y

8

9

----

or ly ed Scarron. That's an Affliction you will not meet with here, take my word for't; for 'tis fomething hotter, than under the Torred Zone, and the nicest Wir) of your Academy, need not fear spoiling their Brains, by catching Cold here. It is not long since I met with the illustreous Balzac, who does not complain now of the Cold in his Head, as he did when he liv'd on the pleasant Banks of of the Charante. But, what News have you?

Furetiere. I don't doubt, by your inquisitiveness, but you are very desirous, to hear some News of your Wife.

Searron. May Pox and Itch devour the nastry Jade! I know but too much of her by Mareschal d'Albret formerly; and lately, by my Likeness, Mansiur Luxemburgh; the's one of the Privy Council; and the ferves Lewis the XIV, in the same Capacity as Livia did Augustus. But why did not the Prostitute make her poor deformed Husband a Duke! I should not have been the first Duke, and Peer of France; that had been a Guckold.

t

F

e

k

o

7 de

fo

Fe

la

20

it

by

lar

en

cie

tic

We

cha

Jac Car (d

Furetiere. By your Discourse, Mr. Starren, one would think you had lost your Senses and Memory: But you cannot surely have forgot how, instead of Laurel, she adorned your Learned Brow with Horns, before she was taken notice of, at Court? Indeed, how could a Pretty, Witty, Buxome Young Woman, forbear making such an infirm, deformed Afor as you, a Cuekeld?

that, because, I had Brethren enough to herd with, if the Dam'd Whose had but got my Pension Augumented, but got my Pension Augumented, but gave me the cursed'st Garison to main tain, that ever poor Husband was not tify'd with: To appease which, I we forc'd to have recourse to Inguentamenter Pedicules inquinales, &c. But printed it's discourse of something else, for the thought thoughts of the Dutchess of Maintenen, will disturb my Brain, and easily put me into a Peaver; which is dangerous in this warm Climato.

· Furctiere. I'll tell you but Three or Four words more of this famous Dutchefs, and conclude. First, that she has kick'd her Patroneft, Madam Montespan, out of the Royal Bed . And Secondly, that the is very great with the Pious Tefaite, Father la Chaife, the Monarch's Confessor in the Association of the Confessor that the

Daci

did

de-

not

.

Scar.

your anot

Lau

row

no de

man.

rmd

most. ilut

Scarron. Oh! oh! By my Troth, I don't wonder at the Lascivious Harlot, for closing with him! As there is no Feast like the Mifer's, so there is no Galantry like those Monks. When those Hypocrites undertake that Bulinels, they do it all like Heroes. But you have faid all, by faying he is a Jefuit; Since those Gallants have been in Reputation, they have engroffed all good Whoring to their Society, especially in France, and more particularly at Paris, where they have fo well behaved themselves, that they have chang'd an Ancient Authentick Proverb Jacobin en (a)Chaire, Cordelier en (b) Chaur, (a) Pulpis.

Carme en (c) Cufine, & Augustine en Quire.

(d) Bordel, for now they fay, Jejust en (c) Kitchin Bordel, bouje.

(B)

Bordel, &c. But so much for those Gentlemen. Pray what are you doing now in the French Academy?

Furetiere. There are as many Follies committed there as in any Society in the Universe, judge of the whole by this one Example. That Company was never fo highly honour'd as it is at present, by the particular Care their great Monarch takes of it; for which he is repaid in Flattering Panegyricks. Nevertheless, these infipid, florid Gentlemen, Scold and Scratch like fo many Eifb-women in an Ale-house. The other day, the great Charpentier fell into fuch a Passion about a Trifle, that he reproach'd the Learned Taleman of being the Son of a broken Apothecary at Rocbell, to which Talemen with as much heat to ply'd, Charpentier was the Son of a poer hedg Ale draper at paris. From this Bil linfgate Language they came to Blows. Charpentier threw Nicos's Dictionary at his Adversaries Head, and Taleman threw Morery's at Charpentier's. We all wish'd heartily we cou'd have recall'd you from the Dead, to write the various accident of this Battel, in your Comical and a tyric Style. the with the same to be

Scar-

h

f

tl

fi

0

is

m

W

W

At

W

An

Scarron. Ha, ha, ha, had I been there they thou'd have beat the Academy Dictionary and Morery's too in pieces about each others Eart before I wou'd have parted 'em. But I hope those two sputtering Coxcombs did each other Justice, I declare, whoever hinder'd it, deserv'd to be severely fin'd. Pray how did you behave yourself during this Combat?

in les he

ne

fo

hé

es er-

inch

fe.

ell

he

ng

d,

1

M. III

M

in her

for you must know, there has been such a difference between those Gentlemen and me, concerning a Dictionary I published, that it came at last to a contentious Lawsuit, but what was said on either side, only made the World Laugh at both, and is not half o diverting as the Epigram you made upon an old Lady that went to Law with you: I think I still remember it—

Thou nauseous everlasting Sow, With Phys of Bear, and Shape of Cow, With Eyes that in their Sockets twinkle, And Forehead plow'd with many a wrin-

With Nose that runs like Common shore.
And Breath that Murders at Twelvescore: What! thou'rt resolved to give me War,
And trounce me at the Noise Bar,

Tho

Tho' it reduces thee to eat Thy Smock for want of cleanlier Meat! Agreed Old Beldam! keep thy word, Twill foon reduce thee to eat T-ETT LETT'S COUNTY AND THE COMMON HER COM

Scarron. May that be the Fate of Tale. man, Charpentser, and the rest of those Reformers of the Alphabet, and, in a more especial manner, of that Thieving, Flattering Rogue * Despreaux, who has made a faithless Poltron, a Mars; and a us Bolleau. Superanuated , Lascivious Adulteres Saint. So much for that But give me fome little account now of your Clergy, I mean the Great Plump Rogues, the Hogs with Misers on their Heads, and Croffers on their Shoulders, those Janiers. ries of Antichrift.

Furetiere. 1 know your meaning: Never was Nick-name given with more Justice to any Society of Men. In Normandy, and those parts, they call all the minor Clergy, as the Fat Monks, Canons, Abbots, &c. who are not Miter'd, Jefan Christ's Porkers: which distinction is not very fantaffical, if we allow the other Expression. But, no more of those Gentlemen, 'tis dangerous.

Sear-

fo

th

W

an

St

CE 'tis

wl

Ge

obl

Soi

fuc

fuc!

eve not

Ner

Ihio

ofte

fuch or r und

F

uch

ou.

lot

Anin

* More commonly call'd with Scarron. Prithee, dear Abbot, be not fo mealy mouth'd; when I was in the World, the greatest pleasure I had, was in attacking those Gentlemen's Vices, and exposing them to the Hereticks, that Stilborn Generation of Vipers, as they call'd 'em: therefore let us be free now; tisthe only enjoyment we can have. Pray what fays your Monthly Mercury of those Gentlemen, to whom the Earth is more oblig'd for Bodies, than Heaven for Souls?

6

fe

R

g,

23

2 ve

ine

nd

4

re

pr. he

THE TOTAL

Furetiere. Never fuller of who made such a Man a Cuckold, and who Paris such a Woman, as now, neither, were ever the Women half so Impudent; no, not in the Reigns of Caligula and Nero. Never was Debauchery so much in Fashion; nor never were the Whores so often cover d with Purple.

Scerron. Is there not in your Herd, fuch a Thing, as a tame, gentle Weather to what Virgil calls Dux Gregist You understand me?

Furetiere. A Weather! Oh, fy, fy! Not such a Creature among 'em, I can assure you. The most Christian King, would not suffer such an impersect, scandalous Animal, so much, as to shew his Head in his Seraglio: 'Tis as easy to find there, a pretty Woman Chast, or Hair in the palm of your Hand; as an emaculated Beast amongst the Miser's Hogs: For the Dux Gregis, Virgil speaks of, we have One at the Head of our Prelate, who has all the Qualities requisite for so great an honour, tho he has neither Beard nor Horns; And should a name him, you'd be of my Opinion.

Scarron: Won'd I recollect my Memory, and their Virtues, I cou'd guess within two or three, but pray, save me that labour.

Furetiere. Do you not remember a Famous Song you made, in praise, of a Sleek, wanton Goat. Ceque fait & deffini L'Archeveque de Rouen.

Right Revernd Francis Hartay, Archbifton of Paris I My most Renowned Friend

A Worthy Chief !

Faretiere. The very same, and 'the precious Jewel, both for Body and Soul A Hedgebog has not more briftles that this Prelate has Mistrelles, and there not a Stallier in France that Leaps of ner.

Sear-

F

b ŀ

W

IT

b

P

th

M

to

C

th

die

be

giv

he

Col

wh

Liv

tory

Mor bne

re, in

M.

1:

we 191

me

Me.

aeli me

Fa-1

Fend

The

Scarron. You rejoyce my Heart, Monfient Furetiere. He was, I remember, always at Paris, when Arthbifbop of Rouen. Man fitter for that Employment. be free, if Paris be the Hell of Hackney Horles, 'tis the Paradife of Whore-Masters, and Hackney Whores. I can guess at what he does now, by what he did formerly. Several Ladies alfo, of our Neighbouring Countries, are Witnesses of his Prowefs, but more especially, some of the fair English Ladies, the Luscious Morfels of a Lastful Monarch. But on, to the Reft.

Furetiere, I am willing to fatisfy your Curiofity, Mr. Searron; but to run thro' the whole Herd, wou'd be too tedious at present, tho' they all deserve to be Chronicled : So I will only, en passant, give you the History of those you have heard Preach, both at Paris, and the Court, with wonderful Applause; and who, for their Modesty and Regular Lives, had the Reputation of Saints, whilst they were only Fathers of Oretory.

Scarron. Take your own Method, Monsteur L'Abbe, but let me tell you one thing, by the by: This Place is call'd

(11)

call'd the Wits Corner, but by some late Guests, because of the Smoak and Liquor, the Wits Cospee house. Now you know the Wits of all Countries Laugh at the Clergy in their Plays and Poems, and that the Clergy to be revenged of them, and keep up their own Reputation with the Ignorant, call them Atheists; therefore you may freely give a true description of them. All here are their Enemies, and a Priest wou'd as soon venture his Carcass in Sweden, as in this Place; He dreads a Poet, as much as a Dog does a Somgelder.

Furetiere. Still a merry Man, Mr. Searron: But to return to our Miter'd Hogs; do you remember Father le Bone, and Father Maseavon. The first is now Bishop of Perigueux, and the other, Bishop of Agen.

Scarron. How! are those two famous Preachers, those Scourgers of Pride and Immorality, got into the Herd of the Mitter'd Hogs? By my troth, I always took them for credulous, humble Weathers, Believers of what they Preach'd; tho? I know most Priests seldom believe what they profess.

Fure-

C

te

fc

te

of

lo

for tho

ton

you

Con

Fatl

bras

ther

has I

nous

Faretiere. Well, Mr. Searren, tho you can fee as far through a Mill-frone as any Man, yet I find you are not infallible.

te

E.

10

he

ep

0

DO

of

ds

m-

17 -

1

nd

op

of 1119 nd he

tys

ea

d:

eve

el.

are.

nour.

Scarron. Faith, a Man may see as far through a Mill stone, as a Priest's Surplice; tho' 'tis reckon'd the Emblem of Purity. But, Monstear s' Abbe, what Montaigne said formerly of the Women, I now say of the Priests: Its envoyen tenr Conscience, an Bordel, & tiennant seur Contenance en regle. They send their Conscience to the Stews, and keep their Countenance within Rule.

Furetiere. 'Tis even as true of one, as of the other. Mr. Scarron, and my following discourse will verifie it. What Virtue there is in a Miter, I know not, for I cou'd never obtain one. I was thought too good a Christian in the bottom: but before I bad adieu to Paris, your innocent believing Apolites were become two as rampant and fine Coated Hogs as any of the Herd. The Reverend Father le Bone, Bishop of Berigaene, has fo bravely play'd the County Boar, that there's not a pretty Nun in his Diocess but has been with Pig by him, as I have been credibly inform'd by Persons of Ho-

Q 2

Scar-

❸

Scarron. Oh, the excellent Apostle! I remember a Story of him when he was Bishop of Agde, which will not be unpleasant to you, if you can bear with a Pun, and a Poet's making merry with several Languages, a thing he can no more avoid than Flattery. This worthy Presate not meeting with that Plenty at Agde, his voluptuousness required, made his Monarch this Compliment: Sir, je suis ne gueux, j'ay vecu gueux, bnais s'il plait a votre Majeste, je vonx PERI GUEUX.

Furetiere. Faith a very comfortable Reward, for a very filthy Pun, I have faid Fourty pleasanter Things to the King, and never could net beyond Monsieur l'Abbe, which make me believe there is a critical Minute for Vit as well as Love: An excellent Roman Poet was sensible of it, when he faid,

Hora Libellorum decima est, Eupheme, (meorum, Temporat Ambrosias cum tuacura Dapes, Et bonus athereo laxatur Nectare Cesar.

There's a Latin Quotation for you, to thew you I understand it; and that I have been an Author as well as you.

Scar-

1

6

m

1154

Wi fee

Ca

hir

Gr

Ch

late

dez the

fo o

Wh

Bean

ME 44

ent gent

ř

ė.

re

182

le,

nis

ne

re

le-

iid

nd

be.

cal

ex-

ity

me,

um.

3,

r.

to

ave

C 87 .

Scarron. Believe me, Monsieur l' Abbe, you'll fare much the better for it here, and tho' those Gentlemen made us poor Poets pass for Scoundrels and Impious Ridiculers of Piety in the other World, yet we have much the whip-hand of them in these Quarters, therefore take comfort. Tell me, pray, how the pious Julius Massaron behaves himself at Agen, where he meets with greater Plenty than he did at Thute.

Furetiere. Oh! The Acorns and Chefnuts of Agen have made him so plump and wanton, 'twould rejoyce your heart to see him. All the Females of the Town Cares him, and strive which shall yield him most Delight; and he out of Zeal and Gratitude, and to preserve Peace and Charity amongst them, like a Holy Prelate, has given to each her hour of Rendezvous, which they keep as regularly as the Clock strikes.

Scarrow. Very well! There's nothing to commendable as a good Method in Whoring.

gentle Nun, with whom he often goes to Beauregard, there tete a tete, or rather no as ne, under the shady Limes, do they both act that which will one day procure a Third. There are Fourty other better Stories of these Two Prelates, for they value not what common Report says, they are above it. But if you will liften to the Exploits of the Bishop of Lacu, now Cardinal d'Estree, I will shew you what a Mitter'd Hog is capable of.

Searron. As I am acquainted with the strength of his Genius, so do I not doubt of the Greatness of his Performances. You have now nam'd a Man that wou'd make

G

t

N

tl

M

be en

in (u

W

be

tri

lo

cqi

my

tha

tal

a Parish Bull jeulous!

Furetiere. The History I shall give you, will justifie your opinion of him. Knew then that the Cardinal & Effree, being palfionately in Love with the Marchiones a'Cauvres, who was supposed to have granted to the Duke de Seaux, the liberty of Rifling her Placket, was refolv'd to put in for his Snack. To compais this, he acquainted his Nephew, the Marquis de Canwres, with the Scandalous Familiarity that was between the Duke and his Wife. Upon which their Parents met at Marefchal d' Eftree's, where it was concluded to fend the young Adulteress into a Convent, but the old Mareschal, made wifer by long Experience, was against it. In good

ne

ter

ey

ys,

en

WC

at

the

abt

ou

ake

ou,

OW

oal-

nes:

int-

Ri-

in ac.

an.

rity

Tife.

aref.

dto

Con-

viser

In

boot

good Faith, faid he, You are more nice than wife; had not our Mothers play'd the same wanton trick, not one of us had been here. I know very well what I fay there's not a handsome Nose nor Leg in the Company, but has been stole, and not a farthing matter from whom, whither Prince or Coachman, it has mended our Breed : therefore we have more reafon to praise those, who discreetly follow the Examples of their Grand-mothers and Mothers, than banish 'em, and so render them fruitless. Do not suppose, when I Marri'd my Grandson de Cenures, to young Mademoifelle de Lianne, that I confider'd her Riches, or that her Father was a Minister of State, such Thoughts are beneath a Man of my Age and Experi-My great hopes were, that the being Young and Handsome, wou'd ftill support the Grandeur of our Family, which, as you all very well know, has been made more considerable by the intrigues of the Women, than by the Valour of the Men. I'm fure I never difcourag'd what I now maintain; and why my Grandson shou'd be more squeemish than I, or his Forefathers have been, I take it to be unreasonable: Therefore, Y 4 fince fince the Marchioness de Cauvres is only blam'd for having tasted those Pleasures which Nature allows, and which are customary in our Family, I declare my self her Protector. Yet I wou'd not have this be the talk of the Court; I wou'd not have it pass my Threshold; because the World might say of one of us, as of a fine curious piece of Clock-work, that a great many excellent Workmen had a hand in.

Scarron. In this generous and confiderate Speech, do I plainly discover the prelinations of the famous Gabriele de Etree, Harry the Fourth's Mistress: But I am in trouble for the poor Marchioness, I know a Convent must be insupportable to a Woman that has tasted the Pleasures of a Licentious Court.

1

CE

if

at

th

De

cu

Mi

my

Furetiere. The Cardinal was against publishing his Neece's Wantonness, as well as the Mareschal, and took upon him the care of reprimanding her, and bringing her into the path of Virtue; to which the Marquia de Cauvres readily consented, not imagining he deliver'd the pretty Lamb to the ravenous Wolf. This being agreed on, the Lustful Prelate went immediately to his Neece, I come, Madam, said faid he, from doing you a very cosiderable piece of Service : All our Family has been in Consultation against you, and could think of no milder punishment for you, than a Convent, with all its Mortifications, viz. Praying, Fasting, Whipping, and abstaining from the Masculine kind, &c. I know, dear Neece, this was as unjust as fevere : But, in fhort, it had been your doom, had I not been your Friend. Such a piece of Service as this, beautiful Neece, deserves a fuitable return; and I believe you too generous to be ungrateful: but I shall think this, and all the other Services I can render you, highly recompens'd, if you'll but permit me to fee you often and embrace you.

S

t

8

2

1-

e, in

W

01

1-

b-

as

19 ch

d,

ty

ng

maid

Scarron. A very pious Speech! I hope that which is to follow will answer this excellent beginning. Now do I imagine a Place formally belieg'd: The next news will be of opening the Trenches.

Mr. Scarron: The Place makes a noble Defence; and does not furrender till a Breach is made. To be thus unjustly accused, said the Morchioness, is a very great Missortune; and tho I will not disown my obligation to you, yet you must permit mit me to fay, that your Proceeding destroys that very Obligation: If you will not have any Regard to my Virtue, and the Fidelity I owe my Husband you ought, nevertheles, to remember your Character, and how nearly we are Related. But I know the meaning of this, you believe the scandalous and malicious Story that has been rais'd of me, and defign to make your advantage of it. What can be more injurious than this attempt! Though you thought me a Whore, had you but thought me still Virtuous enough to abhor your Beaftly, Incestuous Propofition, I should yet have had some Reason to efteem you - Scarron. Poor Prelate! I gad I pity thee! thou haft received such a Bruile in this Repulse, that I cannot think thou'lt have the Courage to return to the

tl

W

in

Attack?

Furetiere. Have Patience: You are not acquainted with the Craft and Courage of a Miser'd Hog. The Prelate, who by this Resistance, was become more Amorous, resolved to watch so narrowly his Neece's Conduct, that he would oblige her to do That, out of Fear, which all his Rhetorick and Protestations of Love Love cou'd not Tempt her to. To be thort, he manag'd to well this important Affair, that he furprized the Duke de Seanse in Bed, between Madam de Lion. ne, and the Marchioness de Couvres her Daughter: And to magnify Charity, as well as other Wirtues in this matter, he took Monfieur de Lionne along with him. will leave you to imagine the Confusion of those two Ladies, the first, to see her Husband, and the other, the Man she had so vigorously Repuls'd. The Marchioness thinking wifely, her Compliance wou'd yer conceal her intrigue taking the Cardinal by the Hand, and gently fqueezing it, said, If you will promite me to appeale my Father, and by your Ghoffly Authority, make my Mother and him good Friends again, and keep this Frollick from my Husband, you shall, when ever you pleafe, find me grateful and fenfible of your Affection.

Scarrow. What said Mr. de Lieune? The surprise of a poor Guckeld, who finds a handsom, brawny young Fellow in Bed with his Wife and Daughter, sur-

Committee to give the fourth and the second and the passes my Imagination !

10

H

th

0.

ty

in

he

are

ho

ore

viv

uld

ich

of

ove

Funetiere.

Furetiere. If, like Action, he had been immediately Metemorphised into a Stag, he could not have been more surpris'd.

Scarron. How did the Prelate behave himself, after this Charitable brave Exploit? The Breach is now made, There has been a Parley; The Preliminaries are agreed on; Nothing now is wanting, but taking Possession of the Place.

h

W

le.

ca

the

vir

out

to

an

Ma

in

Car

Furetiere. You move very Soldier like, Mr. Scarron. The Prelate being resolved to perform all the Articles of Treaty, like a Man of Honour : First, Preach don Charity, and then Forgiveness of Crimes, then on Humane Prudence, Policy, the Reputation of Their Family, and quoted fome of the old Marefebal's Remarks which, altogether, fo prevail'd on the poor Cuckold, that he consented to put his Horns in his Pocket, and forgive his Daughter: Then did the Prelate, under the Pious Pretence of Correcting his faulty Neece, lead her with a feeming austere Gravity into his Chamber, where he fummon'd her to the performance of Articles on her part, which, on a Couch, were reciprocally exchanged; the not daring to refule it, for fear he shou'd acquaint her Husband with her Intrigue with the Duke de Seaux.

Searron. Oh, brave Hog! Worthy Prelate! Pious Cardinal! What a fine way of Mortification is this! Well, for Sincerity, Humility, Charity, Sobriety, &c.

Commend me to a Prelate!

d

n

e

9

It

18

is

ig

re

h, ot

C

Furetiere. The Cardinal, tho' he had obtain'd his desires, yet cou'd not but be fensible that Fear, not Love, made her confent; therefore, doubting the wou'd return to her first Amours, or that he shou'd have but little share of her, so contriv'd it, that her Husband fent her to a House he had in the Cardinal's Diecest, and not far from his Palace. This had a very good Effect, because the Cardinal, for the Love of her, resided always at his Diocess. Thus did the Cardinal and his Neece live very lovingly for two or three Years; but the Intrigues of the Court, calling the Prelate out of the Kingdom, Ambition stept into the place of Love, and put an end to an Incestuous Commerce, to which the Marchione/s had first consented, purely in her own Defence.

Searron. I find there are Hogs with Cardinal Caps as well as Mitres. But ₿

I believe, they are not so numerous: That Dignity, perhaps, is a kind of curb to their Licentiousness.

Furetiere. You mistake the matter. Mr. Scarron , Inclination never changes; the only Reason is, there are more Biffieps than Cardinals; and most of them reside at Rome, at glorious Rome, which is but one intire Stems, Sodem was not, what Rome is now. Have you forgot the famous Cardl. nal Bonzi ? He is as Absolute in Mont. pellier, as the Grand Seignior in his Sergelie, he needs but becken to the Dame he has a mind to enjoy. The brave Cardinal de Bonillon, notwithstanding his Court Intrigues; is as well known in all the Bawdy-houses of Paris; as a young debauch'd Musqueteer, or Garde du Corps. The Cardinal de Furstenberg too, was us wicked as his Purfe wou'd allow him, before I left the Town.

Scarron. I verily believe it, Monfieur It Abbe. But pray give me leave to reckon your Dignities upon my Fingers, that I may not forget them. First, there is your Perkers of Jesus Christ, then your Miter'd Hogs, and lastly your Purple Hogs. 'Tis wondrous pretty! Pray how must we distinguish the Pope, who is Ghief of

this

by The

Is I

h

F

S

th

W

F

St

hi

W

fto

the wi

fath

nou

the I

Cour

in C

gree

this Herd? Must we call him the Swineherd? Some of them, 'tis true, were Swine-herd's before they took the Order of Priestbood, as Sixtus quintus, who was Swine-herd to the Village of Montaste. But there is another thing that puzzles me worse than all this; You know Lewis the Fourteenth calls himself the Eldest Son of St. Peter. Lewis the Great then, for all his Ambition, is the Son of a Swine-herd? Well, I know not how to settle this point; therefore pray continue your History.

34

05

le

it

Ve.

.

16

10

e.

18.

11

ė.

Cdt

15

ar

r.

of 19

furctione. I'll make an end of my Hiftory, if you are not already glutted with the Infamy of the foremention'd Preduces; with that of the Archbifbop of Rheims.

Scarron. How, Monheur & Abbe, how has hea Hog too? I have heard him call'd, by some of our new Guests, a Horse.

The Marefehal de la Fuillade was his Godfather, and one Day Honour'd him with the Title of Coash-Horfe.

Scarron. A Horfe, is a degree of Honour above a Hog — Has to Femiliade the Priviledge of distributing Titles at the Court of France ! Has he more Wit than in Cardinal Mazerin's Days, who always greeted him in these words, Mousieur de la Femiliade

Femiliade, All your Brains would lie in a Furetiere. Tis true, there is no more Substance in his Brains, than in whipt Cream; and as that fills up the Dessert, and serves to cool and refresh the Stomach after a plentiful Dinner; so does he ferve to unbend and divert the Mind, after solid Conversation and Business. To prove this, I will tell you how he made the King Laugh very heartily, concerning the Archbishop of Rheims.

n

W

n

By

om

fai

lit

the

his hin

wil

Rea

Hor

the

ceff

nate

Scarron. As a Wife Politick Lady, when the has not the Fool her Husband to divert her, will have her Munkey; so must the Great Statesman have his Buffoon. He is the same to the Politician, as a Glister is to the Man that's costive. But, go on with your Story.

Faretiere. He being one Day with the King, looking out at a Window of Verfailles, that faces the great Road to Paris, and observing the Passengers, the King, at last, discover'da Coach with more, as he thought, than Six Horses, and turning to la Feuillade, praising the Equipage, ask'd him if it was not the Archbishop of Rheim's Livery: Yes, Sir, said la Feuillade. I can discover but seven Horses, reply d ply'd the King: Oh! Sir, said la Fenillade, the Eighth is in the Coach. But I pretend to degrade this Archbishop, and prove, that he's but a Miser'd Hog, as well as the rest of his Brethren.

Scarron. Ah! Dear Monsieur L'Abbe, for the Love of Monsieur le Tellier, who has render'd his King and Country such great Service, take not from him the Honour La Feuillade confer'd on him, and with the King's Approbation.

ore

pt

rt,

to-

he

id,

efs.

he

n-

ly,

nd

y;

iti-

its

the

er-

ris.

18

25

ID-

ge,

of

rey d Furetiere. Plead not so earnestly for him; but hear me with patience. I do not say, but the Archbishop of Rheims is a Brute, a very Animal, a Coach Horse, per omnes e'asus; but yet he pursues the Affairs of Love, with as much Zeal, and as little Conscience, as any Prelate in Europe; therefore must not be distinguish'd from his Brethren. Besides, if you take from him his lawful Title of Miter'd Hog, you will hinder his preferment.

Read that Caligula honour'd one of his Horses with the Title of Senator; why then may not the Pope, who is the Successor of that Emperor, call into his Senate your Coach Horse?

Fur

3

Furetiere. With all my Heart. Nevertheless, I'll call him, if you please, Mi-ter'd Hog, as I did the Bishop of Luon before he was Cardinal d'Erree. Now to matter of Fact: The Durebes & Anmont having furpris'd one of her Chamber-Maids, in a very indecent Posture, with the Marquis de Villequier her Sonin-Law, turn'd her out of her Service. The poor Wench, diffracted to find her felf seperated from her Lover, told him, out of pure Revenge, that the Archbifbop of Rheims lay with the Dutchefs, every time the Dake went to Verfailles. How! My Oncle! Ah! I cannot believe it, thou fay'ft this out of Malice.

Scarron. Oh, fy! Oh, fy! The Archbi (hop of Rheims Debauch the Dutchefs of Aumont, his Brother-in-Law's Wife! Do not you plainly perceive this Jades Malice? If the Duschess had but suffer'd her Intrigue with the Marquis, she wou'd not have open'd her Mouth? Oh, horrible! Oh, horrible!

Furetiere. As much as you feem to wonder now, and abhor the Thoughts of fuch doings, you were not formerly fo very Nice, nor Incredulous.

Scar-

Scarron. Be not Angry, good, Monsieur l'Abbe; I do believe as bad of a Priest, as you can desire to have me; therefore, pray continue.

1

11-

OW

W

#-

11-

e, n-

e

er

n,

65, es.

ve

1

of

00 es

11-

he

h,

to

of

fo

ar-

Furetiere. By what follows, you'll find that this Spirit of Revenge discovered a most luscious Intrigue. Since you will not believe what I fay, reply d the Wench to her Gallant, I will, the next time the. Duke goes to Verfailles, make your Eyes convince you. The Dutchels you must know, had imprudently given her leave to stay Three or Four Days in her House as it happen'd the Duke went that Afternoon to Court; who was no looner gone, and the Marquis placed in a Dark Room leading to the Dutchefe's Bed-chamber, but by comes the Archeilton, Muffled up with a Cloak and a Dark Lanthorn in Hand: This convinc'd the Young Marquis and was enough to convince a more incredulous Man than your Worthip, solve oot management Scarrow. It was perhaps forme Phantame, or forme amorous Devil, who to do him-felf Honour, had taken the Archiffey's goodly Form, and fanctified Meen.

Furetiere. Still excusing the Priests! you were not such an Advocate of theirs in the other World: Witness your Answer to your Parish Priest, some few hours before you pack'd up for this place.

R 2

Scarron. I have fince drank a fwinging draught of Lethe's forgetful Stream; I remember nothing of it: You would, per-

i

n

11

Cu

no

th

be

d

Cre

inf

jea!

no

Wei

lan

fon

you

you

Mift

Ikn

only

you.

haps, scandalize me.

discount of a little from Furetiere. It was thus, Sir, The grave Hypocrite administring the last Idolatrous Ceremonies, ask'd, if you knew what you received, to which you made this short answer: The Body of your God carrid by an Als.

Scarron. Tis true, tis true, Monfieur l' Abbe , Pray who can endure to be difturb'd by an impertinent Coxcomb, when he's going to take a long Voyage? But go on, I'll not speak one word more in their behalf.

Furetiere. The Marquis convinc'd by what he had feen, went the next Morning to Verfailles, and told all the young Mobility of his acquaintance what had pass'd, which by being buzz'd about, in Four and twenty hours became the talk of all the Court.

Scarron. Oh, brave Archbiftop of Rheims! was no body worthy being made a Cuckold by you but your brother-in-Law? Furefor the charitable Archbifbop has affifted his Nephew too, as well as his brother-in-Law, and intends to go round the Family.

Scarron. The Devil! This is the most insatiable Hog I ever heard of! He devours both the Hen and her Chicking. Pray, excuse me, Monsieur l'Abbe; I cannot but think you wrong him now.

S

A

0

t

1-

g

n

k

1/

n-

Furetiere. You may judge of that by the following Relation. The Archbillop being passionately in Love with Madam d' Aumont his Neece, and the Marquis de Crequi's Wife, was refolv'd, the better to infinuate himfelf with her to make her jealous of her Husband, which he found no difficult matter to do. This done, he went to visit het, and finding her Melancholly, faid, Madam, I know no reafon you have to be fo much concerned at your Husband's Infidelity, fince it lies in your power to be Reveng'd ? If he has a Mistress, why don't you get a Callent I know no injustice in it; and it is the only recompening Counsel I can give you, when I have a series they

R 3

Scarron.

❸

Scarron. Ah! Marchioness have at ye I find the Hog grows rampant—Go on, good Sir: This is like a brave Metropolitan!

Furetiere, The young Marchioness did not liften to this Propolition; but on the contrary, was furpris'd to find her Unele, an Archbishop make a motion, which had the been inclin'd to follow, he ought to have given her more virtuous Advice. Perceiving her Aversion to his Proposition, he suspected she might suppose he only faid it to try her Inclinations, therefore he was refolv'd to declare his mind in more intelligible Terms, which he did in fo Amorous a Style, that the Marchioneft plainly perceiv'd the Archbishop intended to have a share in the Revenge. But the young Lady, the fhe wou'd not have made any scruple of it, had it not been for his Character, was infinitely concern'd at it.

O

e

fo T

qu

an

th

Tr

do

M

tec

pla

Scarron. Notwithstanding all this, do I see the Purple Victorious, and the poor Victim prostrate.

frequent Presents, and she expected great Advantages at his Death, so she did not think it prudence to mortify him too much, much, this fill'd him with hopes, and made him more Amorous: Therefore, to blind the Husband, and have a better Oppertunity of Lying with his Wife, he propos'd taking them into his Palace, and defraying all their Charges.

Scarron. Money is the Sinue of Love as well as War. The Poor Marquis, I don't doubt, was blinded with this fine Proposal. More Men are made Cacholds by their own Follies, than by their Wives.

Ö

d

e

18

n

1.

1

Ol

er

at ot

00

h

Furetiere. So it prov'd by our Cuckeld, who was fo transported at the beauteous Offer of the Archbifbop, supposing it an Unkle's Kindness, not a Lover's, that he, every were boasted of it: That is to say, he thought himself oblig'd to his Unkle, for Lying with his Wife at that price. The Mareschal de Crequi his Father, had quite another Opinion of that matter; and was affronted at the excessive Liberalities of the Archbillop, knowing that the most Devout and Zealous of their Tribe were Adulterers, Incestuous and Sodomites. He complain'd of it to the Marquis Louvois, who told him, Coye, teousness was the Reason of his Complaint. The Maresthal not satisfy'd with this R 4 this answer, went to the King, who immediately Commanded the Archbifbop to retire into his Diocess. The disconsolate Archbishop, whilst all was preparing for his Journey, went to Visit his Neece, and with Tears, defir'd her ever to Remember, that 'twas for the Love of her he was Banish'd.

₿

Scarron. Cou'd the Afflictions of the Living affect me, I shou'd be mightily concern'd for the Grief of this poor Prelate, who was oblig'd to leave so dear, so pretty a Neece, a Neece that afforded. him so much Pleasure and Delight. Have you not left behind you, other Miter'd Hogs, whose Lives and Converfations are worthy your Remembrance? Those you have already been so kind to relate, have been a Banquet to me; and I heartilty wish I may always meet with such Enterrainment.

Furetiere. Your Servant Mr. Scarron! I am extreamly pleas'd they have Diverted you, and that you may promile your felf fuch another Entertainment, nay, Twenty fuch, be affur'd, that there is not a Bishop, Archbishop, or Cardinal, that is not as very a Hog, as either the Archbishop of Rheims, or Cardinal d'Etree, except

in CC te

C

b

fe

tW bij The an

VII W for the

Li rul to

Hog Th to of

and kee you

of 1 l'Al

put

cept the Bishop of Escar, who lives in a barron Soil, and can scarce afford himfelf a belly full of Chefnuts above once in Fifteen Days. Poverty is a kind of Leprosie, not a fair sleek Female will come near him. The Reason why I entertain you with the Histories of these two Prelates, rather than of the Archbishop of Paris, the Bishop of Meanx, the Bishop of Beauvais, the Bishop of Valence, and all the other Bifbops, is, because having heard the famous Actions of those worthy Metropolitans, faithfully related fome few days before my Departure, those Ideas are the most Present and Lively. But in time, and with a little rubbing up my Memory, I may be able to give you the Lives of all the Miter'd Hogs. Besides, as we have now settled Three Couriers weekly, from this Place to Versailles, because of the Importance of Affairs now on Foot, I expect now and then a Packet; fo I don't doubt of keeping my word, and often diverting you with Stories of the like nature, and of fresher Date.

Scarron. 'Tis very obliging, Monsieur, l'Abbe: But your last Paragraph has put an odd Whim into my Noddle.

? · ·

1,

is

ıt

b-

K-

(FD)

This Place, as I told you before, is now call'd the Wits Coffee House; none but Authors are fent hither. What think you, if we shou'd joyn our Heads together, and digest all your Stories and Intelligence into Form; If we shou'd compile a Book of them, we cou'd make it very diverting, having able Men both for Verse and Prose, whose very Names wou'd give it the Reputation of a faithful History; because the Dead, neither hoping nor fearing any thing from the Living, cannot be suspected of Flattery and Partiality, as they justly were when in the World.

Furetiere. I protest, a noble Thought! The Lives of the Roman Prelates, will make a most Curious History! We have a Famous History of the Roman Emperors; and why shou'd we not then have another of the Roman Prelates, since they as justly deserve to be transmitted to Posterity?

the special of the

And And Queen

BEAU

E

D

m

Be ma

Sir

Te

BEAU NORTON

TO HIS

d dny

of

d, ig of

t!

III

7e

SN.

ce

ed

a la

u

Brothers at HYPOLLITO'S

IN

COVENT GARDEN.

condition attends to believe the state to

By Captain ATLOFF.

Dearly Beloved Brothers of the Orange-Butter-Box.

You will soon be satisfied what mighty Changes we suffer by Death, and that there is notwo things at more distance from one another, than to Be, and not to Be. You know how Roman-like, I took pett, and dar'd to die; for Time had bejaded me a little, aud to renounce the Tyranny of the Fickle Goddes, I was oblig'd to renounce your Light. Since my arrival at the Grim Tartarian Territories, I have received the usual

8

Compliments of the Place, and tho' the most accurate Courtiers that ever were bred at Versailles, and all the Was of the most Gallant Courts in the Universe, are here in whole Shoals, yet to my great wonder and amazement, not one of them faid a gentile thing to me: But with a strange familiar air, that savour'd much of our Bear-garden Friendship, some a Hundred or two hall'd me by the Ears, and puffing out thick clouds of flaming Sulphur, cry'd all with a hoarfe and difmal Voice, Well, Dayly, this was kindly done of thee, to take the Pas avance of Destiny, and shew the World, that no Man need be Miserable, but who is afraid to dye: I was (amongst Friends) as much our of Countenance at this fawcy proceeding, as when our old Friends Shore and La Ruche, vefus'd to lend me Five paultry Guinea's, after I had equip'd them with more than one Thousand a piece. I wondred at the roughness of their aceneil, and they burst out a Laughing at the impertinency of my aftonish ment. Well, Gentlemen, give me leave to tell you, that if I had but suspected a quarter part of this inhumane and ungentleman-like Reception, I wou'd have fu-

11

p

n

S

n

n

bl

th

to

fo

m

be thi

the

to me

Da

dif

and

Ch

corr

it m

ron suspended the Honours of my Self-facrifice. and have chosen rather to wait the fatal period of Life in a more contracted Orbe than thus fuddenly have plung'd my felf into fo flinking a Disappointment. After having allotted me my Portion for my Vanity and Foppery, and I had been put into Possession of my Shop, you cannot concieve how heavy it lay upon my Spirits, but fufferit I must, and it it had not been the odioulest and most abominable, most naucious, and most execrable Function I cou'd have labour'd under they won'd not have been fo merciful as to have enjoyn'd it me. Twas long bea fore I cou'd obtain leave to infinuate thus much to you; for they are no ways here below inclined to grant any the minutest thing imgainable, that may contribute to the benefit of Mankind. Jo. Haines came to me, (and his breath had as much augmented its stench, as Light is different from Darkness, in a word, there was as great a difproportion for the worfe, as between us and you) and with a displayed pair of Chaps of told me all must not have any correspondency with the Uppen Regions, for it might tend to the diffeopling the Acherontic Territories and that I was a Bubble,

,

S

,

8

1

e f

148 œ.

8

a

•

e

8 ble, to think they had not as much of Self-interest there below, as any Merchant Statefman, Lawyer, or Noble man in all the Dominions above. But feeing my, and your old acquaintance (Gentlemen) I took heart a little and held my Nose; and after fome usual Coremonies ( to which he made but a fcurvy return ) i told him, look you Mr. Haines, you know, as well as I, that those Powder'd Members of the vain Fraternity are all of them incorrigable; prefent fmart and future fear affects them not they are out of the reach of good Advice, Reafon was never their Tallent; for if they were ever in elettion to have a thought, as it would be the first who would it be the fatallest too: Could any Glass but shew them to themselves, as really they are, they wou'd all despair like me, and dye like me. Adly young whelp of the Second Glafi of Pluto's Footmen, faid, well, Mr. Hainer, there may be much in what he fays, he came laft from thence, therefore let him make an end of his Epiftle, it may turn to better Account than we are aware of thanked the Gentleman for his Civility, and wou'd have Administred a Half-Crown,

t

n

te

T

as fm

ha

Ca

far

bu

the

Ch

ten

Re

har ry

wh

Ret

that

dep

Crown, but you know ( my worthy Brothers ) that the last Twelve Shillings 1 had, was laid out in Three Glasses of Ratafiat and a Bottle of Effence; with which, I first Com'd out my Wigg, then clean'd my Shoes, and then Oyl'd the Lock of my Piftels, and fo fer out for this tedious and lugubrous Journey: And that you may fee, that Pluto's Skip-kennels are not fo infolent as yours are, the fellow told me, with a malicious smile, That if the Powder'd Genery of th' other World were fo very despicable Animals, as I represented them, he would take a fmall Toure with me, and then I might have fomething material to Communicate to them. We had not walk'd fo far, as from the Chocolat-House to the Rose, but in a narrow, obscure, obscene Ally there hung out a piece of a Broken Chamber Pot, upon which was Written, in Sulphurious Characters, Flefbly Relief for the Sons of Adam. I had hardly made an end of Reading this Merry Motto, but the Door opened, and what shou'd my Eyes behold, but a Reverend Lady of Illustrious Charms, that gave us too vilible Proofs of the depredations of Time: I recollected ni

d

4 ve

fo

ny

air

ng otay.

laft

an itet

Lang

WII.

her Phiz, as Ingineers tell by the very Ruins, whether the Fabric, were Doric of Ionic, &c. and who shou'd this be, but the celebrated Fair Rojomond; her prefent Occupation was to be Runner to this Bawdy Coffee-House. Queen Elenor, her mortal Enemy, fels Sprats, and has her Stall in Pluto's Stable Yard. In my Perigrination, I met feveral, things unexpected, and therefore furprifing, I shall not give you the trouble of every particular dark Paffage we went through, but in general Terms, relate the most memorable things that occur'd, during a very confiderable walk that we had together, Taking a folitary Walk on the Glood my Banks of Acheron, I met a finical fellow Powder'd from Top to Toe, his Hands in his Pocket, a la Mode de Paris, humming a new Minuet; and who shou'd it be, but Gondamour, that Famous Spaniard. Hellenof Greece, Cry'd Kitching Stuff , and Koxana, had a little Basket of Tripe and Trotters; Agamemaan Sold Bak'd Ox Cheek, hot, hot; Hambal fells Spanish Nuts, Come Crack it away: The fo famous Helter of Troy, is a Head dreffer; the Decii keeps a Coblers, Stall in the Corner of the Forum; and the Horatii

ry

or.

ut

nt

V-

er

er

Ly

n-

1

h,

A

a

)-

04

15

Is

-

t

d

Horatii a Chandlers Shop; Sardanapalus Cries Lilly-White-Vinegar, and Heliogabulus Bakes Fritters in the Via Appia of this Metropolis ; Lucius Emilus Paulus is a Bayliff's follower, and the famous Queen Tomyris, Proportions out the Offalls for Cerberus; Tarquin Sweeps his Den; and Romulus is a Turnspit in Pluto's Kitching; Arraxerxes is an under Scullion, and Pompy the Magnifficent, a Rag-Man. Mark Anthony, that disputed his Mistress at the price of the whole Universe, goes now about with dancing Dogs, a Monkey and a Rope; Cleopatra, that cou'd fwallow a Province at one Draught, when it was to drink her Lovers Health, fubmits now to the humble Employment of feeding Proferpina's Piggs. Luxurious Roman, who was once so disfolv'd in Ease, as that a very Rose-Leaf doubled under him prevented his rest, is now Labouring at the Avvil with a half hundred Hammer. Oliver Cromwell is a Rat Catcher, and my Lord Bellew a Chimny Sweeper: There was, befides thefe, a Lift of People nearer hand; but you may easily guess upon what fcore they are left out of the Lift. needed not have gone so far back in the Records

te

IT

11 al

fi

al

th

A

T

fo

to

of

of

ar

th

T

te

(B)

Records of Persons and Things, to have met instances of Barbarity, Luxury, Avarice, Lust of Dominion, as well as of Senfuallity; Malversations of Government in Soveraigns and Subjects. Pub. lick Justice avoided, Private Fewds fomented; every thing Sacrificed to a Colbert, Maintenor, or a Louvoi There is some Body Hallows most damnably on th' other fide of Srix, and least, I lose this opportunity, I shall only relate some Memorable things to you: Therefore, pray pardon me, that I cannot dilate upon every particular. In thort then, Alexander the Great, is Bully to a Guinea-Dropper; and Cardinal Mazarine keeps a Nine-Holes. Mary of Medicis Stockings, and Katharine Queen of Sweedland, cries Two Bunches a Penny Card Matebes, Two Bunches a Penny. Henry the Fourth of France, carrys A Rary Show, and Mahomet Musles. Senece keeps a Tencing School, and Julius Cafar, a Twepenny, Ordinary. Xeuophon, That Great Philosopher, cries Cucumbers to pickle, and Cate is the perfecteft Sir Courtly of the whole Plutonian Kingdom. Richelien cries Topping Bunno; and the late Pope, Any thing to Day. Lewis the Thirteenthteenth is a Corn Cutter; Gustavus Adolphus cries Sparagrafs; with a Thousand more particulars of this Nature. must allow the Scenes to be mightily alter'd from their former Stations, but, alass! Sir, this Change we suffer, and as Pleafure is the reward of Virtue, fo Difgrace and Infamy, is of Cruelty, Pride and Hypocrify. What can be more furprising, than to fee the Renowned Penthefiles, Queen of the Amazons, crying New Almanacks! and Daring - Ginger-bread! Van Tromp cries Batlads; and Admiral de Rayter, Long and Strong Thred Laces. This disproportion is their Punishment; for it must be Anxious to the last degree, to fall fo low, even beyond a possibility of rifing again. That is the Advantage of moving in an Humbler Sphere; they are not capable of those Enormities that the great ones can hardly avoid; for Temptation will generally have the better of Mankind. Ireft, Yours, in haft.

Sir Bartholomem -

TO THE

Worshipful Serjeant 5-

By the same.

is

m ar

no

fra

fu

be

by

of fide

mo

Mi

Riv

wh

HE Friendship that was between us formerly, equally obliges me to give you a Relation of my Travels, and assures me of its Welcom. my Perigrination from your Factious Regions, I have passed over various and Stupendous Lakes; the Roads are somewhat Dark indeed, but the continu'd Exhalations of those amazing Streams, make the Travellers able to pass, without running foul upon one another. But 'tis equally remarkable, confidering the length and darkness of the Passage, that no Person was ever Cast away on this River Stix, as I am credibly inform'd by the Ferry-Man, who has ply'd ply'd here, time out of mind. The Fogs are pretty rife in this Country. and full as infufferable as ever they were among you: I unfortunatly forgot my Lozeng-Box, and have much impar'd my Lungs, but they assure me, that these Defluxions or Rheums never kill. 'Tis prodigious, I protest, Brother, to see how soon we Learn the Language or rather Jargon of the Place! How fast they come in from all Parts of the Habitable World! and yet there is but one Boat neither, and that no bigger than above Bridge Wherry. At my coming ashore, I was very familiarly Entertain'd, and directed to an Apparement in Cocytus: But there was not one corner in all my passage, but I met some or other of the wrangling fraternity of Westminster. I immediately fuggested to my self, that there might be ( peradventure ) a Call of Serjeants by His Majesty Pluto, who is Soveraign of these Gloomy Regions, and who, besides his general Residence here, has a most magnificent Pallace about Twenty Miles off, at Erebus, on the fide of the River Phlegison. He is One of a somewhat stern Afped, not easie of Access; S 3 haughty

en

ne

ls,

ce

end

ie-

ı'd

18,

her.

ng

ge,

ay

oly

125 p'd

 $\odot$ haughty in his Deportment, and barbarous to the last degree in his Nature. There is no fort of People he fets fo much by, as those of our Profession, tho' I have not heard of any Lawyer that had the honour to be in his Cellar as yet. Our old Friend and Fellow-Toper Judge D.— has very good bufinels here, upon my word, and is likely to be prefer'd as Vacancies happen, for 'tis always Term Time in this Kingdom throughout; and belides, when he had his Quierus fent him by the Hands of Sir Thin Chops Mors, you and I remember very well, that he had not the best Reputation for a Man of Parts, 'In the Crowd of our pains taking Brethers en in the Litigious School, I remark'd an innumerable quantity that I was not quite an utter stranger to their Paces: More particularly, Mr. Fil ---- Who you know did not want for Sense, Wir, Law and good Manners; and yet had fo profound a Genious, that he cou'd dispatch more Business, and more Wine in one Night's time, than Bob Weedon wou'd have wish'd for a Patrimony; He very humainly accosted me, and after a Million of mutual Civilities, he forc'd

ti

to

P

11

VO

hi

Si

in 11 de

ref

2.1

0

at 45 er

15

to

or

m ad

of

n=

10

In

11:4

34

las,

185

ho

le,

et

he

re

160

ly:

nd

lje forc'd me to accept of my Mornings draught with him. At Night, you know. I never refuse my Bottle; but for Morning Tippling, it was always my Averfion, my Abomination, my Hatred, my Note me Tangere: Belides, the difmal prospect of the Place, gave me many suspitions that those laverns were not furnish'd with the best Accomodations either for Man's Mest, or Horse Meat, not that I had the Vanity to take my Coach with me neither, but 'tis to use an old Proverb that as vet! have not blotted out of my Memory. I had hardly difengag'd my felf from his Civilities, but Mr. Niebelas Hramighty gravely admonish'd me of his former familiarity, and with an Air, that was no ways Contumelious, defir'd to know how F .- Preach'd, and Burg -- . Pray'd'; whether the Grave Doctor W. ___ continued his Pious Endeavours, to Convert the Marry'd Men of his Parish from the crying and hainous Sin of Ebriety, and yet at the fame instant, almost, to contrive Plausible Ways and Means of perverting the Mo. deft and Chast Propensities of their respective Wives, and while they would not not quietly let their Husbands be (by accident of good Company, or good Wine ) Beafts, for but a few Transitory Nocturnal Hours, cou'd yet strive to make them fo beyond a possibility of Redress, for among Friends (Brother) What Collateral Security can an Honest, Prudent, Wary, Wise, Good, Upright, Understanding, Cautious, Indulgent, Loving Husband take, when that fame godly Man in Black, twirls his primitive Band-strings, and with the other Hand, has your dear Spouse, your help-Mate, the Wife of your Bosom, the partner of your Bed, by the Conscience, and somewhat else that begins with the same Letter? 'Twas not want of leafure ( for alass and alack ) we have supernumerary Hours here, but pretended Curiofity (the last thing that dies with us but Hypocrify) made me cut thore the harangue that this precise Attorney feem'd by his demureness to expect from me: So, in short, I told him, that his Fellow Companions at Six-a-Clock Prayers had not forgot him; and by what I cou'd understand from those that were last with me, the Pew-keeper lamented his loss extreamly, nay, was inconfolable: For now he was forc'd to use a Pailful of Water extraordinary once a Week more in the Church than formerly; because he had gotten to fuch a perfection in Hypocrify, that what his knees did not rub clean, his Eyes always wash'd clean: But for his Fathers comfort, fince he was got clear of his Super-Tartarian concerns, Money was faller, and his dearest Darling Sin of all, Extertion, was not a little under the Hatches: But that he might no be quite cast down, there was some seeds of it lest still, that wou'd always keep old Charon well employ'd. I had hardly bleft my felf for having got rid of him, but a merry Fellow (not to fay impertinent and fawcy to one of my Capacity, Volubility and Eloquence, Character, Conduct and Reputation ) pull'd me by the Coif, but as in strange Places 'tis prudence to pass by small affronts and indignities, because want of Acquaintance is worse than want of Knowledge; and the Law, you know Brother, is not fo expensive, as it is captious in the Maine not but that our Industry does help it mightily to be the one, if we find it to

3

IS

it

1.

s

e o ikye e yas

to be the other. Now who shou'd this Caitif be, but Harry C _____ff the Attorney; and all his mighty Bufiness was to know how his Landress did, and if the Maid had got the better of her in the Legacy he gave her her last Consolations. Before t could recollect the Secret History of his Amours, I was very courteoufly addrefs'd by Mr. Common Serjeant & __ p. who likewife, in a florid Stile, requefted me to inform him, if any of his Modern Bawds, that fo punctually attended him, had fuffer'd any prejudice by his abfence: He was mightily in doubt of their Success, because Experience had taught him, that Paupers in matters of Law proceed but heavily; however, he cou'd but wish them well, because that tho" they were bad Cliants, he had always found them good Procurators. My Lady Tifiphone made a sumptuous Entertainment, and the Countels of Clotho Danc'd fmartly, the King of Spain refented mightily that fo many English were there, and had almost bred a quarrel; but Don Sebaftian King of Portugal made up the matter, by declining the Spanish Faction, and said, it was was highly unjust that the English shou'd be maltreated in their Univerfal Interest, because He was a Fool, and the Cardinal that made his Will a Knave, and the King of France a Tyrant. But the Caraftrophy of this fit of the Spleen of the Supercilious Span niard was Comical enough, for in the Croud that was come together upon the notice of this Heart-burning, who thou'd flumble upon one another, but Godfry H'ooding the Attorney. you may remember (Brother) was committed, for faying to a certain Lord Cha ---- That he was his first maker, tho' the truth of the matter was, their intimacy at Play made him prefume to heg the small favour of his Lordship. to pass an unjust Decree in favour of his Cliant. Well, Sir, said the Attorney to his Lordship, now you are without your Mace, I must tell you, that had you not invited me to Supper the same Day you sent me to the Fleet, I shou'd have taken the freedom to have let you known, that in this Kings Dominions we are all Equals : I left 'em hard at All Fours for a Quart of Acheron, where they bite their Nails like mad.

B

mad, and divert others with their parfion and concern:

But the Postillion is mounting, and I must deser the rest of my Adventures to the next Oppertunity.

FINIS.